Moon Photos Hint Peril to Landing, Expert Says

—AP Wirephoto

SHORELINE of moon's Sea of Tranquillity shows in this photo taken by Ranger 8 from altitude of 270 miles, four minutes before impact. Parallel, tracklike lines are called "rills." Their origin is unexplained.

FOUR-TENTHS of second before crash, Ranger took this picture from altitude of 2,400 feet. It was last photograph and shows area 400x300 feet, smallest crater about five feet in diameter.

But Surface Looks Safe to Others

PASADENA (AP)—Ranger 8 sent to earth Saturday a dramatic series of thousands of pictures of the moon's surface. Scientists marveled but disagreed in interpreting them.

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, head of a team that will spend months analyzing the pictorial bonanza, said to him the lunar surface looks treacherous.

While its strength can't be determined from photos, he said, "I think there is only about three to six feet of loose material covering the surface."

• • • • •

THE FIRST lunar explorers, he said, may have to probe the surface ahead with long poles to keep from falling into lava tunnels.

Another expert thought the surface would support a spaceship.

And another thought there might be 50 to 60 feet of dust covering the broad plain where Ranger 8 crashed at 1:57 a.m. after a 65-hour journey.

The insect-shaped spacecraft's six cameras returned at least 7,000 close-ups during a 23-minute sweep across the face of the moon. It hit just 15 miles from its target in the Sea of Tranquillity.

BUILDING EXPLODES

Scores Hurt, Two Gravely, as They Watch Store Fire

ATLANTA (UPI)—Fire raged through a building on Peachtree Street Saturday night and the storefront exploded into a crowd of spectators, hurling them into the air and injuring more than 50 persons.

Many were thrown through plate-glass windows and others were injured by debris that belched from the burning building. A witness said he saw persons trampled in the stampede to escape.

"All of a sudden the store just blew up and people were thrown in the air and the panic started," one man said. "The people ran around screaming."

• • • • •

LOREN FRANK, night administrator at Grady Hospital, said 46 persons were treated there. Another was in St. Joseph's Infirmary. Still more were taken to other hospitals for treatment and released, and many more were treated privately.

Two firemen who were standing in front of the building were blown across the street and Frank said they were "critically hurt." Apparently no other persons were seriously injured.

The fire started in the Notre Dame Bookstore and an adjoining card shop and burned for about an hour, collecting a large crowd of onlookers and theatergoers. Suddenly it exploded in a shower of glass and furniture.

Dennis McGraw, 16, said he and his cousin had just decided to stop watching the fire and go get a hamburger when "we heard this big blast and it knocked us down."

Pope Asks Negotiation in Viet War

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI revealed Saturday he has "insistently" appealed to world leaders for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese war.

The pontiff said the crisis in Southeast Asia and other international difficulties have aroused his "grave concern."

It was the first time since World War II that a Pope disclosed he had used his high ecclesiastical office to attempt a settlement of a crucial world problem.

Pope Paul disclosed his diplomatic activitiy in general terms in a letter dated Feb. 13, to the Catholic episcopate of Viet Nam.

• • • • •

THE LETTER was made public Saturday on orders from the Pope himself. In it the pontiff revealed he has "confidentially" approached the leaders of various governments "to ask them insistently to contribute to an honorable and peaceful settlement of the different international difficulties that cannot fail to arouse our grave concern."

The Pope did not name the world leaders he has contacted. The crisis in Southeast Asia has involved the world's greatest powers including the United States, the Soviet Union and Red China.

Viet Nam Envoy Says Khanh Out

SAIGON (UPI)—Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh appeared to be on the way out as South Viet Nam's strong man Saturday night despite the crushing of an armed coup against his regime.

(In Washington, Vietnamese Ambassador Tran Thien Khiem said Khanh already has been ousted as armed forces commander-in-chief. He said Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu had been named acting commander-in-chief.

("Khanh is definitely out of power," Khiem told UPI. "I expect he will leave the country. I suggest that he does.")

Doubt was cast on the fate of Khanh only hours after loyal paratroopers swept the last rebel resistance out of the capital to complete a bloodless rout of insurgents who had seized strongpoints in Saigon less than 24 hours earlier.

• • • • •

FIRST Corps Commander Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi was named commander of Vietnamese troops in Saigon. He promptly ordered 15 officers and former officers implicated in the coup to surrender within 24 hours on penalty of court-martial.

Asked about the status of Gen. Khanh, Thi replied: "At the present time, Khanh is still commander-in-chief. In the future, we will talk more about it."

Khanh had not been in Saigon since minutes after the start of Friday's coup. At that time he slipped out of his residence to escape advancing rebel tanks.

The little strong man failed to attend a highly important meeting of the armed forces called at Bien Hoa air base Saturday morning to deal with the situation in the wake of the crushing of the coup.

Khanh was reported to be in the Nhahtrang area, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, early Saturday. Later in the day, he was said to have inspected army oper-

4 More Air Force Cadets Quit Corps

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI)—Four more cadets resigned in the Air Force Academy cribbing scandal Saturday, bringing to 109 the number who have quit the school since the cheating was disclosed a month ago.

Maj. Gen. Robert Warren, academy superintendent, recommended the four cadets who resigned Saturday be given honorable discharges.

The four, all unidentified, were convicted by a cadet honor committee of failing to report that cheating was going on at the academy.

The 105 cadets who resigned earlier were convicted either of stealing, using or selling stolen examination papers.

The academy's honor code requires that cadets report cheating if they learn it is going on.

General Warren said the cadet committee's report Saturday ended investigation of the cribbing scandal although a study still was being made by another group appointed by Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert.

Joan Merriam Smith's husband revealed Saturday that the famed Long Beach aviatrix had planned to try for a new light-plane altitude record within 30 days and said he wants to make the record try in her place as a memorial.

At the same time, Lt. Cmdr. Marvin (Jack) Smith Jr. angrily denied reports that Joan had lost her flying nerve before her fatal crash near Big Pines Wednesday.

Smith reacted indignantly to assertions by William H. Eytchison, 32, who was with Joan when her round-the-world plane crashed last Jan. 9, that the incident had "left her nervous."

"Nonsense," Smith snapped. "Joan was a professional. To say she lost her nerve is ridiculous. I flew with her several times after the Apache went down and she gave no signs of it."

Smith said Joan had tentatively planned to use the same plane in which she died for the record attempt.

CACHE OF RUSS, CHINESE WEAPONS CAPTURED

Eighty Tons of Viet Cong Arms, Supplies Seized

TUY HOA, Viet Nam (AP) By far the biggest haul of Communist weapons for the Viet Cong was uncovered Saturday near a remote cove where a large mystery vessel was sighted and sunk earlier in the week. Officials estimated 80 tons of armaments — much of it Russian and Chinese—had fallen into government hands.

The weapons, ammunition and medical supplies, including whole blood, apparently had been shipped along the coast from Communist North Viet Nam to equip Red guerrillas fighting in the south, U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said.

"We thought the supply routes were through Laos and Cambodia, but look at this lot," said Col. Theodore Mataxis of Seattle, Wash., a senior adviser. "They could easily be arming a new division to launch against us up here."

The material was found in the hull of the sunken vessel and in caches on the beaches of a cove on Vung Ro Bay here, 240 miles northeast of Saigon and about 50 miles south of Nha Trang, site of a major U.S. military installation.

A routine helicopter patrol uncovered the cache Tuesday. Flying over the bay, the helicopter crew sighted what looked like a drifting island. Then, heavy fire came up from the island. It turned out to be a well-camouflaged ship, about 400 feet long. South Vietnamese fighter-bombers were called in and sank the vessel.

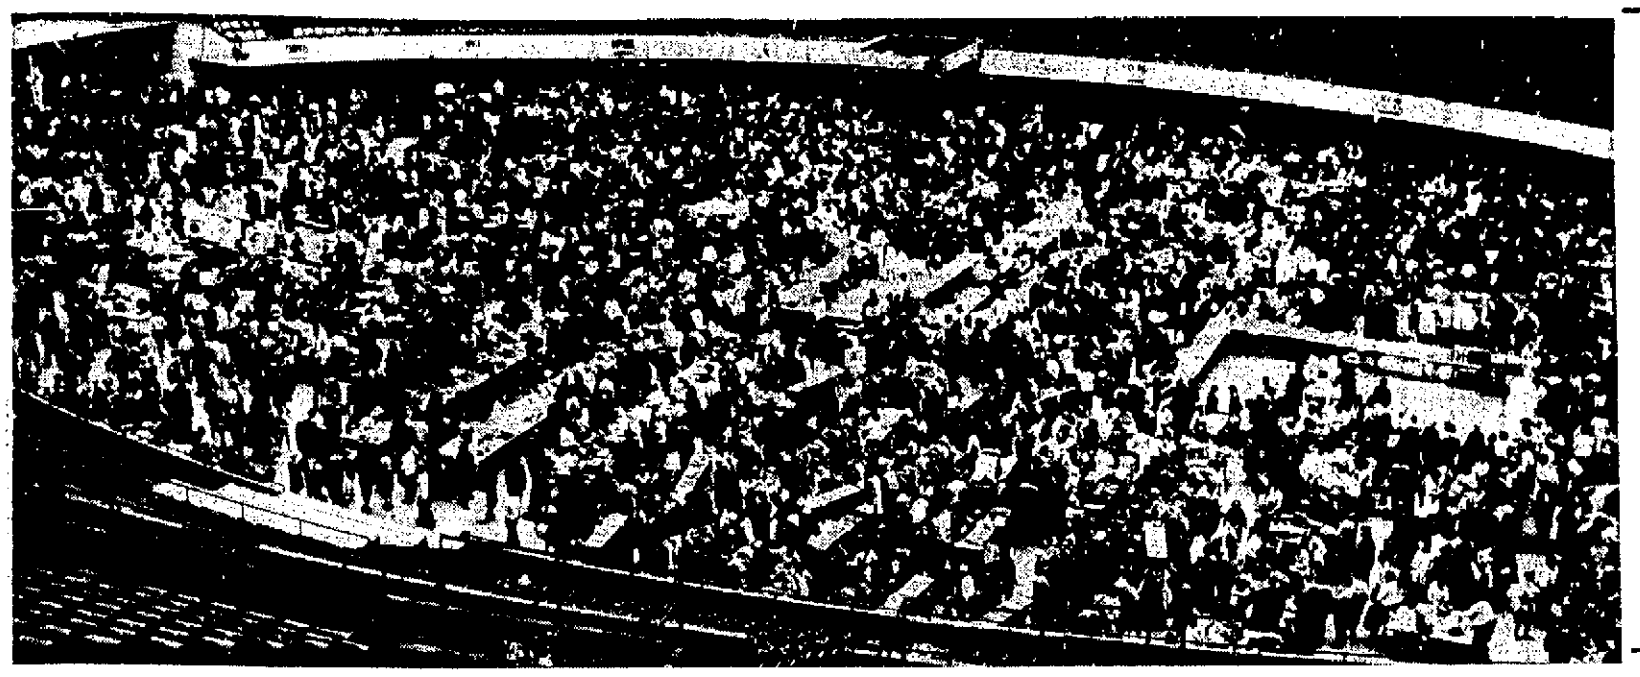

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh personally ordered troops into the area. After heavy fighting, they took over the cove and beach area Friday, when some of the armaments were found.

A captured Communist guerrilla said the ship had made six trips to bays along Viet Nam's central coast, dropping off supplies.

Then, on Saturday, the South Vietnamese uncovered more caches. One area, said an official, was "literally covered with weapons, six deep."

The haul included 1,000 Russian-made carbines, several hundred Russian submachine guns and light machine guns, and Chinese burp guns. All had been

1966 Crucial Year for State GOP

In a little over 15 months the candidates for governor will be chosen in the June primary election in California. It is a crucial 15 months for the Republican party. It has a good chance of electing a governor—providing Republicans combine their forces and discontinue the bickering that caused them to lose in 1958 and 1962. If they do not combine their support, they will again bring about a Democratic victory, regardless of the candidate.

* * * *

The California Poll taken last month shows either Kuchel or Christopher would win over Brown. Kuchel received 74% of the Republican support compared with 73% for Christopher. It showed 33% of Democrats favored Kuchel and 27% for Christopher in a contest with Brown. Reagan, Shell and Rafferty trailed considerably.

There is strong opposition to Kuchel by many Republicans because he refused to support Goldwater—and generally votes for liberal programs. There is less opposition to Christopher from either right or left-wing voters because he is not looked upon as belonging to either wing. He is a long-time successful businessman—ex-mayor of San Francisco and a stalwart party worker.

From a realistic viewpoint, Kuchel would be in much the same position—if he became a candidate for governor—as was Knowland in 1958. He would be giving up the Senate seat at a time when the Republicans need that seat in the Senate. He would have the antagonism of the right-wing Republicans—and have more of an effect of splitting party harmony than would Christopher. Kuchel's Senate term runs to 1968 when there is good reasn to believe he could again be easily re-elected.

Ronald Reagan has made himself a popular GOP possibility. But he has not had administrative experience. It is probable the voters would not give the same support to him they gave to Murphy. The Hollywood glamour and name may not be as effective for another. Reagan is also viewed as an ultra-conservative. This, unfortunately, would drive away many Democratic votes. Without a large share of that party vote, no Republican can be elected with the registration 60-40 in favor of the Democratic party.

* * * *

As of this time, the poll shows only Kuchel and Christopher have a chance of defeating Brown in the November 1966 final election. It would therefore seem reasonable that these two most popular candidates combine their forces to continue Kuchel in the Senate—and to elect Christopher as governor.

Christopher does not have glamour or a record of controversy. He is not a dynamic speaker. Nor does he offer dynamic programs. But he does have a record of stability, courage and integrity. In this period of violent right and left-wing controversies it could be the voters of California would welcome a man with such qualifications.

There will be many changes in public opinion during the next 15 months. There is a split among the Democrats as well as the Republicans. But if the latter hope to regain control of their state government, they must discontinue feuding among themselves. They should accept the fact that Kuchel is a Republican, even though many feel he is too liberal. But he is certainly better than anyone the liberal Democrats would provide to replace him. He can probably remain in the Senate for many years if he wishes. Christopher has a good chance of being elected if the GOP forces combine for the good of the party and set out to win, rather than to again divide the party.—L.A.C.

12TH IN MERCHANT MARINE; A RECORD

L.B. Man One in Family of 11 in War II Forces

By MARY NEISWENDER

World War II—and eleven stars in a field of white—is mighty fresh in the memory of Joseph Van Coutren of Long Beach.

He was one of those blue stars.

And, as the United States ended up victorious—so did the Van Coutrens.

None of the blue stars turned to gold.

Van Coutren, a bartender of 2357 Delta Ave., claims his family holds the record—or at least shares the honor—of having the largest number of members serving in the nation's armed forces during World War II.

* * * *

THE VETERANS Administration agrees.

The two families sharing the honor are the Leo Van Coutrens of El Paso, Tex., with eight sons and three daughters, and the eleven sons of Mrs. Frances Evans Dyke of Chicago.

But the Van Coutrens add one more: a 12th member—Leo — was in the merchant marine.

"Leo was carrying supplies and ammunition to the fighting areas and getting shot at and torpedoed. We consider him fighting for his country, too," the Long Beach man says.

But the Veterans Administration—in their search for the biggest military family—rule out the merchant mariner. They point out that although members underwent bombing, surface and submarine attack, it was not a branch of the armed forces.

Three Van Coutren brothers, Vincent, who retired after 39 years in the Navy, John and Paul all served together in the crew of the heavy cruiser Louisville. They were separated however after the five Sullivan brothers were lost aboard the cruiser Juneau in the Solomon Islands in 1942.

Three other Van Coutrens, Cyril, Victor and Joseph, also served in the Navy.

Three sisters, Rita, Adine and Helen, served in the Women's Army Corps; a brother, James, was a Marine, and another, Thomas, served in the Army.

"We all got back without a scratch," Van Coutren recalls. "Only Tom came back 'different'. He stutters slightly."

Tom, now a St. Louis, Mo., florist, fought through the Philippine campaign to serve as honor guard for Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he returned to the Islands.

* * * *

PARENTS of the fighting family—now in their 80s—attribute the return of their children as the answer to their prayers.

"But it was just as hard for me—waiting and praying for 12—as it was for a mother with only one in the service," the 80-year-old mother claims.

But the Van Coutren and Dyke family record—although tops for one war—falls short of family service records of previous fighting, the VA says.

For example, they point out, Jacob Brawler's 22 sons are reported to have fought beside him during the Revolutionary War in the South Carolina Militia.

Only one survived.

Six Missing Off Costeau's Oceanic Lab

MARSEILLE (AP) — Six men apparently forced off sea researcher Jacques Cousteau's floating Mediterranean island by fire were missing Saturday night in heavy seas.

Maritime sources said a French ship reached the structure, 125 miles off the French Riviera, and found no signs of life. The 225-ton island bore traces of fire and its two lifeboats were gone.

Cousteau, a pioneer underwater explorer, headed for the scene in his research vessel Calypso.

* * * *

THE FOUR scientists and two crewmen on the research station were last heard from Friday night when they radioed a report of fire.

A tubular structure 220 feet tall and 11 feet in diameter, the island floats vertically with only 50 feet protruding from the water. On the top end is a helicopter landing platform. It is anchored to the bottom of the sea with a 7,000-foot nylon line.

The floating island was built in Nice and towed to its present position about a year ago for underwater studies.

'Radio Priest' Fr. Coughlin May Retire

DETROIT (AP) — The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, controversial "radio priest" of the 1930s, reportedly is planning to retire at 72 as pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower in suburban Royal Oak.

At one time his critics accused him of having anti-Semitic sentiments and of supporting Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany and the facist Italy of Benito Mussolini.

One of Fr. Coughlin's assistants, the Rev. Robert Zindler, said he could neither confirm nor deny the retirement report.

"He talked about it (retirement) from time to time, but we really don't know," Fr. Zindler said.

Fr. Couglin was reported out of the city and could not be reached.

American Doomed in Syria

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A military court in Syria Saturday night sentenced a naturalized American citizen to death on charges of spying for the United States and Israel, the government-controlled radio in Damascus reported.

The American's cousin, a Syrian army major, also was sentenced to death on the same charges. The U.S. Embassy in Damascus was implicated in the spy charges.

The sentences of Farhan Attassi, the American, and Maj. Moeen Hamimi must be approved by Syrian Premier Amin Hafez before they can be carried out.

ATTASSI'S American wife and their two children were reported to be in Damascus when the sentences were announced.

Testimony broadcast by Damascus Radio said Attassi, who holds both American and Syrian passports, had been promised large sums of money for intelligence purposes.

The government claimed the source of the money was Walter S. Snowdon, the second secretary of the U.S. Embassy in Damascus.

L.A.C. Says:

1966 Crucial Year for State GOP

In a little over 15 months the candidates for governor will be chosen in the June primary election in California. It is a crucial 15 months for the Republican party. It has a good chance of electing a governor —providing Republicans combine their forces and discontinue the bickering that caused them to lose in 1958 and 1962. If they do not combine their support, they will again bring about a Democratic victory, regardless of the candidate.

The California Poll taken last month shows either Kuchel or Christopher would win over Brown. Kuchel received 74% of the Republican support compared with 73% for Christopher. It showed 33% of Democrats favored Kuchel and 27% for Christopher in a contest with Brown. Reagan, Shell and Rafferty trailed considerably.

There is strong opposition to Kuchel by many Republicans because he refused to support Goldwater —and generally votes for liberal programs. There is less opposition to Christopher from either right or left-wing voters because he is not looked upon as belonging to either wing. He is a long-time successful businessman—ex-mayor of San Francisco and a stalwart party worker.

From a realistic viewpoint, Kuchel would be in much the same position—if he became a candidate for governor—as was Knowland in 1958. He would be giving up the Senate seat at a time when the Republicans need that seat in the Senate. He would have the antagonism of the right-wing Republicans—and have more of an effect of splitting party harmony than would Christopher. Kuchel's Senate term runs to 1968 when there is good reasn to believe he could again be easily re-elected.

Ronald Reagan has made himself a popular GOP possibility. But he has not had administrative experience. It is probable the voters would not give the same support to him they gave to Murphy. The Hollywood glamour and name may not be as effective for another. Reagan is also viewed as an ultra-conservative. This, unfortunately, would drive away many Democratic votes. Without a large share of that party vote, no Republican can be elected with the registration 60-40 in favor of the Democratic party.

As of this time, the poll shows only Kuchel and Christopher have a chance of defeating Brown in the November 1966 final election. It would therefore seem reasonable that these two most popular candidates combine their forces to continue Kuchel in the Senate —and to elect Christopher as governor.

Christopher does not have glamour or a record of controversy. He is not a dynamic speaker. Nor does he offer dynamic programs. But he does have a record of stability, courage and integrity. In this period of violent right and left-wing controversies it could be the voters of California would welcome a man with such qualifications.

There will be many changes in public opinion during the next 15 months. There is a split among the Democrats as well as the Republicans. But if the latter hope to regain control of their state government, they must discontinue feuding among themselves. They should accept the fact that Kuchel is a Republican, even though many feel he is too liberal. But he is certainly better than anyone the liberal Democrats would provide to replace him. He can probably remain in the Senate for many years if he wishes. Christopher has a good chance of being elected if the GOP forces combine for the good of the party and set out to win, rather than to again divide the party.—L.A.C.

12TH IN MERCHANT MARINE; A RECORD

L.B. Man One in Family of 11 in War II Forces

By MARY NEISWENDER

World War II—and eleven stars in a field of white—is mighty fresh in the memory of Joseph Van Coutren of Long Beach.

He was one of those blue stars.

And, as the United States ended up victorious—so did the Van Coutrens.

None of the blue stars turned to gold.

Van Coutren, a bartender of 2357 Delta Ave., claims his family holds the record—or at least shares the honor—of having the largest number of members serving in the nation's armed forces during World War II.

* * * *

THE VETERANS Administration agrees.

The two families sharing the honor are the Leo Van Coutrens of El Paso, Tex., with eight sons and three daughters, and the eleven sons of Mrs. Frances Evans Dyke of Chicago.

But the Van Coutrens add one more: a 12th member—Leo — was in the merchant marine.

"Leo was carrying supplies and ammunition to the fighting areas and getting shot at and torpedoed. We consider him fighting for his country, too," the Long Beach man says.

But the Veterans Administration—in their search for the biggest military family —rule out the merchant mariner. They point out that although members underwent bombing, surface and submarine attack, it was not a branch of the armed forces.

Three Van Coutren brothers, Vincent, who retired after 39 years in the Navy, John and Paul all served together in the crew of the heavy cruiser Louisville. They were separated however after the five Sullivan brothers were lost aboard the cruiser Juneau in the Solomon Islands in 1942.

JOSEPH VAN COUTREN... One of 11 Stars

Three other Van Coutrens, Cyril, Victor and Joseph, also served in the Navy.

Three sisters, Rita, Adine and Helen, served in the Women's Army Corps; a brother, James, was a Marine, and another, Thomas, served in the Army.

"We all got back without a scratch," Van Coutren recalls. "Only Tom came back 'different'. He stutters slightly."

Tom, now a St. Louis, Mo., florist, fought through the Philippine campaign to serve as honor guard for Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he returned to the Islands.

* * * *

PARENTS of the fighting family—now in their 80s—attribute the return of their children as the answer to their prayers.

"But it was just as hard for me — waiting and praying for 12—as it was for a mother with only one in the service," the 80-year-old mother claims.

But the Van Coutren and Dyke family record—although tops for one war—falls short of family service records of previous fighting, the VA says.

For example, they point out, Jacob Brawler's 22 sons are reported to have fought beside him during the Revolutionary War in the South Carolina Militia.

Only one survived.

Six Missing Off Costeau's Oceanic Lab

MARSEILLE (AP) — Six men apparently forced off sea researcher Jacques Cousteau's floating Mediterranean island by fire were missing Saturday night in heavy seas.

Maritime sources said a French ship reached the structure, 125 miles off the French Riviera, and found no signs of life. The 225-ton island bore traces of fire and its two lifeboats were gone.

Cousteau, a pioneer underwater explorer, headed for the scene in his research vessel Calypso.

* * * *

THE FOUR scientists and two crewmen on the research station were last heard from Friday night when they radioed a report of fire.

A tubular structure 220 feet tall and 11 feet in diameter, the island floats vertically with only 50 feet protruding from the water. On the top end is a helicopter landing platform. It is anchored to the bottom of the sea with a 7,000-foot nylon line.

The floating island was built in Nice and towed to its present position about a year ago for underwater studies.

RED 'SLAVE LABOR' PROTESTED

Pickets Charge Lakewood Store Sells Soviet Produce

Flags, placards and a coffin were major props Saturday for a five-hour demonstration against Cal Stores, 2500 E. Carson St.

Youthful pickets of the Committee to Stop Communist Slave Labor Imports marched at every entrance to the store's sprawling parking lot.

At the east entrance, the college-age group gathered around a coffin. They proudly displayed several American Flags.

They distributed pamphlets to passersby. They read: "Support the Viet Cong. Buy your Communist-made goods at Cal Stores."

Their placards read "USSR products sold here," and "Down With Communist Imports," and "Killed in Action —Correction: Killed Buy (sic) People Who Buy Communist Imports."

• • • •

LAKEWOOD Sheriff's deputies said there was no violation of the law as far as they observed.

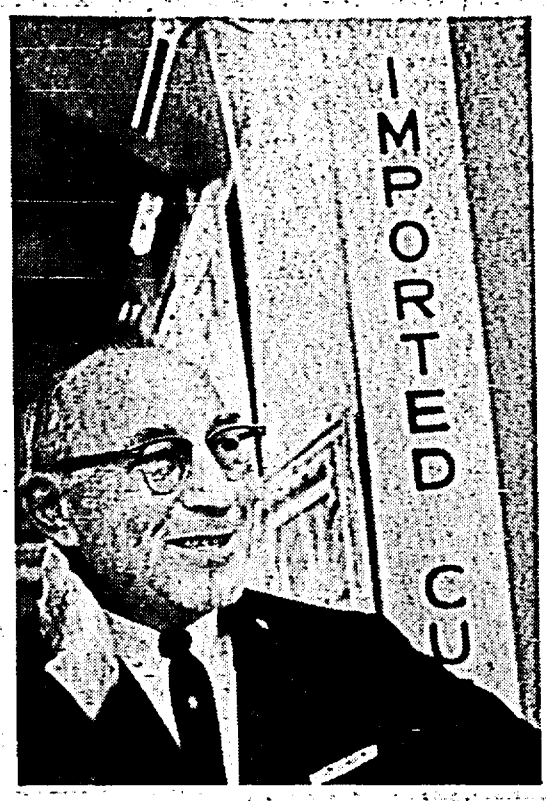

Spokesman for the demonstrators, Jeff Finley, 21, a Long Beach State College student, said "about six or seven" members were from LBSC, "three are from Long Beach City College."

One of the demonstrators was George King Jr., who was arrested in 1963 by FBI agents for attempting to sell machine guns to the California Rangers, a secret guerilla outfit.

King, 31, of Long Beach, is a former chapter leader of the John Birch Society in Belmont Shore, and was a member of Signal Hill American Legion Post 490 before its charter was revoked for engaging in anti-Jewish and anti-Negro activities.

• • • •

FINLEY said that King wasn't one of the "about 25" members of his committee. "He isn't on the list. He just came out to help us," Finley said.

DECLINED TO 'NEGOTIATE'

Cal Stores' Manager Jack Hoffman refused to discuss demonstrators' demands with committee. He said he was faced with the dilemma of following President Johnson's wishes on "the balance of dollars, or the dictates of some group like this."

Finley said that he and several others entered the store several times to "negotiate" with store manager, Jack Hoffman.

Finley said the purpose of the attempted negotiations was to stop Cal Stores from reordering cameras made in East Germany, lamps made in Czechoslovakia and glassware made in Yugoslavia.

"He refused to talk with us," Finley said. "He said he would talk to an individual, but not to a committee."

• • • •

HOFFMAN, 51, told The Independent, Press-Telegram: "I really don't understand all this. Many of us here are combat veterans. I saw action in World War II in Europe. We think we are loyal Americans, but those kids out there don't."

He said, "There is no one with a gun in this store that forces anyone to buy anything. People can buy what they want. I follow the will of my country — I believe in my government — and support the principle of maintaining the balance of the dollar. But, then you get picketed by some group like this."

• • • •

AMONG persons who called The Independent, Press-Telegram to ask what was going on, Mrs. Viola Hubbard, of 6665 Long Beach Blvd., called to complain bitterly.

She identfied herself as an American Legion Auxiliary commander, and said she saw the youths drag the Flag in the dust and display it improperly. "They shouldn't be allowed to have them in the streets," she said.

Mrs. Hubbard said, "I stopped and really gave them what for. But those poor little college students—what in heck can you do?"

Lakewood sheriff's deputies said they didn't observe the Flag violations. They said an investigation was under way on the possibility of property violations, however.

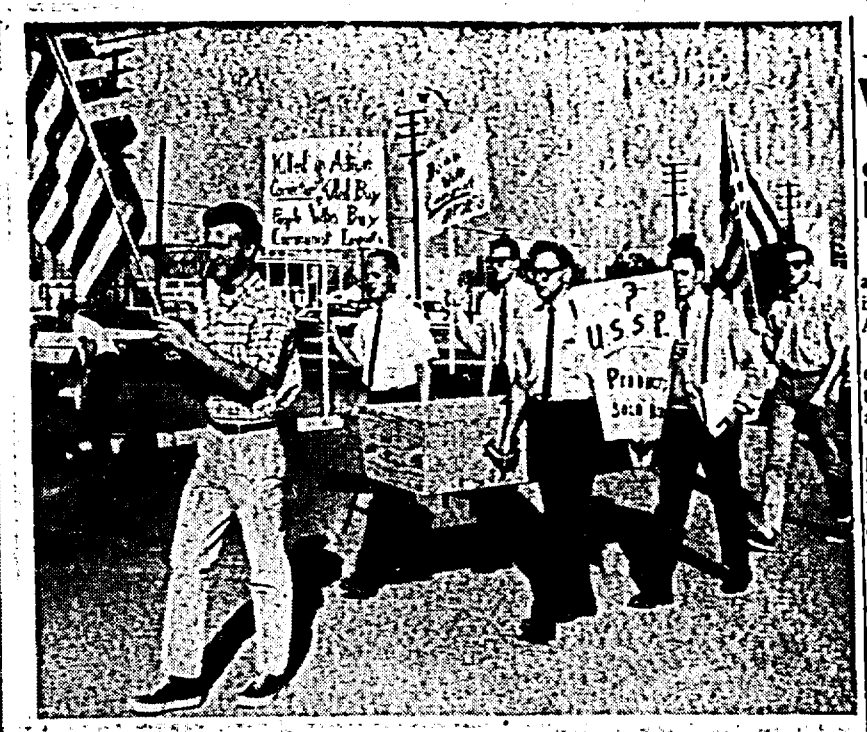

• • • •

A DEPUTY reported one member of the group said they would be back next Saturday to demonstrate again.

King, however, was overheard to say "We've got lots of other stores to get to."

Saturday's demonstration began a few minutes after 11 a.m., and ended about 3:30 p.m., when most of the demonstrators piled their posters and placards in a large panel truck which bore the name and insigne of Mercedes-Benz (West German automobile manufacturers).

Throughout the day, passersby stopped to ask the picketers what it was all about. Some were sympathetic, many were openly hostile.

PICKETERS MARCH WITH COFFIN

Six of the "about 25" demonstrators who paraded at entrances to Cal Stores' parking lot Saturday display placards deploring "Communist Imports" and the coffin which, with the American Flags, they used to symbolize their protest. In center, carrying "Down With Communist Imports" placard is group spokesman, Jeff Finley, 21.

Wedding Party in 7 Crash Dead

BAKER (UPI) Seven persons, including a young man and woman on their way to be married, were killed Saturday in a flaming head-on collision of two cars on the main Los Angeles-Las Vegas highway, U.S. 91.

Some of the dead were ejected from the cars. Those trapped inside were mangled and badly burned.

San Bernardino County Deputy Coroner Edward T. Doyle identified the dead as Leroy Cantrell, 66, of Pasadena; his wife, Zula Pearle, 62; their son, Ray, 21, and Ray's fiancee, Kathleen Alice Johnson, 18, of Pasadena, the occupants of one car.

• • • •

THE ELDER Cantrells were hurled from the car while the young couple was trapped in the rear seat. Miss Johnson's bridal veil and headpiece were still clutched in her hands when her body was removed from the wreckage.

In the second car, which the California Highway Patrol said had jumped the center divider of the highway and collided with the eastbound vehicle, were three Las Vegas youths. They were identified as Lloyd Harrison Cameron, Joseph Michael Kennett and Patrick Michael Scott.

Scott's body was burned beyond recognition. Doyle announced the identification after he learned from Las Vegas police that he had left the Nevada city in company with Cameron and Kennett.

Doyle said the car that was on the wrong side of the highway apparently had been traveling at a high rate of speed.

The strip of highway where the accident took place is noted for its high-speed travel. It was along this strip that British actress Belinda Lee, 25, was killed March 13, 1961, in a one-car, 100-mile-an-hour accident.

Technician Suffers Radiation Exposure

CHICAGO (AP)—The University of Chicago medical center said Saturday there was no change in the condition of Robert Carpenter, a technician being treated for radiation exposure.

Carpenter, 42, of Rockford, Ill., was brought to the hospital Thursday after he was accidentally exposed to radiation from an electronic linear accelerator at the Midwest Radiation Center, Rockford, where he is employed.

RED 'SLAVE LABOR' PROTESTED

Pickets Charge Lakewood Store Sells Soviet Produce

Flage, placards and a coffin were major props Saturday for a five-hour demonstration against Cal Stores, 2500 E. Carson St.

Youthful pickets of the Committee to Stop Communist Slave Labor Imports marched at every entrance to the store's sprawling parking lot.

At the east entrance, the college-age group gathered around a coffin. They proudly displayed several American Flags.

They distributed pamphlets to passersby. They read: "Support the Viet Cong. Buy your Communist-made goods at Cal Stores."

Their placards read "USSR products sold here," and "Down With Communist Imports," and "Killed in Action —Correction: Killed Buy (sic) People Who Buy Communist Imports."

* * * *

LAKEWOOD Sheriff's deputies said there was no violation of the law as far as they observed.

Spokesman for the demonstrators, Jeff Finley, 21, a Long Beach State College student, said "about six or seven" members were from LBSC, "three are from Long Beach City College."

One of the demonstrators was George King Jr., who was arrested in 1963 by FBI agents for attempting to sell machine guns to the California Rangers, a secret guerrilla outfit.

King, 31, of Long Beach, is a former chapter leader of the John Birch Society in Belmont Shore, and was a member of Signal Hill American Legion Post 490 before its charter was revoked for engaging in anti-Jewish and anti-Negro activities.

* * * *

FINLEY said that King wasn't one of the "about 25" members of his committee. "He isn't on the list. He just came out to help us," Finley said.

DECLINED TO 'NEGOTIATE'

Cal Stores' Manager Jack Hoffman refused to discuss demonstrators' demands with committee. He said he was faced with the dilemma of following President Johnson's wishes on "the balance of dollars, or the dictates of some group like this."

Finley said that he and several others entered the store several times to "negotiate" with store manager, Jack Hoffman.

Finley said the purpose of the attempted negotiations was to stop Cal Stores from reordering cameras made in East Germany, lamps made in Czechoslovakia and glassware made in Yugoslavia.

"He refused to talk with us," Finley said. "He said he would talk to an individual, but not to a committee."

* * * *

HOFFMAN, 51, told The Independent, Press-Telegram:

"I really don't understand all this. Many of us here are combat veterans. I saw action in World War II in Europe. We think we are loyal Americans, but those kids out there don't."

He said, "There is no one with a gun in this store that forces anyone to buy anything. People can buy what they want. I follow the will of my country — I believe in my government — and support the principle of maintaining the balance of the dollar. But, then you get pickeled by some group like this."

* * * *

AMONG persons who called The Independent, Press-Telegram to ask what was going on, Mrs. Viola Hubbard, of 6665 Long Beach Blvd., called to complain bitterly.

She identfied herself as an American Legion Auxiliary commander, and said she saw the youths drag the Flag in the dust and display it improperly. "They shouldn't be allowed to have them in the streets," she said.

Mrs. Hubbard said, "I stopped and really gave them what for. But those poor little college students—what in heck can you do?"

Lakewood sheriff's deputies said they didn't observe the Flag violations. They said an investigation was under way on the possibility of property violations, however.

* * * *

A DEPUTY reported one member of the group said they would be back next Saturday to demonstrate again.

King, however, was overheard to say "We've got lots of other stores to get to."

Saturday's demonstration began a few minutes after 11 a.m., and ended about 3:30 p.m., when most of the demonstrators piled their posters and placards in a large panel truck which bore the name and insigne of Mercedes-Benz (West German automobile manufacturers).

Throughout the day, passersby stopped to ask the picketers what it was all about. Some were sympathetic, many were openly hostile.

PICKETERS MARCH WITH COFFIN

Six of the "about 25" demonstrators who paraded at entrances to Cal Stores' parking lot Saturday display placards deploring "Communist Imports" and the coffin which, with the American Flags, they used to symbolize their protest. In center, carrying "Down With Communist Imports" placard is group spokesman, Jeff Finley, 21.

Aide in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Michael V. Forrestal, White House aide of Sout Viet Nam, arrived Saturday for an unofficial visit of three days. He has been on a tour of Indonesia, Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Wedding Party in 7 Crash Dead

BAKER (UPI) Seven persons, including a young man and woman on their way to be married, were killed Saturday in a flaming head-on collision of two cars on the main Los Angeles-Las Vegas highway, U.S. 91.

Some of the dead were ejected from the cars. Those trapped inside were mangled and badly burned.

San Bernardino County Deputy Coroner Edward T. Doyle identified the dead as Leroy Cantrell, 66, of Pasadena; his wife, Zula Pearle, 62; their son, Ray, 21, and Ray's fiancee, Kathleen Alice Johnson, 18, of Pasadena, the occupants of one car.

* * * *

THE ELDER Cantrells were hurled from the car while the young couple was trapped in the rear seat. Miss Johnson's bridal veil and headpiece were still clutched in her hands when her body was removed from the wreckage.

In the second car, which the California Highway Patrol said had jumped the center divider of the highway and collided with the eastbound vehicle, were three Las Vegas youths. They were identified as Lloyd Harrison Cameron, Joseph Michael Kennett and Patrick Michael Scott.

Scott's body was burned beyond recognition. Doyle announced the identification after he learned from Las Vegas police that he had left the Nevada city in company with Cameron and Kennett. Doyle said the car that was on the wrong side of the highway apparently had been traveling at a high rate of speed.

The strip of highway where the accident took place is noted for its high-speed travel. It was along this strip that British actress Belinda Lee, 25, was killed March 13, 1961, in a one-car, 100-mile-an-hour accident.

Technician Suffers Radiation Exposure

CHICAGO (AP)—The University of Chicago medical center said Saturday there was no change in the condition of Robert Carpenter, a technician being treated for radiation exposure.

Carpenter, 42, of Rockford, Ill., was brought to the hospital Thursday after he was accidentally exposed to radiation from an electronic linear accelerator at the Midwest Radiation Center, Rockford, where he is employed.

Latin Police Kill Peace Corpsman

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A U.S. Peace Corpsman was shot to death and a comrade seriously wounded by police who mistook them for Communist terrorists Friday night.

RUPLEY

Shot through the heart when he stepped from his jeep with his hands up was Joseph R. Rupley, 24, of Orinda, Calif., the driver who was on the Peace Corps staff in Venezuela.

Peace Corps volunteer David Glover, 25, of Grosse Ile, Mich., also stepped from the jeep with his hands raised and was shot in the stomach. He underwent surgery in a Caracas hospital and his condition was reported satisfactory.

Two other Peace Corps volunteers in the back seat of the jeep established their identities and police took the victims to a hospital. The other two were Ronald Bean of Fairfield, Maine, and Donald Carluccio of Hoboken, N.J.

10 Known Dead in Avalanche

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—The toll of known dead rose to 10 Saturday from a glacial avalanche which smashed the wilderness mining camp of the Granduc Company. Hope receded for the 17 still missing.

Alaska state police and the U.S. Coast Guard here reported two bodies were recovered Friday and eight more Saturday.

A blizzard struck the isolated copper mining camp near the Alaska-Canada border Saturday, hampering rescue operations.

Jet Loss Over Laos Unconfirmed

TOKYO (AP)—Four U.S. F101 jets on bombing missions over Communist Pathet Lao areas of Laos were shot down Friday, Radio Peking claimed Saturday, quoting the Pathet Lao.

The Defense Department in Washington confirmed that a U.S. Air Force pilot is missing on a flight from a base in South Viet Nam, but said it had no information on the Communist claim that four F101s had been shot down.

Body in Trunk; Suspect Held

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A prominent Tucson chiropractor was held for investigation Saturday after police found the body of a man in the trunk of his car.

Detective Chief Tom Rickel said Dr. George Tegerdine, 47, calmly admitted shotgunning Wilbur Hanson, 45, to death and stuffing his body into the trunk of his car. Rickel said the motive apparently was that Tegerdine, a father of four children, had been seeing Hanson's estranged wife, Anne, about 40.

Viet Leader Khanh Seen as Through

ations near Pleiku, 265 miles to the north.

Gen. Thi denied reports that Chief of State Phan Khac Suu had relieved Khanh of his post and replaced him with Gen. Thieu.

"Any replacement must be made with the agreement of the Armed Forces Council," Thi said in answer to a question.

Thi also said that Gen. Khiem, who was claimed by the rebels as their figurehead chief, still was South Viet Nam's ambassador to Washington.

The new Saigon commander made his remarks at a news conference attended by nine members of the Armed Forces Council Saturday afternoon.

* * * *

THE NEWS conference was held at armed forces headquarters six hours after it was retaken from the rebels.

Thi said the military council would "reserve appropriate punishment" for leaders of the short-lived rebellion—but indicated that clemency would be granted to the troops implicated in the coup.

Heading the list of coup leaders wanted for court-martial were former Brig. Gen. Lam Van Phat and former Col. Phan Ngoc Thao.

It was believed neither Phat nor Thao would receive much mercy if they are caught.

Viet Cong Weapons Captured

wrapped in cosmoline and waterproof cloth.

Scores of tons of ammunition were found for these weapons, some of it made as recently as last year in Chinese factories, according to ordnance experts at the scene.

There was also a selection of sophisticated mines and grenades, and ammunition for a new type of rocket launcher used against tanks.

The large supplies of captured medicines included many cases of penicillin, antimalarial drugs and whole blood produced in Japan late last year.

Four caches had been found up to late Saturday. Troops probing through the hills under the guns of Communist snipers expected to find more.

"These hills are just one big supply factory," said Mataxis.

The extent of the Communist supply depots shocked U.S. advisers.

"This is just massive," one said.

Russ-Congo Air Link Inaugurated

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—A direct air link between Brazzaville and Moscow was inaugurated Saturday with the landing here of an Ilyushin-18 transport after a 13-hour flight from Russia.

The four-engine plane carried 70 passengers. It made landings at Cairo and Khartoum en route. Officials announced it was the first in a planned regular schedule but did not say how often the flights would take place.

Galveston Dockers Agree on Contract

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Another obstacle was removed Saturday toward a final settlement of the West Gulf dock strike when the Galveston wharves and the affiliated dock and warehouse workers reached agreement on a four-year contract.

The agreement, scheduled to be signed Tuesday, was smiliar to terms of the 1963 and 1964 contracts. The only changes were in wages and benefits.

tion for the flight and had received an application for the sanction from the group, Smith said.

"I found the application, half filled out, on the back seat of her car at the airport," Smith said.

He said he planned to talk to Rajay Corp., 2602 E. Wardlow Rd., proposed sponsor of the flight, about taking her place.

Smith, a pilot since 1946, holds a commercial license with flight instructor's rating. He has about 2,000 hours flying time in light aircraft.

* * * *

"I WAS always just the co-pilot when I was flying with Joan, though," he said.

Smith also dismissed Eytchison's published statements that Joan had planned a polar world flight in September, with Eytchison along.

"There was some talk about it," he said. "But Joan had about written Eytchison off and had almost forgotten about the whole thing.

"It certainly was not definitely planned."

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—Three Spanish miners were killed and another seriously injured Saturday in a firedamp explosion in a coal mine at Saldes, 15 miles from Barcelona.

Chicken Pie Shop Robbed --$328 Taken

A diminutive gunman robbed Chicken Pie Shop, 737 Pacific Ave., Saturday, and fled with $328 after tossing back a $2 check.

Officer Ron Skaggs said the bandit entered the shop about 7:30 p.m. and handed a note to the cashier, Mrs. Janice James, 27.

The note read, "Hand me all the money." He emphasized his demand with a snub-nosed revolver.

Mrs. James said she gave the man the money and the check, which the 5-foot, 4-inch bandit disdainfully tossed back to her.

The robber, dressed in an olive jacket and blue jeans, ran up the alley behind the shop.

CIVIL AIR PATROL IN SALUTE

Simple Funeral Conducted for Joan Merriam Smith

By MARK CLUTTER

"Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
"And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings...
"And while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
"The high, untrespassed sanctity of space,
"Put out my hand and touched the face of God."

These words from a poem by John Gillespie Magee Jr. summed up the life and death of Long Beach aviatrix Joan Merriam Smith, 28, at her funeral in Dilday Chapel Saturday afternoon.

The simple service was conducted by Chaplain O. E. Kinzler, USN, who quoted the comforting words of Holy Scripture. Many friends wept quietly. There were lavish floral tributes.

At Forest Lawn, Cypress, the Civil Air Patrol flew in formation during the burial service.

Mrs. Smith and a companion, Mrs. Trixie-Ann Schubert, 42, a Los Angeles aviation writer, lost their lives Wednesday when their light plane crashed near the San Gabriel Mountain town of Big Pine. Mass was held Saturday for Mrs. Schubert in St. Francis of Assisi Church in Hollywood.

Mrs. Smith won fame last spring by flying the 1937 route of the ill-fated Amelia Earhart, becoming the first person to solo around the earth at the equator.

She was the wife of Lt. Cmdr. Marvin G. (Jack) Smith Jr., of 5055 Garford St., and the daughter of Mrs. Ann Merriam of Miami, Fla. Mother and husbands suggest contributions to the Amelia Earhart Scholarship Fund, Will Rogers World Airport, Box 99, Oklahoma City.

'Say Ah; Hm! Take Aspirin'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say a young man in a white smock and carrying a stethoscope, examined half a dozen patients for minor ills, checked another in and signed a patient's chart at General Hospital.

This covered some five hours. Then a doctor questioned him—and called police.

Robert King, 19, Beverly Hills, was held Saturday on suspicion of violating the State Business and Professions Code by practicing medicine without a certificate, a misdemeanor.

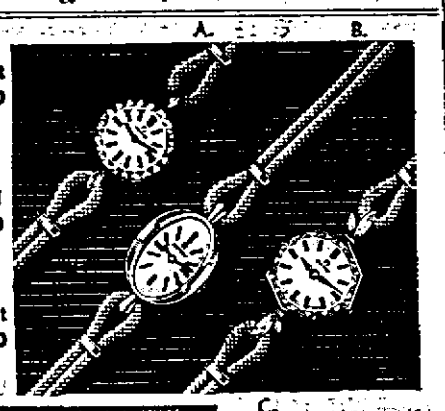

Police quoted King as saying he quit school in his 12th year but studied vocational nursing in a technical school and—

"I always wanted to be a doctor. When I get out of this mess I'm going back to school and study to be one."

ations near Pleiku, 265 miles to the north.

Gen. Thi denied reports that Chief of State Phan Khac Suu had relieved Khanh of his post and replaced him with Gen. Thieu.

"Any replacement must be made with the agreement of the Armed Forces Council," Thi said in answer to a question.

Thi also said that Gen. Khiem, who was claimed by the rebels as their figurehead chief, still was South Viet Nam's ambassador to Washington.

The new Saigon commander made his remarks at a news conference attended by nine members of the Armed Forces Council Saturday afternoon.

* * * *

THE NEWS conference was held at armed forces headquarters six hours after it was retaken from the rebels.

Thi said the military council would "reserve appropriate punishment" for leaders of the short-lived rebellion—but indicated that clemenecy would be granted to the troops implicated in the coup.

Heading the list of coup leaders wanted for court-martial were former Brig. Gen. Lam Van Phat and former Col. Phan Ngoc Thao.

It was believed neither Phat nor Thao would receive much mercy if they are caught.

wrapped in cosmoline and waterproof cloth.

Scores of tons of ammunition were found for these weapons, some of it made as recently as last year in Chinese factories, according to ordnance experts at the scene.

There was also a selection of sophisticated mines and grenades, and ammunition for a new type of rocket launcher used against tanks.

The large supplies of captured medicines included many cases of penicillin, antimalarial drugs and whole blood produced in Japan late last year.

Four caches had been found up to late Saturday. Troops probing through the hills under the guns of Communist snipers expected to find more.

"These hills are just one big supply factory," said Mataxis.

The extent of the Communist supply depots shocked U.S. advisers.

"This is just massive," one said.

Russ-Congo Air Link Inaugurated

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—A direct air link between Brazzaville and Moscow was inaugurated Saturday with the landing here of an Ilyushin-18 transport after a 13-hour flight from Russia.

The four-engine plane carried 70 passengers. It made landings at Cairo and Khartoum en route. Officials announced it was the first in a planned regular schedule but did not say how often the flights would take place.

Galveston Dockers Agree on Contract

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Another obstacle was removed Saturday toward a final settlement of the West Gulf dock strike when the Galveston wharves and the affiliated dock and warehouse workers reached agreement on a four-year contract.

The agreement, scheduled to be signed Tuesday, was similar to terms of the 1963 and 1964 contracts. The only changes were in wages and benefits.

NEWLYWED FORDS

tion for the flight and had received an application for the sanction from the group, Smith said.

"I found the application, half filled out, on the back seat of her car at the airport," Smith said.

He said he planned to talk to Rajay Corp., 2602 E. Wardlow Rd., proposed sponsor of the flight, about taking her place.

Smith, a pilot since 1946, holds a commercial license with flight instructor's rating. He has about 2,000 hours flying time in light aircraft.

* * * *

"I WAS always just the co-pilot when I was flying with Joan, though," he said.

Smith also dismissed Eytchison's published statements that Joan had planned a polar world flight in September, with Eytchison along.

"There was some talk about it," he said. "But Joan had about written Eytchison off and had almost forgotten about the whole thing.

"It certainly was not definitely planned."

Chicken Pie Shop Robbed --$328 Taken

A dimunitive gunman robbed Chicken Pie Shop, 737 Pacific Ave., Saturday, and fled with $328 after tossing back a $2 check.

Officer Ron Skaggs said the bandit entered the shop about 7:30 p.m. and handed a note to the cashier, Mrs. Janice James, 27.

The note read, "Hand me all the money." He emphasized his demand with a snub-nosed revolver.

Mrs. James said she gave the man the money and the check, which the 5-foot, 4-inch bandit disdainfully tossed back to her.

The robber, dressed in an olive jacket and blue jeans, ran up the alley behind the shop.

CIVIL AIR PATROL IN SALUTE

Simple Funeral Conducted for Joan Merriam Smith

By MARK CLUTTER

"Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
"And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings . . .
"And while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
"The high, untrespassed sanctity of space,
"Put out my hand and touched the face of God."

These words from a poem by John Gillespie Magee Jr. summed up the life and death of Long Beach aviatrix Joan Merriam Smith, 28, at her funeral in Dilday Chapel Saturday afternoon.

The simple service was conducted by Chaplain O. E. Kinzler, USN, who quoted the comforting words of Holy Scripture. Many friends wept quietly. There were lavish floral tributes.

At Forest Lawn, Cypress, the Civil Air Patrol flew in formatinn during the burial service.

Mrs. Smith and a companion, Mrs. Trixie-Ann Schubert, 42, a Los Angeles aviation writer, lost their lives Wednesday when their light plane crashed near the San Gabriel Mountain town of Big Pine. Mass was held Saturday for Mrs. Schubert in St. Francis of Assisi Church in Hollywood.

Mrs. Smith won fame last spring by flying the 1937 route of the ill-fated Amelia Earhart, becoming the first person to solo around the earth at the equator.

She was the wife of Lt. Cmdr. Marvin G. (Jack) Smith Jr., of 5055 Garford St., and the daughter of Mrs. Ann Merriam of Miami, Fla. Mother and husbands suggest contributions to the Amelia Earhart Scholarship Fund, Will Rogers World Airport, Box 99, Oklahoma City.

'Say Ah; Hm! Take Aspirin'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say a young man in a white smock and carrying a stethoscope, examined half a dozen patients for minor ills, checked another in and signed a patient's chart at General Hospital.

This covered some five hours. Then a doctor questioned him—and called police.

Robert King, 19, Beverly Hills, was held Saturday on suspicion of violating the State Business and Professions Code by practicing medicine without a certificate, a misdemeanor.

Police quoted King as saying he quit school in his 12th year but studied vocational nursing in a technical school and—

"I always wanted to be a doctor. When I get out of this mess I'm going back to school and study to be one."

Some Folks Go Fishing for Science

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While most American scientists are engrossed in such things as developing nuclear fissionables and combatting diseases, some go fishing.

They are not doing it for fun. Their objective is to provide better game fishing for anglers in the nation's water reservoirs.

The scientists work for the Interior Department, which reports that one-third of all fresh-water fishing is done in man-made reservoirs which now total 13 million acres.

The department said that usually there is a high game fish productivity in newly dammed waters for a few years. Then the fish population declines rapidly.

• • • •

ONE REASON, it said, is that the natural job of the dams—irrigation, navigation, electric power production and flood control—often causes fluctuation of water levels that bring about harmful changes in environmental conditions of fish, especially during spawning seasons.

Hence the reason scientists, who use a variety of techniques, are out to maintain a high level of reservoir fishing for future decades.

They found, for example, that early fish productivity resulted from decaying plant and organic matters which are favorable to the growth of plankton. These microscopic plankton nourish small fish which in turn, nourish the larger ones.

But when the original organic materials die off, fishing slumps. This brings anguished cries from anglers.

• • • •

ONE TECHNIQUE the scientists are employing in their research is a tiny battery-powered submarine.

The submarine, being used primarily in dammed waters along the White River in the Ozark Mountains, can accommodate two scientists. It has a cruising speed of 15 miles per hour. A glass plate bottom permits the researchers to observe the fish in their natural habitat.

Another team of biologists is working at Lewis and Clark Lake on the border of Nebraska and South Dakota. They use a device that automatically collects plankton. Another contraption records water temperature, acidity and the amount of dissolved oxygen present.

The scientists even perform a chore usually left for the wife whose husband has caught his limit—fish scaling. The scales have annual growth rings, much like those of a tree.

• • • •

WATER QUALITY is a key element for good fishing since it must have the right amount and kind of minerals. The scientists measure the water with an electric cable. Charges sent through the water gauge its mineral content.

The researchers also take water samples from various depths and in different seasons. These show the amount of plankton the small fish must have for survival.

They also measure the rate of new water replacing old water. Lake Bull Shoals in the Ozarks has a complete water cycle change every nine days. Lewis and Clark Lake averages a complete change every 12 days.

The data the scientists collect are analyzed for its relationship to the fish population, water management and the hysical and chemical characteristics of reservoirs.

The Interior Department said the findings will provide guidelines for better reservoir management. The scientists themselves claim it is only a matter of time until anglers will have fruitful fishing again and for many many years.

Santa Clara U. Science Building Set

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — The University of Santa Clara announced plans to build a $1.35 million science study center on the campus here.

The new facility will house the departments of chemistry and physics. It will contain laboratories, lecture and library facilities. Construction is scheduled to begin in April.

Labor Chiefs Study Union Power Fights

By NEIL GILBRIDE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Labor moguls are uneasily following every blow in a pair of bare-knuckled power battles that threaten the crowns of two long entrenched fellow union chiefs.

The union bosses on the sidelines are avidly looking for pointers on how Steelworkers President David J. McDonald and the Electrical Workers chief, James B. Carey, defend themselves.

"Even the secure ones are wise this," confides one labor source.

They never know when the lessons might come in handy in their own unions.

In the preliminary bout, the fiery-tempered little Carey has been fending off "dictatorship" and election fraud charges since challenger Paul Jennings entered the ring against him last September.

• • • •

THE PRIZE is the 250,000-member International Union of Electrical Workers.

The main event, which opened less than a month later, features the million-member United Steelworkers of America, with the dapper McDonald in one corner, and the union's blunt secretary-treasurer I. W. Abel in the other.

McDonald and Carey have both headed their AFL-CIO unions for well over a decade.

Both elections are over, but the battles rage on in vote challenges with all four contenders claiming victory.

The federal courts may have to finally referee both fights.

While most other labor leaders are following the unwritten rule of keeping their noses out of another union's business, they can be reported as drawing these sobering lessons from the plight of McDonald and Carey:

—To stay in power, a union president must never lose contact with the rank-and-file members who elected him. "Somehow, McDonald lost touch with his rank and file," one observer said.

—A big name reputation is no longer enough to insure continued power in an increasingly restless labor movement. An aggressive challenger, even though unknown, can quickly parlay simmering rank-and-file grievances into major opposition against an overconfident union president.

—Once seriously divided in a major power struggle, a union is not easily reunified. "It's hard to sew the seams back together again," said one insider. "It's not like a political party after an election."

The two big union contests are bound to be an unofficial topic behind the scenes at the AFL-CIO executive council meeting opening here Monday.

Despite the unwritten rule of silence, a survey of confidential sources in a number of major unions reveals this reaction:

• • • •

OTHER UNION leaders are drawing quite a lesson from the split in the ranks of Carey's union—"There seems no way back to unity."

"Without any question," the troubles of McDonald and Carey have put many other union chieftains "on their mettle ... there is a great demand for information and they are soberly assessing this as quite serious."

McDonald's opposition is "a revolt of the staff and local leadership against tuxedo unionism." Abel charged McDonald spent too much time in a tuxedo hobnobbing socially with steel industry bigwigs.

"With Carey, it's a personality problem. Many of his top aides are shopping around for other jobs — they can't get along with him."

Another source sees both contests as "an itchiness" among second echelon labor leaders who are tired of waiting for their chance at the top job.

Some Folks Go Fishing for Science

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While most American scientists are engrossed in such things as developing nuclear fissionables and combatting diseases, some go fishing.

They are not doing it for fun. Their objective is to provide better game fishing for anglers in the nation's water reservoirs.

The scientists work for the Interior Department, which reports that one-third of all fresh-water fishing is done in man-made reservoirs which now total 13 million acres.

The department said that usually there is a high game fish productivity in newly dammed waters for a few years. Then the fish population declines rapidly.

* * * *

ONE REASON, it said, is that the natural job of the dams—irrigation, navigation, electric power production and flood control—often causes fluctuation of water levels that bring about harmful changes in environmental conditions of fish, especially during spawning seasons.

Hence the reason scientists, who use a variety of techniques, are out to maintain a high level of reservoir fishing for future decades.

They found, for example, that early fish productivity resulted from decaying plant and organic matters which are favorable to the growth of plankton. These microscopic plankton nourish small fish which in turn, nourish the larger ones.

But when the original organic materials die off, fishing slumps. This brings anguished cries from anglers.

* * * *

ONE TECHNIQUE the scientists are employing in their research is a tiny battery-powered submarine.

The submarine, being used primarily in dammed waters along the White River in the Ozark Mountains, can accommodate two scientists. It has a cruising speed of 15 miles per hour. A glass plate bottom permits the researchers to observe the fish in their natural habitat.

Another team of biologists is working at Lewis and Clark Lake on the border of Nebraska and South Dakota. They use a device that automatically collects plankton. Another contraption records water temperature, acidity and the amount of dissolved oxygen present.

The scientists even perform a chore usually left for the wife whose husband has caught his limit—fish scaling. The scales have annual growth rings, much like those of a tree.

* * * *

WATER QUALITY is a key element for good fishing since it must have the right amount and kind of minerals. The scientists measure the water with an electric cable. Charges sent through the water gauge its mineral content.

The researchers also take water samples from various depths and in different seasons. These show the amount of plankton the small fish must have for survival.

They also measure the rate of new water replacing old water. Lake Bull Shoals in the Ozarks has a complete water cycle change every nine days. Lewis and Clark Lake averages a complete change every 12 days.

The data the scientists collect are analyzed for its relationship to the fish population, water management and the hysical and chemical characteristics of reservoirs.

The Interior Department said the findings will provide guidelines for better reservoir management. The scientists themselves claim it is only a matter of time until anglers will have fruitful fishing again and for many many years.

EX-ALL-AMERICA GRIDDER LEADS WESTERN BOMB WING

In Pekingese, SAC Means Go 'Slowly and Cautiously'

By EV HOSKING
I-PT Sunday Editor

When the Chinese warlords and their Russian counterparts think of stepping up the war in Viet Nam, they think of SAC.

To them SAC stands not only for the Strategic Air Command but means proceed Slowly and Cautiously.

Among those they are most concerned with is a man whose name would ring a lot of bells for football fans of the late 1930s, but who otherwise has remained remarkably anonymous.

He's Colonel George Pfeiffer, who looms large in the thinking of the warminded and who is one of the most important persons in the lives of residents of Sourthern California.

• • • • •

IT COULD be said their lives might depend on him.

The colonel isn't exactly an Indian legend . . . although sometimes he is referred to as the Big Chief.

Or the mountain who walks like a man...

Or the mountain who flies like a bird.

The comments aren't critical. As a matter of fact, they're usually uttered with a smattering of awe. For the colonel is quite a man—all six feet, 200 pounds-plus of him.

A former All-America lineman at UCLA, Colonel Pfeiffer is commander of the Strategic Air Command's 22nd Bomb Wing, whose eight-jet bombers fly from March Air Force Base west—about as far west as you care to go.

• • • • •

HIS SPAN of control ranges from his wing of sharp, first-line regulars to some Reserve Recovery Squadrons assigned to Long Beach's 8646 Air Force Reserve Recovery Group which, incidentally, last year was named the top Air Force Reserve unit in the United States.

He heads one of the world's best, fastest and most efficient commuter services—it is always on time. Lack of knowledge of this famed service is probably due to the fact that passengers are strictly limited to very select military riders.

Those vapor trails in the sky heading out to sea over Long Beeach are the only visual signs of this network of the sky.

• • • • •

IT IS A pretty safe bet that the trails are caused by one of the 22nd Bomb Wing's B52 bombers on a practice mission that will end someplace short of presecelcted target—or on a rotation trip to the 22nds reflex base on Guam.

It is not only these flights that worry the Communist world, it is the men behind them and their philosophy.

For Colonel Pfeiffer and his men, peace is their mission—and war would mean they had failed in it.

They feel that they have to be strong, sharp and effective enough to make it suicidal for an enemy ever to start a war.

• • • • •

IT IS FOR this reason that Colonel Pfeiffer runs wing with an iron hand—yet always seems to find plenty of time for his men and their problems.

The colonel keeps as fit and alert as he was during his football days — mainly through the process of being on the alert constantly as the head of a key organization of SAC's fabulous Fifteenth Air Force, which is the cornerstone of the defense of the western United States.

Wherever he goes, home, golf course or on a drive, Pfeiffer never is more than a telephone ring away from his headquarters.

• • • • •

IT IS HIS business to get planes moving when they are needed, and he can do it. If necessary, he can launch aircraft from his home base or reflex sites at the rate of one every seconds.

To accomplish this it is not only a matter of finely tuned machines, it is a very complex problem in personnel management.

Ask the average guy if he would work 72 hours a week for $90 a month and he would look at the questioner as if he were slightly unbalanced, to say the least.

But that is exactly what some of Colonel Pfeiffer's airmen do.

And as far as hours go, Colonel Pfeiffer keeps an even more exacting schedule than his men. And that also explains why he always has time for his men and their problems.

• • • • •

THE WORK week for Colonel Pfeiffer's crew members is 72 hours and longer.

Key men of the organization have telephones wherever they go—on their desks, in their cars, and on their belts they have tiny radio telephones for use when they relax on the base golf course or for some other reason are away from their regular telephones.

The story is, and they stick to it, that, under the 22nd's exacting standards, you are allowed one ring to answer the telephone while on duty and a "relaxed" six rings if home.

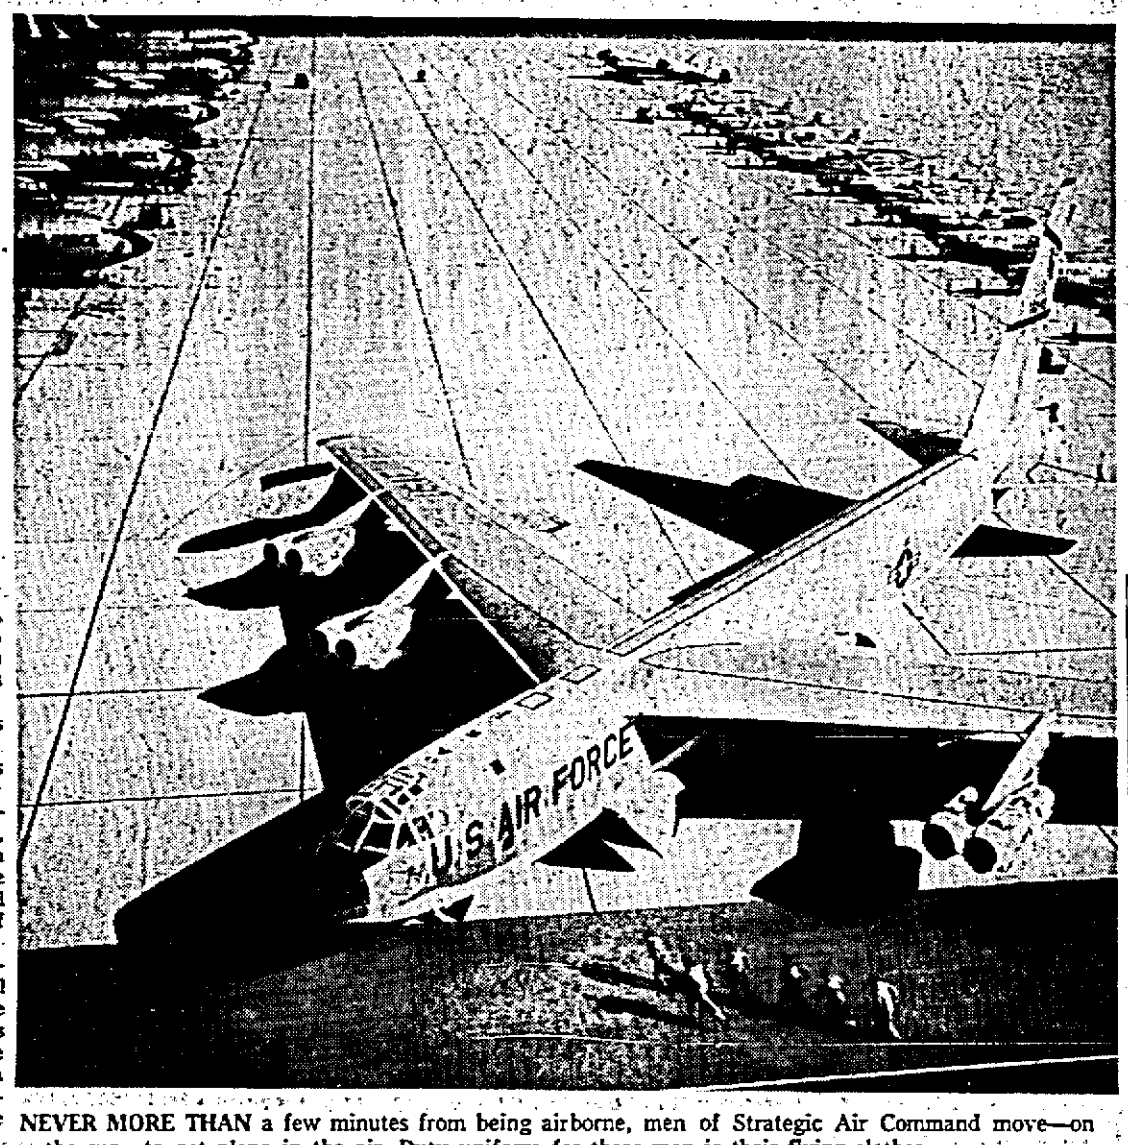

Time means altitude to these men and their bombers, and they aren't about to waste any time or any altitude when it comes time for them to move.

• • • • •

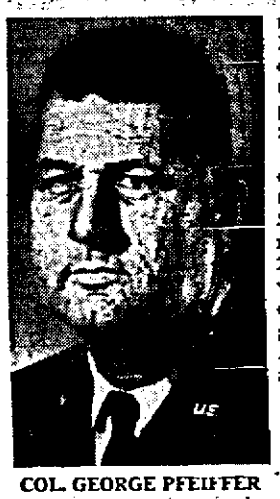

WHILE on duty, men of the 22nd sleep and eat at their aircraft. Their duty uniform is their flying clothes. They know their targets and the mission routes they must fly to reach them.

Crews and aircraft never are more than a few minutes from being airborne.

The wing also maintains the capability of airborne alert procedures. Under this concept, a percentage of the command's heavy bombers remain aloft 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

NEVER MORE THAN a few minutes from being airborne, men of Strategic Air Command move—on the run—to get plane in the air. Duty uniform for these men is their flying clothes.

COL. GEORGE PFEIFFER

This concept assures, in the event of a devastating attack on the United States, survival of a large portion of the retaliatory force.

• • • • •

COLONEL Pfeiffer's 22nd Bomb Wing is part of Fifteenth Air Force, one of the three Strategic Air Command Air Forces in the United States. Fifteenth headquarters is also located at March Air Force Base and the hub of its activities is a complex underground combat operations center.

In this underground facility, a battery of computers constantly analyzes and provides information vital to the 22nd Bomb Wing and its sister units in Fifteenth Air Force.

Although the computers have not replaced the bomber crew in mission planning, the machines do provide invaluable information when needed and on a moment's notice.

• • • • •

BASIS of all this information is the big daddy of all computers—the 465L. The 465L absorbs data from all the global SAC bases at the rate of 3,000 words a minute. In the brief span of 20 seconds, the pertinent information will be transferred to photographic film and then flashed in color on the screen.

Should the enemy accidentally launch a few ICBMs, this will not cause the United States to retaliate in a similar manner. But bombers of the 22nd will be launched along with other SAC bomber fleets on course to preselected targets so that the force can be safely on its way should the attack prove real and not accidental. The President and his advisers would be given time to evaluate the situation.

• • • • •

ALL THIS is pretty grim business for an avid sports fan and a man who enjoys fishing and tinkering with cars. Fishing is his favorite sport—outranking golf only slightly.

"Peace is our profession," he says. "That is SAC's motto and that is what we believe in.

"We feel that if a war starts, SAC and the 2nd Bomb Wing has failed in its mission.

"We have to be strong and effective enough to keep war from starting.

"If we succeed in that, we have completed our mission successfully."

All of which should make Southlanders who are keeping a wary eye on Viet Nam sleep a little more soundly."

Recovery Seen for Separated Siamese Twins

HOUSTON (AP) — Siamese twins separated in an operation this week in Texas Children's Hospital are on their way to recovery, a hospital spokesman said Saturday.

The condition of Kimberly Marie and Karen Marie Webber has stabilized and, "barring unforeseen complications, an uneventful recovery is expected," the spokesman said.

Monitoring equipment which provided a continuous record of both babies' pulse, blood pressure, heart rate and other vital functions since the beginning of the operation last Tuesday has been removed.

In Pekingese, SAC Means Go 'Slowly and Cautiously'

By EV HOSKING
I.PT Sunday Editor

When the Chinese warlords and their Russian counterparts think of stepping up the war in Viet Nam, they think of SAC.

To them SAC stands not only for the Strategic Air Command but means proceed Slowly and Cautiously.

Among those they are most concerned with is a man whose name would ring a lot of bells for football fans of the late 1930s, but who otherwise has remained remarkably anonymous.

He's Colonel George Pfeiffer, who looms large in the thinking of the warminded and who is one of the most important persons in the lives of residents of Sourthern California.

* * * *

IT COULD be said their lives might depend on him.

The colonel isn't exactly an Indian legend . . . although sometimes he is referred to as the Big Chief.

Or the mountain who walks like a man . . .

Or the mountain who flies like a bird.

The comments aren't critical. As a matter of fact, they're usually uttered with a smattering of awe. For the colonel is quite a man—all six feet, 200 pounds-plus of him.

A former All-America lineman at UCLA, Colonel Pfeiffer is commander of the Strategic Air Command's 22nd Bomb Wing, whose eight-jet bombers fly from March Air Force Base west—about as far west as you care to go.

* * * *

HIS SPAN of control ranges from his wing of sharp, first-line regulars to some Reserve Recovery Squadrons assigned to Long Beach's 8646 Air Force Reserve Recovery Group which, incidentally, last year was named the top Air Force Reserve unit in the United States.

He heads one of the world's best, fastest and most efficient commuter services—it is always on time. Lack of knowledge of this famed service is probably due to the fact that passengers are strictly limited to very select military riders.

Those vapor trails in the sky heading out to sea over Long Beeach are the only visual signs of this network of the sky.

* * * *

IT IS A pretty safe bet that the trails are caused by one of the 22nd Bomb Wing's B52 bombers on a practice mission that will end someplace short of preseceleted target—or on a rotation trip to the 22nds reflex base on Guam.

It is not only these flights that worry the Communist world, it is the men behind them and their philosophy.

For Colonel Pfeiffer and his men, peace is their mission—and war would mean they had failed in it.

They feel that they have to be strong, sharp and effective enough to make it suicidal for an enemy ever to start a war.

* * * *

IT IS FOR this reason that Colonel Pfeiffer runs wing with an iron hand—yet always seems to find plenty of time for his men and their problems.

The colonel keeps as fit and alert as he was during his football days—mainly through the process of being on the alert constantly as the head of a key organization of SAC's fabulous Fifteenth Air Force, which is the cornerstone of the defense of the western United States.

Wherever he goes, home, golf course or on a drive, Pfeiffer never is more than a telephone ring away from his headquarters.

* * * *

IT IS HIS business to get planes moving when they are needed, and he can do it. If necessary, he can launch aircraft from his home base or reflex sites at the rate of one every seconds.

To accomplish this it is not only a matter of finely tuned machines, it is a very complex problem in personnel management.

Ask the average guy if he would work 72 hours a week for $90 a month and he would look at the questioner as if he were slightly unbalanced, to say the least.

But that is exactly what some of Colonel Pfeiffer's airmen do.

And as far as hours go, Colonel Pfeiffer keeps an even more exacting schedule than his men. And that also explains why he always has time for his men and their problems.

* * * *

THE WORK week for Colonel Pfeiffer's crew members is 72 hours and longer.

Key men of the organization have telephones wherever they go—on their desks, in their cars, and on their belts they have tiny radio telephones for use when they relax on the base golf course or for some other reason are away from their regular telephones.

The story is, and they stick to it, that, under the 22nd's exacting standards, you are allowed one ring to answer the telephone while on duty and a "relaxed" six rings if home.

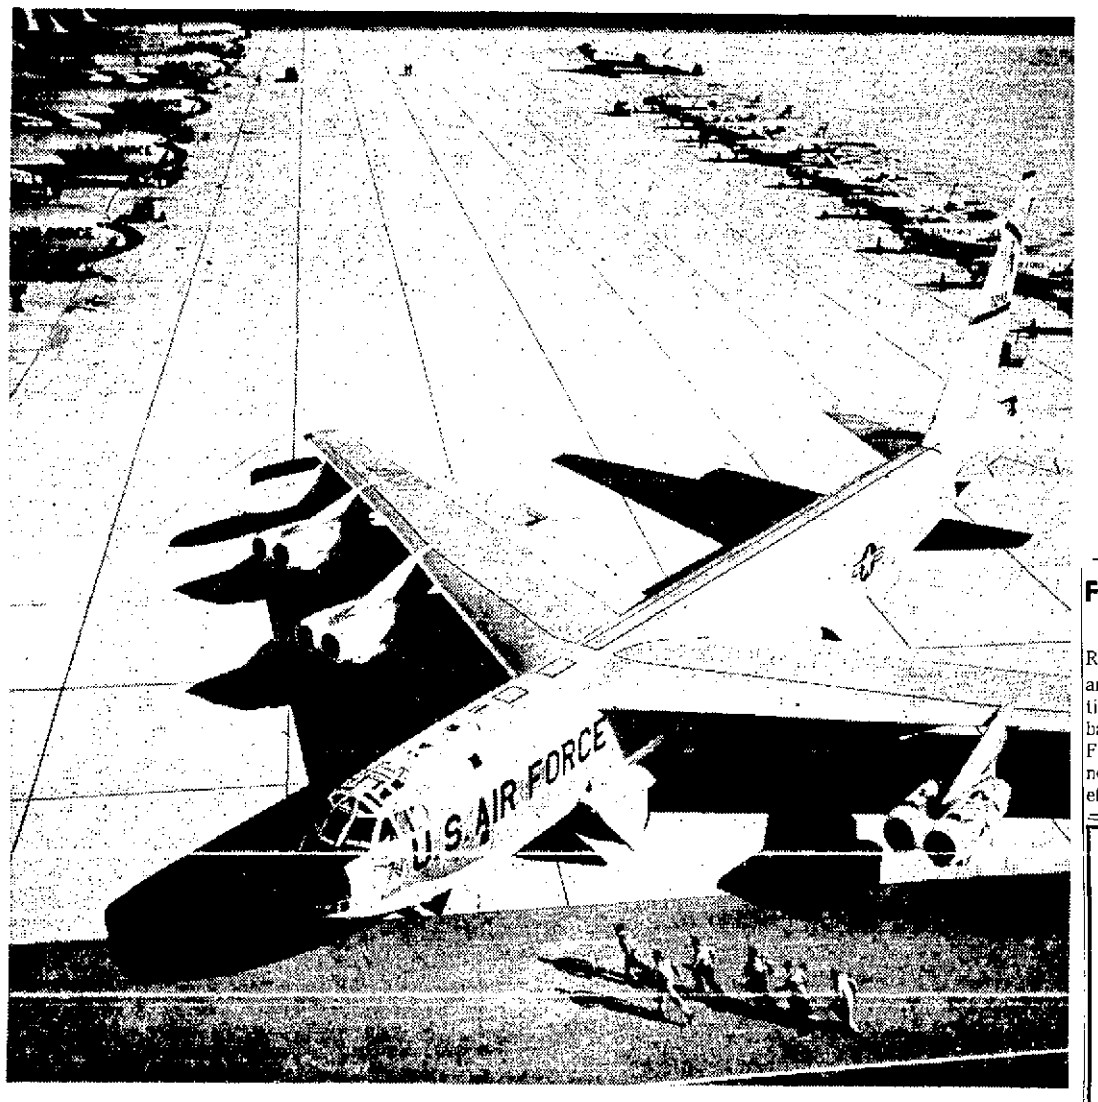

Time means altitude to these men and their bombers, and they aren't about to waste any time or any altitude when it comes time for them to move.

* * * *

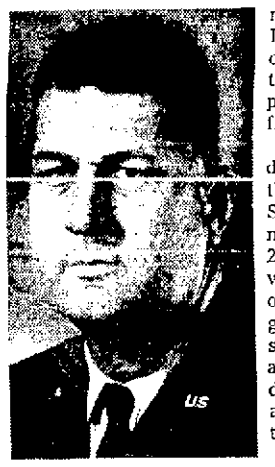

WHILE on duty, men of the 22nd sleep and eat at their aircraft. Their duty uniform is their flying clothes. They know their targets and the mission routes they must fly to reach them.

Crews and aircraft never are more than a few minutes from being airborne.

The wing also maintains the capability of airborne alert procedures. Under this concept, a percentage of the command's heavy bombers remain aloft 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

NEVER MORE THAN a few minutes from being airborne, men of Strategic Air Command move—on the run—to get plane in the air. Duty uniform for these men is their flying clothes.

COL. GEORGE PFEIFFER

This concept assures, in the event of a devastating attack on the United States, survival of a large portion of the retaliatory force.

* * * *

COLONEL Pfeiffer's 22nd Bomb Wing is part of Fifteenth Air Force, one of the three Strategic Air Command Air Forces in the United States. Fifteenth headquarters is also located at March Air Force Base and the hub of its activities is a complex underground combat operations center.

In this underground facility, a battery of computers constantly analyzes and provides information vital to the 22nd Bomb Wing and its sister units in Fifteenth Air Force.

Although the computers have not replaced the bomber crew in mission planning, the machines do provide invaluable information when needed and on a moment's notice.

BASIS of all this information is the big daddy of all computers—the 465L. The 465L absorbs data from all the global SAC bases at the rate of 3,000 words a minute. In the brief span of 20 seconds, the pertinent information will be transferred to photographic film and then flashed in color on the screen.

Should the enemy accidentally launch a few ICBMs, this will not cause the United States to retaliate in a similar manner. But bombers of the 22nd will be launched along with other SAC bomber fleets on course to preselected targets so that the force can be safely on its way should the attack prove real and not accidental. The President and his advisers would be given time to evaluate the situation.

* * * *

ALL THIS is pretty grim business for an avid sports fan and a man who enjoys fishing and tinkering with cars. Fishing is his favorite sport—outranking golf only slightly.

"Peace is our profession," he says. "That is SAC's motto and that is what we believe in.

"We feel that if a war starts, SAC and the 2nd Bomb Wing has failed in its mission.

"We have to be strong and effective enough to keep war from starting.

"If we succeed in that, we have completed our mission successfully."

All of which should make Southlanders who are keeping a wary eye on Viet Nam sleep a little more soundly."

Recovery Seen for Separated Siamese Twins

HOUSTON (AP) — Siamese twins separated in an operation this week in Texas Children's Hospital are on their way to recovery, a hospital spokesman said Saturday.

The condition of Kimberly Marie and Karen Marie Webber has stabilized and, "barring unforeseen complications, an uneventful recovery is expected," the spokesman said.

Monitoring equipment which provided a continuous record of both babies' pulse, blood pressure, heart rate and other vital functions since the beginning of the operation last Tuesday has been removed.

Lab Issues Mosquito Sprays

BRACKNELL, England (UPI)—Girls working at a laboratory here have been issued with insecticide sprays to fight off hungry mosquitoes, which are being bred in heated chambers to test new chemicals. "It's much better now," said one girl assistant. "Before, we spent all our time slapping at mosquitoes—and being bitten if we missed."

HOW MOON LOOKS FROM 470 MILES
This picture, made at altitude of 470 miles by Ranger 8, shows crater Delambre, 32 miles in diameter (center), and shore of Sea of Tranquillity (upper right). Photo was taken about 7 minutes before impact. Crosses and lines are frames of reference, superimposed on pickup tubes of Ranger's cameras.

which makes and guides the Rangers, said the quality of Saturday's pictures is at least as good as those of Ranger 7. And they hailed a bonus: because Ranger 8's cameras went on 10 minutes earlier than number 7's, its pictures show an area of rugged highlands bordering the Sea of Tranquility. Ranger 7's shots showed only the sea it crashed in.

The scientists released eight of the more than 7,000 pictures, ranging from one taken with a wide-angle camera at an altitude of 470 miles covering an area 93x71½ miles seven minutes before impact, down to one taken with a narrow-angle camera at an altitude of 2,400 feet covering an area 300x400 feet .4 of a second before impact.

The latter was the last taken by the narrow-angle camera and showed craters down to five feet in diameter.

Pictures were taken at lower altitudes but they were smeared by the 5,900-m.p.h. speed of the spacecraft's plunge across the face of the moon.

• • • •

ONLY ONE of the released pictures, snapped four minutes before impact at an altitude of 270 miles, showed previously unphotographed highlands. A spokesman said other highlands pictures might be released later and added that "naturally, only a few could be studied and released in time for the news conference."

Dr. Kuiper, of the University of Arizona, said he saw evidence that much of the moon's surface is covered with lava-like material. He added:

"We can expect that if this material is lava it will be shot through with caverns and tunnels like those I have found in lava areas on Hawaii.

"This could be very tricky and treacherous stuff. A man could take a step forward and the tunnel would give way, and he would fall into a big hole or cavern.

• • • •

MANY PARTS of the moon might be hard enough to support considerable weight, but an explorer could not assume that he would be safe everywhere.

"It may be that the first astronuats would be wise to carry long poles to probe the surface ahead of them to be sure it would hold their weight.

"We know that it is treacherous to walk on old lava flows in Hawaii—one of my associates fell into such a tunnel there recently—and we have to assume the same conditions may be present on the moon."

At another point, he remarked, "It's impossible to say from pictures taken overhead just how strong the moon's surface may be, but if I may make a personal guess, I would say it has the strength of rock melted in a vacuum—an experiment we have conducted at the University of Arizona in an attempt to simulate conditions on the moon.

• • • •

"UNDER heat and in a vacuum this material blows up into a frothy material of very low density, about one-tenth of the density of water.

"This material may hide many treacherous things on the moon's surface."

Ewen A. Whitaker, Kuiper's associate at the University of Arizona, said he thought the surface could support a manned landing vehicle. The surface, he said, probably was a foamy outflow from fissures and craters and that over thousands of years this had been broken into tiny bits of the impact of meteorites.

If the dust that seems to cover the moon originated in this manner, he said, is probably would compact under the weight of a landing ship—at least enough to make landings feasible.

• • • • •

THE United States hopes to land astronauts on the moon in five years.

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said the pictures "have speeded the day when men will land on the moon," and added:

"We have added to our knowledge about the lunar surface; further study will show us what kind of craft will be needed to make safe landings."

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at La Jolla, another member of the board of experts, commented:

"Several craters seem to show a whitish button at the bottom. This indicates there may be very hard material underneath."

• • • •

DR. UREY estimated the depth of some craters at 50 to 60 feet, saying this might indicate the maximum depth of soft dust-like material he believes covers the surface.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, another team member, said he does not believe the strength of the surface can be told from pictures. A major conclusion, he said, is that the surfaces of the seas where Rangers 7 and 8 hit "seem to be substantially the same."

$2 Million in Fruit Lost Due to Strikes

VALPARAISO, Chile (AP)—Strikes of dockworkers in the United States and Chile have caused loss of more than $2 million in Chilean fruits tied up here, shipping sources said Saturday.

The fruit shipments were consigned to the United States, Britain, Switzerland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Peru, Panama, Venezuela and Ecuador.

Cyprus Peace Force Extension Studied

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A U.N. spokesman said Saturday Secretary General U Thant is considering whether to extend the U.N. peace force on Cyprus beyond March 26 but still is undecided.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on a prepared statement read to correspondents, but the statement spoke of "some recent indications that it (the force) may meet increasing difficulties."

Girl Killed, Boy Hurt by Auto on Sidewalk

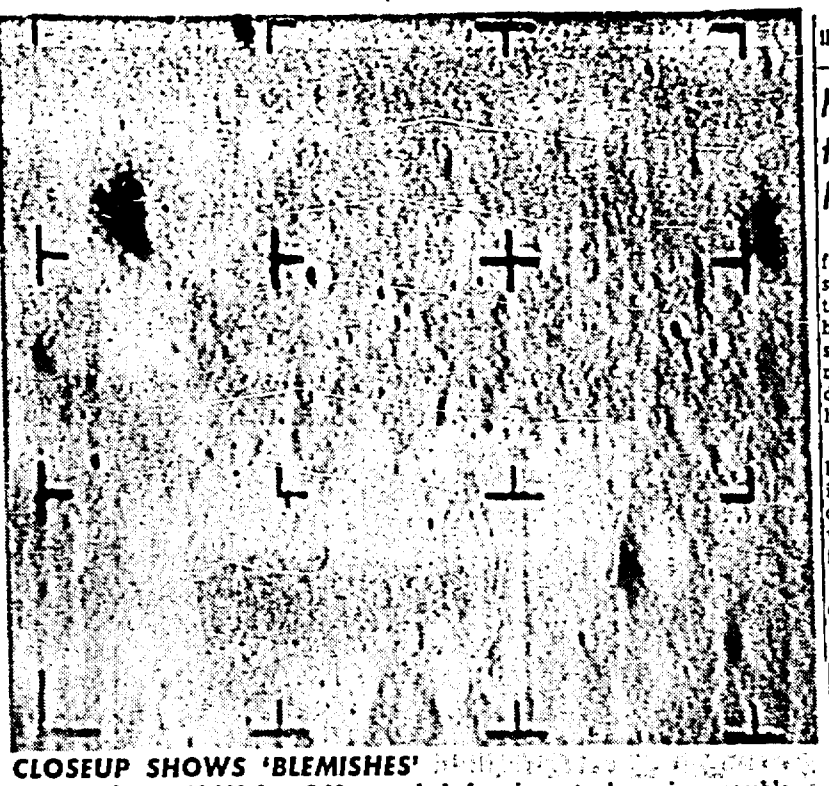

A 9-year-old Santa Ana girl was killed and her playmate was injured critically Saturday when a careening auto struck them as they they walked on the sidewalk near their home around 3:40 p.m.

Dead at the scene was Laura Grace Cotey, Santa Ana police said she was carried by the car through a concrete-block fence near her home at 2328 S. Lowell St.

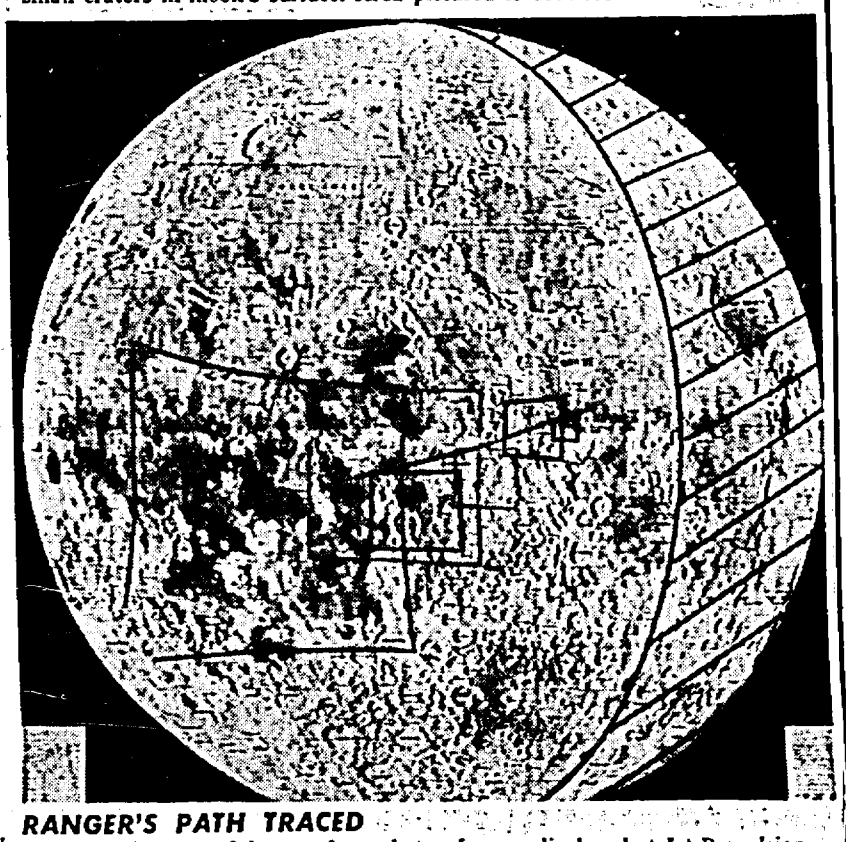

Harold Allen Kron, 10, of 2310 S. Lowell St., was reported in critical condition at Doctor's Hospital, Santa Ana, suffering from head and internal injuries and multiple fractures. Officers believe his body was hurled over the fence into the front yard at 2306 S. Lowell St.

Booked at Orange County jail on suspicion of manslaughter is Raymond J. Formeller Jr., 19, a Marine stationed at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Investigating officers said that Formeller failed to make a curve in Lowell Street at the scene and his auto jumped the curb and plowed into the two youngsters.

CLOSEUP SHOWS 'BLEMISHES'

RANGER'S PATH TRACED

Man Who Tried to Save Boy Now Faces Infection

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jeffery Henessey, 2, died of spinal meningitis Friday, and the man who tried to revive him with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation began undergoing medication to prevent the disease Saturday as soon as he learned the cause of death.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Doris Henessey, had left him in the care of a friend, who called William Foreman, 33, when the boy began gasping for breath.

Foreman's efforts failed. A coroner's autopsy discovered presence of the disease.

County Aide Tells Senate District View

By DON BRACKENBURY
L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Formation of proposed new State Senate districts in Los Angeles County on the basis of encompassing two Assembly Districts has certain advantages, according to County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy.

There are, however, some basic problems, including a conflicting provision of the state constitution at this time, Kennedy said.

Kennedy was asked by supervisors to evaluate two proposals for the formation of State Senate districts in Los Angeles County after the anticipated reapportionment of California's upper house, in accordance with U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

* * * *

THE TWO PROPOSALS are (1) to combine existing State Assembly districts on the basis of two per State Senate district, and (2) to make the Senate district boundaries the same as those of existing Congressional Districts.

Kennedy said there is "very little difference" and certain basic problems involved in both methods.

Los Angeles County now has only one senator, but if the upper house is apportioned on a population basis, it would wind up with 15 senators.

The county now has 31 assembly districts, ranging in size, according to the 1960 census, from 177,000 to 212,000 people.

There are 15 congressional districts, each of which includes two Assembly districts, except that the 28th Congressional District has three Assembly districts.

Most congressional districts vary from 355,000 to 423,000 people, but the 28th District had more than 591,000 residents as of 1960, Kennedy said.

* * * *

THE COUNTY counsel said he sees "very little difference" in the two plans because the State Senate districts would wind up with two Assembly districts in either case, except for the 28th District.

Because of the size of the 28th District, it would be difficult to work it into the senatorial district system and still adhere to the Supreme Court's one man-one vote principle, Kennedy said.

The major problem involved in combining two Assembly districts to form a State Senate district, he pointed out, is that the county now has 31 Assembly districts, and would get only 15 Senate districts. The "extra" Assembly district would have to join one in an adjacent county to form a Senate district, and such an arrangement currently is prohibited by the state constitution, Kennedy said.

If the problems can be advantages to having senatorial districts encompass two Assembly districts, Kennedy said.

By having two assemblymen and one senator, a given area probably would get more effective representation.

* * * *

FURTHERMORE, from experience gained as an assemblyman, a legislator might seek office as a state senator from substantially the same area.

Future decennial apportionment lies with the State Legislature, Kennedy pointed out, but supervisors sought his report as a basis for possible recommendations.

Los Angeles County now has only one senator, but if the upper house is apportioned on a population basis, it would wind up with 15 senators.

The county now has 31 assembly districts, ranging in size, according to the 1960 census, from 177,000 to 212,000 people.

There are 15 congressional districts, each of which includes two Assembly districts, except that the 28th Congressional District has three Assembly districts.

Most congressional districts vary from 355,000 to 423,000 people, but the 28th District had more than 591,000 residents as of 1960, Kennedy said.

* * * *

THE COUNTY counsel said he sees "very little difference" in the two plans because the State Senate districts would wind up with two Assembly districts in either case, except for the 28th District.

Because of the size of the 28th District, it would be difficult to work it into the senatorial district system and still adhere to the Supreme Court's one man-one vote principle, Kennedy said.

The major problem involved in combining two Assembly districts to form a State Senate district, he pointed out, is that the county now has 31 Assembly districts, and would get only 15 Senate districts. The "extra" Assembly district would have to join one in an adjacent county to form a Senate district, and such an arrangement currently is prohibited by the state constitution, Kennedy said.

If the problems can be advantages to having senatorial districts encompass two Assembly districts, Kennedy said.

By having two assemblymen and one senator, a given area probably would get more effective representation.

* * * *

FURTHERMORE, from experience gained as an assemblyman, a legislator might seek office as a state senator from substantially the same area.

Future decennial apportionment lies with the State Legislature, Kennedy pointed out, but supervisors sought his report as a basis for possible recommendations.

WIVES BUY FOR DAD

Teen-Agers Set Made for Him

CHICAGO (UPI)—The pants in the American family may still be worn by the man of the house, but his teen-age son sets the fashion pattern, and his wife does the buying.

More than 50% of the sales made in men's clothing stores are to women, a survey released at the 50th convention of the Mens Wear Retailers of America showed.

While the women are spending the money, junior determines what she will buy, convention reports stated. More and more men are wearing the continental styles, with cuffless, tapered trousers, and tapered shirts, a mens wear spokesman said.

About the only item left to the sanctity of the man's fashion decision is clothing that requires fitting, the survey said. Even then, the wife is along to supervise, the clothing dealers said.

WOMEN ALSO WANT their husabnds to spend more on clothing, the report added. Spending on women's clothes, however, still tops the list of every clothing dollar.

The report said 64 cents of every clothing dollar goes for women's and girls' wardrobes, while the men and boys spend only 36 cents on each dollar, on attire.

Teen-age leadership in the realm of their father's fashions became evident about three years ago, the survey claimed, when the tapered shirt, originally aimed at the below-20 market, became a large-selling item in all age brackets.

"A few years ago even to ask a man if he wanted slacks without cuffs was to draw a hard stare at the least," a mens wear spokesman said. "Now 35% of the time we get a 'yes' answer, and this has to be a direct result of the teen-ager's lead."

Plan to Close 11 VA Hospitals Defended

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Veterans Administrator William J. Driver maintains plans to close 11 VA hospitals would mean better medical care for veterans at lower cost to taxpayers.

In an interview with UPI, he defended the hospital-closing order which set off a storm in Congress. As a result of the furor, the Administration agreed to hold everything until May 1 to enable the House and Senate Veterans Committees to conduct public hearings.

Hospitals involved are located at Rutland Heights, Mass.; Bath, N.Y.; Lincoln, Neb.; Castle Point, N.Y.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Ft. Bayard, N.M.; Dwight, Ill.; Broadview Heights, Ohio; Miles City, Mont.; Sunmount, N.Y., and McKinney, Tex.

THE HOSPITALS are obsolescent, Driver said, because they are (1) too old; (2) too small, or (3) too far from population centers. They cost more to operate, he said, and provide less adequate care than the big modern hospitals which the VA is building in many areas.

"We're in the midst of a 12-year, $1.2 billion VA hospital construction program," said Driver. "We have 10 new hospitals currently under construction, with a total capacity of 7,503 beds. Construction is scheduled to begin on 11 more hospitals within the next four years. We also are modernizing, enlarging and improving 23 other hospitals.

"We have now reached the point in this massive building program where we have enough room in new, modern facilities to begin phasing out some of our old hospitals."

Leading veterans organizations have joined senators and congressmen from the affected states in the outcry against closing the 11 hospitals. Veterans organizations fear that any dimunition of total VA hospital bed space would mean that fewer veterans could get free treatment for illnesses that are not "service connected."

The VA is required by law to provide free hospital care, either in a VA facility or a private hospital, for any veteran whose ailment stems from a war wound or other disability connected with military service.

HOWEVER, only 30% of the patients in VA hospitals fall into this category.

The other 70% have diseases or disabilities which are in no way connected with their military service. The VA is permitted to take them in if beds are available and if they sign a pauper's oath saying they cannot afford to pay for hospital care.

Total cost of the VA medical program, which includes outpatient care and other services as well as hospital operation, is about $1.2 billion a year.

L.B. Area Parks in Master Plan

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Scores of local facilities—including the proposed Long Beach offshore islands, Palos Verdes shoreline areas, parks and golf courses—have been recommended for inclusion in a master plan for recreation in Los Angeles County.

Supervisors will be asked Tuesday to schedule a public hearing Thursday, March 18, at 9:30 a.m. to consider adding the facilities to the Regional Recreational Areas Plan.

The recommendations were made by the County Regional Planning Commission following a hearing last June 24. Among persons testifying at that time were Milton B. Arthur of Long Beach, chairman of the county's Parks and Recreation Commission, and Duane George, assistant director of recreation for the city of Long Beach.

ACTUALLY, the recommendations involve not only additions to the master plan, but also some deletion and some changes of existing listings.

Legally, they have no special status, a spokesman said. The master plan is established primarily as a guide for various recreation and parks agencies in planning their own developments.

The present master plan covers about 230 facilities in the general categories of regional parks, recreational parks (local in nature), reservations, parkways and specialized areas.

Heading the specialized-areas category is the recommendation to include boating and swimming facilities on the three proposed offshore islands to be built as part of Long Beach's oil development program. About 90 acres would be available on the three islands, the report said.

MARINE areas are proposed for Abalone Cove Upland Park and Neptune Cove Upland Park. The former would be 38 acres and include surf fishing, tidal pool exploration, skin and scuba diving and beach combing. The latter would be 40 acres, offering the same facilities plus a wildlife preserve.

Victoria Recreational Park which had been proposed for 170 acres near Del Amo Boulevard and Los Angeles River, has been deleted because private development has made the site unavailable.

In its place, the Regional Planning Commission recommends a proposed West Long Beach Recreation Park, northwest of the intersection of the Long Beach and San Diego freeways. It would cover 170 acres and include an 18-hole golf course and a variety of other recreation facilities. It would be operated by the county.

A MAJOR reclassification involves the change from Laguna-Dominguez Park which had been proposed for 1,300 acres near Main and 200th streets, to Victoria Recreational Park, a 400-acre facility at the same site. This park is under development, particularly the proposed 18-hole golf course.

The commission recommends the addition of a Dairy Valley golf course in the vicinity of 183rd Street and Bloomfield Avenue. The proposed 18-hole course on a 120-acre site would be operated by the city of Dairy Valley.

An 18-hole course which had been proposed for Rosecrans Avenue and San Gabriel River, Downey, is recommended for deletion from the master plan because private development has made the site unavailable.

THREE LOCAL parks in this area are among the recommendaoitns. The commission proposes development of Compton Recreational Park on 50 acres at Central Avenue and Artesia Street, Dairy Valley Recreational Park on 170 acres near 183rd Street and Bloomfield Avenue, and Torrance Recreational Park on 63 acres at 2201 Washington Avenue.

The commission report proposes creating three local-area scenic drives. Longest would be a 12-mile drive from Vincent Thomas Bridge to Pacific Coast Highway in Alamitos Bay area via Seaside Boulevard, Ocean Boulevard, Bayshore Avenue and Second Street.

Also proposed are a four-mile scenic drive on Pacific Coast Hihgway from Lakewood Boulevard to the Orange County line, and a four-mile drive on Paseo del Mar from Harbor View Memorial Park to Palos Verdes Drive South via Pacific Avenue in San Pedro.

THE OLD Bixby Ranch in East Long Beach, the original headquarters of Rancho Los Alamitos, is recommended as an historic site.

A 200-acre picnic grounds in the Dominguez Hills is another proposed project for the master plan.

For boaters, the Regional Planning Commission recommends inclusion in the master plan of a variety of marinas and moorings, including an 800-berth marina at Catalina Harbor and a 400-berth facility at Emerald Bay, both on Catalina Island, as well as a 900-berth marina at Portuguese Bend.

Many of the items on the master plan already exist, and others are under developmnet at this time. Many of the proposed projects, however, would be far in the future.

Fund Solicitation Authority Asked

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

There should be some sort of central agency so that an organization wanting to conduct a countywide charity fund drive wouldn't have to contact the present 77 different jurisdictions.

L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, will tell county supervisors this Tuesday, and suggest that they ask the Los Angeles division, League of California Cities, to order a study.

Hollinger noted that county supervisors asked him last August to confer with Los Angeles city officials on the feasibility of combining city and county regulation of charitable solicitations.

SINCE THEN, he said, the Southern California Broadcasters Association has written to supervisors, pointing out that an organization wanting to make a countywide fund drive must contact the county and the 76 cities.

"Each jurisdiction has the authority to regulate solicitations within its boundaries and all require that a formal request be filed before a solicitation is permitted," Hollinger said.

The large number of local jurisdictions and their irregular boundaries create "confusion and duplication" for the charitable organizations, he said.

Among other solutions, Hollinger suggested a central information agency from which local jurisdictions could request information about charitable groups; a central organization which could receive requests for area-wide door-to-door solicitations and refer them to the proper jurisdiction for approval; or a cetnral investigation agency which could review all applications for such solicitations and make the information available to local jurisdictions.

SINCE THE problem concerns all cities of the county, Hollinger said, the supervisors should request the cooperation of the Los Angeles County division of the League of Cities.

He suggested that the recently created Greater Los Angeles Voluntary Intergovernmental Cooperation Committee — a three-man body representing the county, the city of Los Angeles and the league — might conduct the study.

WIVES BUY FOR DAD

Teen-Agers Set Made for Him

CHICAGO (UPI)—The pants in the American family may still be worn by the man of the house, but his teen-age son sets the fashion pattern, and his wife does the buying.

More than 50% of the sales made in men's clothing stores are to women, a survey released at the 50th convention of the Mens Wear Retailers of America showed.

While the women are spending the money, junior determines what she will buy, convention reports stated. More and more men are wearing the continental styles, with cuffless, tapered trousers, and tapered shirts, a mens wear spokesman said.

About the only item left to the sanctity of the man's fashion decision is clothing that requires fitting, the survey said. Even then, the wife is along to supervise, the clothing dealers said.

WOMEN ALSO WANT their husabnds to spend more on clothing, the report added. Spending on women's clothes, however, still tops the list of every clothing dollar.

The report said 64 cents of every clothing dollar goes for women's and girls' wardrobes, while the men and boys spend only 36 cents on each dollar, on attire.

Teen-age leadership in the realm of their father's fashions became evident about three years ago, the survey claimed, when the tapered shirt, originally aimed at the below-20 market, became a large-selling item in all age brackets.

"A few years ago even to ask a man if he wanted slacks without cuffs was to draw a hard stare at the least," a mens wear spokesman said. "Now 35% of the time we get a 'yes' answer, and this has to be a direct result of the teen-ager's lead."

Plan to Close 11 VA Hospitals Defended

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Veterans Administrator William J. Driver maintains plans to close 11 VA hospitals would mean better medical care for veterans at lower cost to taxpayers.

In an interview with UPI, he defended the hospital-closing order which set off a storm in Congress. As a result of the furor, the Administration agreed to hold everything until May 1 to enable the House and Senate Veterans Committees to conduct public hearings.

Hospitals involved are located at Rutland Heights, Mass.; Bath, N.Y.; Lincoln, Neb.; Castle Point, N.Y.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Ft. Bayard, N.M.; Dwight, Ill.; Broadview Heights, Ohio; Miles City, Mont.; Sunmount, N.Y., and McKinney, Tex.

THE HOSPITALS are obsolescent, Driver said, because they are (1) too old; (2) too small, or (3) too far from population centers. They cost more to operate, he said, and provide less adequate care than the big modern hospitals which the VA is building in many areas.

"We're in the midst of a 12-year, $1.2 billion VA hospital construction program," said Driver. "We have 10 new hospitals currently under construction, with a total capacity of 7,503 beds. Construction is scheduled to begin on 11 more hospitals within the next four years. We also are modernizing, enlarging and improving 23 other hospitals.

"We have now reached the point in this massive building program where we have enough room in new, modern facilities to begin phasing out some of our old hospitals."

Leading veterans organizations have joined senators and congressmen from the affected states in the outcry against closing the 11 hospitals. Veterans organizations fear that any dimunition of total VA hospital bed space would mean that fewer veterans could get free treatment for illnesses that are not "service connected."

The VA is required by law to provide free hospital care, either in a VA facility or a private hospital, for any veteran whose ailment stems from a war wound or other disability connected with military service.

HOWEVER, only 30% of the patients in VA hospitals fall into this category.

The other 70% have diseases or disabilities which are in no way connected with their military service. The VA is permitted to take them in if beds are available and if they sign a pauper's oath saying they cannot afford to pay for hospital care.

Total cost of the VA medical program, which includes outpatient care and other services as well as hospital operation, is about $1.2 billion a year.

ONE DIES IN $400,000 BLAZE

The body of Mrs. Ada Hanson, an elderly Amery, Wis., widow was found in the fire-gutted ruins of her home Saturday. Flames and black smoke billow from a ruptured gasoline tank (left) as firemen pour water on other tanks (right). Several business buildings were destroyed in the fire which did an estimated $400,000 damage.

Fraternity Put on Probation After Coed Tells of Assault

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—Sigma Nu fraternity at Oklahoma State University Saturday was placed on scholastic and social probation because of a wild "pledge sneak" in which a coed allegedly was raped.

Dr. Oliver S. Willham, university president announced the action. He said the measures had been recommended by the interfraternity council's judicial board and approved by the school's student conduct committee.

Willham's action came shortly after the Oklahoma Bureau of investigation announced that a Northeastern (Okla.) State College coed told officers she could identify the pledge who allegedly attacked her.

* * * *

OFFICERS said Saturday the girl told them she had been "too frightened" to pick her attacker from the group of 23 pledges in an informal lineup last Sunday.

About 20 coeds from Northeastern at Tahlequah attended the unchaperoned party at the Western Hills Lodge in eastern Oklahoma's scenic hill country.

Crime bureau Director Earl Goerke said preliminary investigation indicated the girl may have been so intoxicated she did not know what occurred.

The girl told officers all of the boys had been drinking.

Authorities said all of the pledges denied they knew anything about the attack.

Willham said the disciplinary measures resulted from the unauthorized off-campus party with members of the opposite sex, without chaperons, on a "pledge sneak."

The fraternity voluntarily moved to replace its pledge-class trainers, members in charge of pledges, and to eliminate all off-campus "sneaks" indefinitely.

The fraternity also postponed spring initiation of its pledges until state and university authorities are satisfied the men involved in the party have been cleared of allegations of the reported assault.

The fraternity told the interfraternity council's judicial board that expulsion from the fraternity would be recommended for any pledge or member convicted of the alleged crime.

* * * *

WILLHAM said the disciplinary action recommended was in keeping with the extent of the information available at the time. He said if other evidence of other violations is presented, further disciplinary action will be considered.

The judical board recommended the fraternity be placed on social probation for the remainder of the school year.

The board also recommended the fraternity be required to attain a grade-point average for both members and pledges of C-plus for the spring semester.

41-CAR COLLISION

Officer Pete Burcombe, rushing to the scene of this accident in the 1900 block of West Willow Street early Saturday, found the car of sailor Jerry A. Modini, 29, apparently in a hurry to join a truck load of about 40 wrecked cars compressed for shipment. The parked truck, from Las Vegas, Nev., was bound for Terminal Island. There were no injuries.

Receptionist Loses Smile

PARIS (UPI) — Micheline Albingre, a doctor's receptionist, was given a two-months' suspended jail sentence and fined $100 by a court for making 9,000 anonymous telephone calls in two years to a woman patient who had spoken brusquely to her.

Gasoline, Afire, Runs in Streets

AMERY, Wis. (UPI)—Firemen probing the ruins of a burned home, one of several buildings destroyed when flaming gasoline ran through the main street of this northwestern Wisconsin community, found the body of a 66-year-old widow Saturday afternoon.

The victim, Mrs. Ada Hanson, 66, had been missing since a gasoline tank next door to her home ruptured early Saturday, sending out burning fuel that ignited two residences, five business buildings, and 20 new automobiles, destroying all of them. The entire downtown area was threatened before firemen brought the flames under control.

* * * *

FIREMEN said Mrs. Hanson's home went up in flames almost immediately as the burning gasoline poured into her basement.

The bulk tank was being filled with gasoline from a transport truck when the tank exploded. Two other tanks and the truck went up in flames.

The truck driver, Dennis Houl, 34, of St. Paul, Minn., ran for assistance, but when he and a police officer returned, the gasoline was pouring onto the main street.

Firemen said they could not make an exact estimate of the damage, but that it would be at least $400,000.

RED CHINA SYMPATHIZERS DEMAND DEAL

Commie Leader of Car-Wash Strike Asks NLRB Elections

By CHARLES SUTTON

The Marxist leader of Southern California's turbulent 5-week-old car-wash strike has made a bid for union recognition at nine local car-washes in petitions filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

The 23-year-old Communist coupled his move with a threat to step up his union's apparently weakened strike effort in the wake of a management refusal "to sit down and negotiate" with him.

* * * *

THE PETITIONS, FILED LATE Friday, charge the car-washes with unfair labor practices and ask the NLRB to intercede and recognize the striking union.

(A spokesman at the NLRB office in Los Angeles said that in the event the board acts on the petitions, it will order representation elections at the affected car-washes.)

Young Mike Laski's move was understood to be as much a tactical gambit as anything else, however. Should the labor board deny the petitions for lack of jurisdiction in the dispute, there's the likelihood it will also throw out unfair-labor-activity charges filed against the union, the labor leader declared.

In Laski's estimation, the NLRB probably will rule itself out of the dispute on grounds that none of the affected car-washes does a large enough business to warrant NLRB intervention under federal law.

* * * *

IT IS UNDERSTOOD THE car-washes are taking the position that the board does have jurisdiction because the union also is dealing with the Southern California Car Wash Association, and its members, in combination, would fall under NLRB rules.

Meanwhile, the young Marxist and four of his aides edged closer to a court trial on charges stemming from a near-riot at the Rosecrans Car-wash near Gardena Jan. 17, a day after Laski and his Auto Maintenance Workers' Union took on the industry in a struggle for union recognition and higher wages.

With the courts and the sheriff's office breathing down his neck, not to mention the car-wash association, Laski acknowledge that federal officials doubtless were taking a close look at the union and its activities, too.

Laski has made no attempt to cover up the fact that he and other key officials of the union are members of a Red Chinese-oriented group, the Provisional Organizing Committee to Reconstitute the Marxist-Leninist Communist Party in the United States, or POC.

While the FBI would say only that it is "not free to discuss the matter," it is understood that agents of some federal organization, presumably the FBI, have been keeping tab on Laski and other POC people.

* * * *

AMONG THE GROUPS POC is active in is a largely Negro organization called Freedom for the People, which calls for the "right of the self-determination of the Negro people."

"Its program," explained Laski, "is one of liberation through struggle with the white working class." The Los Angeles-area organization rejects integration as a solution to the Negro's plight in America, and appears to veer toward a separatist answer.

Earlier this week, Laski said, he tried to make a deal with the industry in an effort to get it to drop the riot charges. As a quid pro quo, Laski would have called off picketing for six months to a year.

But sources in the Southern California Car Wash Association made it clear they were not about to take up the offer. "It's their necks now," said an employer spokesman.

Ever since the strike began on Jan. 16, the AMWU has been sporadically picketing seven car-washes in the Gardena-Los Angeles area, but the picketing has eased off in the past two weeks.

At seven other car-washes, employes walked off their jobs but did not picket.

16 Teeners Arrested in Raid on 'Love Nest'

NEW SHREWSBURY, N.J. (UPI) — Eight teen-age couples, members of prominent families, were rounded up Friday night in a love nest in the woods, police reported Saturday.

Fourteen were juveniles, whose names were withheld by authorities. Two 18-year-olds—Frank Cuccurullo of Asbury Park and Peter Oties of Interlaken—were charged with loitering and released in $100 bail each.

* * * *

POLICE from New Shrewsbury, Eatontown and Ocean raided the love nest, a five-room summer cottage stocked with three cases of beer and a bottle of applejack.

The police said the cabin belonged to Mrs. William C. Parnell of West Englewood, N.J., who is in Europe, and that the teen-agers broke into it and used it without the owner's permission.

The teen-agers fled when police appeared and it took an hour to round them up. Most were treated for exposure to below-freezing temperatures and bramble scratches.

* * * *

BEFORE the raid one of the teen-agers was spotted outside the cabin with a .22-caliber rifle. He apparently had been put on guard duty to keep snoopers and gate-crashers away.

New Shrewsbury Patrolman Robert Gant mistook the gun toter for a rapist who had been operating in lover's lanes in the area. Gant radioed police headquarters for more policemen, who rounded up the teen-agers.

Dead Ringer Back at Old TV Stand

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—John F. (Fritz) Johnson was back at his old job with television station KETV Saturday. But the man who is a "dead ringer" for the missing and legally dead Lawrence Bader of Akron, Ohio, had not appeared on camera and it was not known when he would.

He was going by the name, Fritz Johnson.

KETV program director Jack Petrik said Johnson did some announcing and writing Thursday night and Friday night.

"Everything at the station is getting back to normal and we hope it soon will be, too, for Fritz," Petrik said.

Petrik said Johnson would resume his description of wrestling matches on Monday night.

* * * *

JOHNSON was released from the hospital this week after a week of tests. He met newsmen Friday. His attorney, Harry Farnham, asked newsmen to submit questions in advance.

However, during the conference, Johnson only read a statement, saying that his attorney believes him to be Bader, the Akron appliance salesman who was presumed to have drowned in Lake Erie nearly eight years ago.

Johnson also said he wanted to clear up "enormous" ramifications posed by the double identification, and he promised to go step by step in doing so.

Johnson is married to a pretty divorcee, Nancy Zimmer, 24, and they have twin children. Baker's wife, Marylou, lives in Akron with their four children. She never remarried.

Summit County Probate Court Judge Nathan Koplin in Akron met with Mrs. Bader's attorneys and suggested they begin action to correct the 1960 court records showing that Bader was dead. Koplin said this would require several weeks.

ONE DIES IN $400,000 BLAZE
The body of Mrs. Ada Hanson, an elderly Amery, Wis., widow was found in the fire-gutted ruins of her home Saturday. Flames and black smoke billow from a ruptured gasoline tank (left) as firemen pour water on other tanks (right). Several business buildings were destroyed in the fire which did an estimated $400,000 damage.

Fraternity Put on Probation After Coed Tells of Assault

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) —Sigma Nu fraternity at Oklahoma State University Saturday was placed on scholastic and social probation because of a wild "pledge sneak" in which a coed allegedly was raped.

Dr. Oliver S. Willham, university president announced the action. He said the measures had been recommended by the interfraternity council's judicial board and approved by the school's student conduct committee.

Willham's action came shortly after the Oklahoma Bureau of investigation announced that a Northeastern (Okla.) State College coed told officers she could identify the pledge who allegedly attacked her.

* * * *

OFFICERS said Saturday the girl told them she had been "too frightened" to pick her attacker from the group of 23 pledges in an informal lineup last Sunday.

About 20 coeds from Northeastern at Tahlequah attended the unchaperoned party at the Western Hills Lodge in eastern Oklahoma's scenic hill country.

Crime bureau Director Earl Goerke said preliminary investigation indicated the girl may have been so intoxicated she did not know what occurred.

The girl told officers all of the boys had been drinking.

Authorities said all of the pledges denied they knew anything about the attack.

Willham said the disciplinary measures resulted from the unauthorized off-campus party with members of the opposite sex, without chaperons, on a "pledge sneak."

The fraternity voluntarily moved to replace its pledge-class trainers, members in charge of pledges, and to eliminate all off-campus "sneaks" indefinitely.

The fraternity also postponed spring initiation of its pledges until state and university authorities are satisfied the men involved in the party have been cleared of allegations of the reported assault.

The fraternity told the interfraternity council's judicial board that expulsion from the fraternity would be recommended for any pledge or member convicted of the alleged crime.

* * * *

WILLHAM said the disciplinary action recommended was in keeping with the extent of the information available at the time. He said if other evidence of other violations is presented, further disciplinary action will be considered.

The judical board recommended the fraternity be placed on social probation for the remainder of the school year.

The board also recommended the fraternity be required to attain a grade-point average for both members and pledges of C-plus for the spring semester.

41-CAR COLLISION
Officer Pete Burcombe, rushing to the scene of this accident in the 1900 block of West Willow Street early Saturday, found the car of sailor Jerry A. Modini, 29, apparently in a hurry to join a truck load of about 40 wrecked cars compressed for shipment. The parked truck, from Las Vegas, Nev., was bound for Terminal Island. There were no injuries.

Receptionist Loses Smile

PARIS (UPI) — Micheline Albingre, a doctor's receptionist, was given a two-months' suspended jail sentence and fined $100 by a court for making 9,000 anonymous telephone calls in two years to a woman patient who had spoken brusquely to her.

Gasoline, Afire, Runs in Streets

AMERY, Wis. (AP) — Firemen probing the ruins of a burned home, one of several buildings destroyed when flaming gasoline ran through the main street of this northwestern Wisconsin community, found the body of a 66-year-old widow Saturday afternoon.

The victim, Mrs. Ada Hanson, 66, had been missing since a gasoline tank next door to her home ruptured early Saturday, sending out burning fuel that ignited two residences, five business buildings, and 20 new automobiles, destroying all of them. The entire downtown area was threatened before firemen brought the flames under control.

* * * *

FIREMEN said Mrs. Hanson's home went up in flames almost immediately as the burning gasoline poured into her basement.

The bulk tank was being filled with gasoline from a transport truck when the tank exploded. Two other tanks and the truck went up in flames.

The truck driver, Dennis Houl, 34, of St. Paul, Minn., ran for assistance, but when he and a police officer returned, the gasoline was pouring onto the main street.

Firemen said they could not make an exact estimate of the damage, but that it would be at least $400,000.

RED CHINA SYMPATHIZERS DEMAND DEAL

Commie Leader of Car-Wash Strike Asks NLRB Elections

By CHARLES SUTTON

The Marxist leader of Southern California's turbulent 5-week-old car-wash strike has made a bid for union recognition at nine local car-washes in petitions filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

The 23-year-old Communist coupled his move with a threat to step up his union's apparently weakened strike effort in the wake of a management refusal "to sit down and negotiate" with him.

* * * *

THE PETITIONS, FILED LATE Friday, charge the car-washes with unfair labor practices and ask the NLRB to intercede and recognize the striking union.

(A spokesman at the NLRB office in Los Angeles said that in the event the board acts on the petitions, it will order representation elections at the affected car-washes.)

Young Mike Laski's move was understood to be as much a tactical gambit as anything else, however. Should the labor board deny the petitions for lack of jurisdiction in the dispute, there's the likelihood it will also throw out unfair-labor-activity charges filed against the union, the labor leader declared.

In Laski's estimation, the NLRB probably will rule itself out of the dispute on grounds that none of the affected car-washes does a large enough business to warrant NLRB intervention under federal law.

* * * *

IT IS UNDERSTOOD THE car-washes are taking the position that the board does have jurisdiction because the union also is dealing with the Southern California Car Wash Association, and its members, in combination, would fall under NLRB rules.

Meanwhile, the young Marxist and four of his aides edged closer to a court trial on charges stemming from a near-riot at the Rosecrans Car-wash near Gardena Jan. 17, a day after Laski and his Auto Maintenance Workers' Union took on the industry in a struggle for union recognition and higher wages.

With the courts and the sheriff's office breathing down his neck, not to mention the car-wash association, Laski acknowledge that federal officials doubtless were taking a close look at the union and its activities, too.

Laski has made no attempt to cover up the fact that he and other key officials of the union are members of a Red Chinese-oriented group, the Provisional Organizing Committee to Reconstitute the Marxist-Leninist Communist Party in the United States, or POC.

While the FBI would say only that it is "not free to discuss the matter," it is understood that agents of some federal organization, presumably the FBI, have been keeping tab on Laski and other POC people.

* * * *

AMONG THE GROUPS POC is active in is a largely Negro organization called Freedom for the People, which calls for the "right of the self-determination of the Negro people."

"Its program," explained Laski, "is one of liberation through struggle with the white working class." The Los Angeles-area organization rejects integration as a solution to the Negro's plight in America, and appears to veer toward a separatist answer.

Earlier this week, Laski said, he tried to make a deal with the industry in an effort to get it to drop the riot charges. As a quid pro quo, Laski would have called off picketing for six months to a year.

But sources in the Southern California Car Wash Association made it clear they were not about to take up the offer. "It's their necks now," said an employer spokesman.

Ever since the strike began on Jan. 16, the AMWU has been sporadically picketing seven car-washes in the Gardena-Los Angeles area, but the picketing has eased off in the past two weeks.

At seven other car-washes, employes walked off their jobs but did not picket.

16 Teeners Arrested in Raid on 'Love Nest'

NEW SHREWSBURY, N.J. (UPI) — Eight teen-age couples, members of prominent families, were rounded up Friday night in a love nest in the woods, police reported Saturday.

Fourteen were juveniles, whose names were withheld by authorities. Two 18-year-olds—Frank Cuccurullo of Asbury Park and Peter Oties of Interlaken — were charged with loitering and released in $100 bail each.

* * * *

POLICE from New Shrewsbury, Eatontown and Ocean raided the love nest, a five-room summer cottage stocked with three cases of beer and a bottle of applejack.

The police said the cabin belonged to Mrs. William C. Parnell of West Englewood, N.J., who is in Europe, and that the teen-agers broke into it and used it without the owner's permission.

High Bidders on LB Oil to Pay Average of 96.2528% of Net

By GEORGE WEEKS

High bidders for the billion-barrel Long Beach tideland oil production will pay the city and state a weighted average of 96.2528% of net proceeds.

The bidding was the highest ever known for a government-owned oil project, and probably higher than any received by private landowners.

Of the nine companies sharing in the output, five will get 16% each of the total oil and four will receive 5%.

• • • •

CITY OIL officials reported these findings as evidence of the overwhelming success of the net-proceeds method of bidding on which the city insisted from the start of the development planning.

They also noted that the wide spread of the distribution of the oil, with each participant getting only a small minority share, seems to preclude fears that the issue of monopoly control will be raised.

• • • •

THE AVERAGE figure of 96.2528% gives due weight to the fact that the lowest of the six bids—95.56%—covers 50% of the production.

It does not take into account the fact that the 80% contractor assumes the added responsibility of operating the whole field and also must pay $51 million in advance royalties within three years. Some oil-company executives have said that the advance payments are the equivalent of 2% in the bidding.

According to city officials, the five-firm combine filing the top bid for the major interest will share equally in the output. That gives each of the five — Humble, Shell, Socony Mobil, Texaco and Union—16% of the total production.

Pauley Petroleum Co. and Allied Chemical Corp., with a high bid of 98.277% for a 10% interest, will get 5% each of the total.

And Richfield Oil Corp. and Standard Oil Company of California, apparent winners of four successive smaller offerings totaling 10% with bids ranging from 99.54% to 100%, will qualify for 5% each.

• • • •

THE ACTUAL return to the city and state over the 35-year term of the contracts depends on so many variable factors that no responsible expert would attempt to pinpoint it.

Gross value of the oil is estimated at some $2.2 billion. Contractors are allowed reimbursement of development expenses—including extra amounts that must be spent as protection against subsidence. Consensus appeared to be that the city and state will split something like 60% of the gross after all the bills are paid and the contractors get this net shares.

Six contract awards are scheduled Tuesday by the City Council.

• • • •

CITY MANAGER John R. Mansell said he would file a report on the bidding at that time, along with resolutions authorizing him to sign the contracts after the State Lands Commission has approved. The commission's meeting for that purpose is scheduled for March 2.

Under that schedule, the contracts will become effective April 1. Construction of the first of the offshore islands, as well as drilling into the west section of the field from Pier J, could begin as early as midsummer.

School Exec's Boat Blast Fatal to One

SAUSALITO (AP)—Explosions aboard a former Coast Guard cutter Saturday started a blaze that destroyed the 83-foot boat and killed at least one man.

A body was found half submerged in bilgewater under an engine, firemen said after they brought the fire under control. The boat was docked in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor.

The body was identified as Charles W. Sellick, 58, of south San Francisco, assistant school superintendent.

The Coast Guard and firemen said the initial explosion probably was caused by spilled gasoline. Two other explosions occurred within two minutes of the first.

• • • •

"IT SOUNDED like an 8-inch cannon going off in your ear," said Roy Batho, who was working on his own boat near the scene of the explosion, some 75 yards north of State Sen. Eugene McAteer's restaurant, the Spinnaker.

Pieces of deck were shot into the air by the blasts and smoke billowed over the harbor. Curious motorists caused a traffic snarl as they headed for the dock area after hearing the explosions.

The destroyed boat was bought about a year ago by Sellick.

His wife, Lura, said he left the house about 1:30 p.m. Saturday for Sausalito. She had not heard from him an hour after the explosion.

• • • •

SHE ESTIMATED the value of the boat at between $25,000 and $30,000.

Sausalito fire fighters were joined by the Coast Guard, which sent a helicopter over the burning boat spraying foam.

The Coast Guard also sent three boats to the blaze.

Firemen said the main explosion occurred probably in the starboard engine located under the deck. The boat had two 600-horsepower engines.

Texan Serves British Summons

DALLAS (UPI) — Deputy Constable D. W. Smith upholds British justice—even if he is a Texan.

Smith served a summons this week on a Dallas woman issued by the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, London, England.

The unidentified woman is accused of walking out of a London inn without paying the tab of 270 pounds ($756).

Mountain Under Sea Discovered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A seagoing scientific expedition has discovered a submerged mountain, nearly two miles high, in the Pacific Ocean about 200 miles off the coast of Chile, the Philadelphia Bulletin said in a copyrighted story Saturday.

The story was written by Karl Abraham of the Bulletin staff, who worked his way aboard the Robert D. Conrad, oceanographic research vessel from Columbia University's Lamont Geological Observatory. He took part in the discovery.

• • • •

ABRAHAM REPORTED:

"Towering 10,410 feet above the ocean floor, almost 1,000 feet higher than Mt. Olympus, of Greek-legend fame, the mountain has at least two peaks. Its base sprawls across 20 miles of the sandy, sediment-laden sea bottom."

Abraham said the discovery was made on Feb. 6, during a 3,500-mile zig-zag course from Panama to Antofagasta, Chile.

USW Ballot Recount Set for Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The official count in the bitter United Steelworkers election starts Monday with an estimated 50,000 votes to be tabulated.

How soon the count will be completed is problematical. Under the union's constitution, the international tellers must report the official count to the locals by May 1.

However, the guess is the outcome will be announced earlier — possibly within a week.

The count will be made by the tellers under supervision of the Honest Ballot Association. About 980,000 steelworkers in some 3,300 locals were eligible to vote.

Both incumbent President David J. McDonald, bidding for a fourth straight four-year term, and challenger I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, claimed victory.

Horse Shoeing Course

ORONO, Maine (UPI)—The University of Maine is offering, between April 11 and May 1, a course in horse shoeing.

STUFF ENVELOPES

Volunteer Unit Seeks Helpers

SAN PEDRO — Helpers were sought today by the Volunteer Bureau, 1427 S. Pacific Ave., for stuffing envelopes.

"This is an ideal placement for young and old, as it is a sitdown job in which volunteers may choose their own hours," Mrs. Clarite Turner said. "The work will help hundreds of children."

Volunteers for the odd-hour (but no pay) envelope stuffing may apply at the bureau's office between 9 a.m. and 12 noon on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, Mrs. Turner said.

SHE RATES PALM FOR DEVOTED WORK

A Love Letter to Lady Bird Johnson

BY WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, L-P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Back in the days when Thomas E. Dewey was politically prominent, one man said of him: "You can't really dislike him until you get to know him well."

This aphorism came to mind recently in connection with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, about whom the exact opposite could be said: "You can't really like Lady Bird until you get to know her well."

For reasons which escape the writer, the so-called "public image" of the First Lady comes out quite differently from what she is really like. One doesn't say that her public image is bad. It isn't, but those who don't know her and form their impressions of her from photographs and television clips and from news stories and articles don't seem to grasp the essential charm and gracious intelligence which are hers.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON

THOMAS E. DEWEY

One reason for this may be that Mrs. Johnson photographs rather badly. Actually she is a very fine-looking lady, but I personally have never seen a photograph of her which does her justice. She doesn't dress badly, but here again photographs somehow or other always seem to make her clothes look baggy and ill-fitting, which they are not.

On my travels around the country I have often made the remark that I love Lady Bird. The almost automatic response of those who hear me say that has been to utter an incredulous, "You must be kidding!" I am not kidding. To me, Mrs. Johnson is one of the most attractive and most intelligent women I ever knew. If someone were to ask me to pick a dinner partner out this whole wide world, I would most certainly choose Lady Bird.

Her range of interests are wide and diverse. She talks easily, intelligently and with true Southern gentility and graciousness — a combination not often encountered these days.

It is hard to imagine anyone who works harder at the arduous task of being First Lady. There is almost no assignment which she doesn't take on cheerfully and do well.

Perhaps some of the dowdyness with which her public image is clothed stems from the fact that as First Lady she succeeded Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Anyone following Mrs. Kennedy in the public eye would have a tough time of it. Dolly Madison may have been as glamorous in her time as Jackie is in hers, but outside of the storied Dolly no First Lady in history so caught the public imagination as did Jacqueline. During her time in the White House, Jackie was poised, beautiful, a fashion pacesetter, and looked like what every woman would like herself to look like. In the looks and public image department, there is just no way of competing with Mrs. Kennedy.

If the palm for looks and chic must go to Jacqueline, the palm for devoted, never-ending and good-humored work at the job as First Lady must go to Lady Bird. She's in there pitching every moment and sometimes it seems as if she never does turn down any request to add her dignity and charm to any worthwhile cause. She shows up at benefits, receptions, cocktail parties, dinners, recitals, meetings to promote causes close to her husband's heart, and almost anything else you can think of. She does it all so well and so quietly and so unobtrusively that the fact that she is doing it manages to escape wide public notice. Lady Bird just doesn't have the flair for publicity with which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was endowed. The latter, incidentally, must be ranked close to the top among the hard-working first ladies.

Mrs. Johnson is gay, amusing, a very good dancer, a good listener, and an altogether delightful person to be with. She is, in her quiet way, proceeding full steam on such projects as beautifying Washington, expanding our cultural activities, cleaning up American cities, and in general, she is acting and behaving precisely as a First Lady should.

If all of the above sounds like a mash note to Mrs. Johnson from an uninhibited middle-aged admirer, that is exactly what it is meant to be.

High Bidders on LB Oil to Pay Average of 96.2528% of Net

By GEORGE WEEKS

High bidders for the billion-barrel Long Beach tideland oil production will pay the city and state a weighted average of 96.2528% of net proceeds.

The bidding was the highest ever known for a government-owned oil project, and probably higher than any received by private landowners.

Of the nine companies sharing in the output, five will get 16% each of the total oil and four will receive 5%.

* * * *

CITY OIL officials reported these findings as evidence of the overwhelming success of the net-proceeds method of bidding on which the city insisted from the start of the development planning.

They also noted that the wide spread of the distribution of the oil, with each participant getting only a small minority share, seems to preclude fears that the issue of monopoly control will be raised.

* * * *

THE AVERAGE figure of 96.2528% gives due weight to the fact that the lowest of the six bids—95.56%—covers 80% of the production.

It does not take into account the fact that the 80% contractor assumes the added responsibility of operating the whole field and also must pay $51 million in advance royalties within three years. Some oil-company executives have said that the advance payments are the equivalent of 2% in the bidding.

According to city officials, the five-firm combine filing the top bid for the major interest will share equally in the output. That gives each of the five — Humble, Shell, Socony Mobil, Texaco and Union—16% of the total production.

Pauley Petroleum Co. and Allied Chemical Corp., with a high bid of 98.277% for a 10% interest, will get 5% each of the total.

And Richfield Oil Corp. and Standard Oil Company of California, apparent winners of four successive smaller offerings totaling 10% with bids ranging from 99.54% to 100%, will qualify for 5% each.

* * * *

THE ACTUAL return to the city and state over the 35-year term of the contracts depends on so many variable factors that no responsible expert would attempt to pinpoint it.

Gross value of the oil is estimated at some $2.2 billion. Contractors are allowed reimbursement of development expenses—including extra amounts that must be spent as protection against subsidence. Consensus appeared to be that the city and state will split something like 60% of the gross after all the bills are paid and the contractors get this net shares.

Six contract awards are scheduled Tuesday by the City Council.

* * * *

CITY MANAGER John R. Mansell said he would file a report on the bidding at that time, along with resolutions authorizing him to sign the contracts after the State Lands Commission has approved. The commission's meeting for that purpose is scheduled for March 2.

Under that schedule, the contracts will become effective April 1. Construction of the first of the offshore islands, as well as drilling into the west section of the field from Pier J, could begin as early as midsummer.

School Exec's Boat Blast Fatal to One

SAUSALITO (UPI)—Explosions aboard a former Coast Guard cutter Saturday started a blaze that destroyed the 83-foot boat and killed at least one man.

A body was found half submerged in bilgewater under an engine, firemen said after they brought the fire under control. The boat was docked in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor.

bor. The body was identified as Charles W. Sellick, 58, of south San Francisco, assistant school superintendent.

The Coast Guard and firemen said the initial explosion probably was caused by spilled gasoline. Two other explosions occurred within two minutes of the first.

* * * *

"IT SOUNDED like an 8-inch cannon going off in your ear," said Roy Batho, who was working on his own boat near the scene of the explosion, some 75 yards north of State Sen. Eugene McAteer's restaurant, the Spinnaker.

Pieces of deck were shot into the air by the blasts and smoke billowed over the harbor. Curious motorists caused a traffic snarl as they headed for the dock area after hearing the explosions.

The destroyed boat was bought about a year ago by Sellick.

His wife, Lura, said he left the house about 1:30 p.m. Saturday for Sausalito. She had not heard from him an hour after the explosion.

* * * *

SHE ESTIMATED the value of the boat at between $25,000 and $30,000.

Sausalito fire fighters were joined by the Coast Guard, which sent a helicopter over the burning boat spraying foam.

The Coast Guard also sent three boats to the blaze.

Firemen said the main explosion occurred probably in the starboard engine located under the deck. The boat had two 600-horsepower engines.

Texan Serves British Summons

DALLAS (UPI) — Deputy Constable D. W. Smith upholds British justice—even if he is a Texan.

Smith served a summons this week on a Dallas woman issued by the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division, London, England.

The unidentified woman is accused of walking out of a London inn without paying the tab of 270 pounds ($756).

SHE RATES PALM FOR DEVOTED WORK

A Love Letter to Lady Bird Johnson

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Back in the days when Thomas E. Dewey was politically prominent, one man said of him: "You can't really dislike him until you get to know him well."

This aphorism came to mind recently in connection with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, about whom the exact opposite could be said: "You can't really like Lady Bird until you get to know her well."

For reasons which escape the writer, the so-called "public image" of the First Lady comes out quite differently from what she is really like. One doesn't say that her public image is bad. It isn't, but those who don't know her and form their impressions of her from photographs and television clips and from news stories and articles don't seem to grasp the essential charm and gracious intelligence which are hers.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON

One reason for this may be that Mrs. Johnson photographs rather badly. Actually she is a very fine-looking lady, but I personally have never seen a photograph of her which does her justice. She doesn't dress badly, but here again photographs somehow or other always seem to make her clothes look baggy and ill-fitting, which they are not.

On my travels around the country I have often made the remark that I love Lady Bird. The almost automatic response of those who hear me say that has been to utter an incredulous, "You must be kidding!" I am not kidding. To me, Mrs. Johnson is one of the most attractive and most intelligent women I ever knew. If someone were to ask me to pick a dinner partner out this whole wide world, I would most certainly choose Lady Bird.

Her range of interests are wide and diverse. She talks easily, intelligently and with true Southern gentility and graciousness — a combination not often encountered these days.

It is hard to imagine anyone who works harder at the arduous task of being First Lady. There is almost no assignment which she doesn't take on cheerfully and do well.

Perhaps some of the dowdyness with which her public image is clothed stems from the fact that as First Lady she succeeded Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Anyone following Mrs. Kennedy in the public eye would have a tough time of it. Dolly Madison may have been as glamorous in her time as Jackie is in hers, but outside of the storied Dolly no First Lady in history so caught the public imagination as did Jacqueline. During her time in the White House, Jackie was poised, beautiful, a fashion pacesetter, and looked like what every woman would like herself to look like. In the looks and public image department, there is just no way of competing with Mrs. Kennedy.

If the palm for looks and chic must go to Jacqueline, the palm for devoted, never-ending and good-humored work at the job as First Lady must go to Lady Bird. She's in there pitching every moment and sometimes it seems as if she never does turn down any request to add her dignity and charm to any worthwhile cause. She shows up at benefits, receptions, cocktail parties, dinners, recitals, meetings to promote causes close to her husband's heart, and almost anything else you can think of. She does it all so well and so quietly and so unobtrusively that the fact that she is doing it manages to escape wide public notice. Lady Bird just doesn't have the flair for publicity with which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was endowed. The latter, incidentally, must be ranked close to the top among the hard-working first ladies.

Mrs. Johnson is gay, amusing, a very good dancer, a good listener, and an altogether delightful person to be with. She is, in her quiet way, proceeding full steam on such projects as beautifying Washington, expanding our cultural activities, cleaning up American cities, and in general she is acting and behaving precisely as a First Lady should.

If all of the above sounds like a mash note to Mrs. Johnson from an uninhibited middle-aged admirer, that's exactly what it is meant to be.

Mountain Under Sea Discovered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A seagoing scientific expedition has discovered a submerged mountain, nearly two miles high, in the Pacific Ocean about 200 miles off the coast of Chile, the Philadelphia Bulletin said in a copyrighted story Saturday.

The story was written by Karl Abraham of the Bulletin staff, who worked his way aboard the Robert D. Conrad, oceanographic research vessel from Columbia University's Lamont Geological Observatory. He took part in the discovery.

* * * *

ABRAHAM REPORTED:

"Towering 10,410 feet above the ocean floor, almost 1,000 feet higher than Mt. Olympus, of Greek-legend fame, the mountain has at least two peaks. Its base sprawls across 20 miles of the sandy, sediment-laden sea bottom."

Abraham said the discovery was made on Feb. 6, during a 3,500-mile zig-zag course from Panama to Antofagasta, Chile.

USW Ballot Recount Set for Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The official count in the bitter United Steelworkers election starts Monday with an estimated 50,000 votes to be tabulated.

How soon the count will be completed is problematical. Under the union's constitution, the international tellers must report the official count to the locals by May 1.

However, the guess is the outcome will be announced earlier — possibly within a week.

The count will be made by the tellers under supervision of the Honest Ballot Association. About 980,000 steelworkers in some 3,300 locals were eligible to vote.

Both incumbent President David J. McDonald, bidding for a fourth straight four-year term, and challenger I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, claimed victory.

ORONO, Maine (UPI)—The University of Maine is offering, between April 11 and May 1, a course in horse shoeing.

STUFF ENVELOPES

Volunteer Unit Seeks Helpers

SAN PEDRO — Helpers were sought today by the Volunteer Bureau, 1427 S. Pacific Ave., for stuffing envelopes.

"This is an ideal placement for young and old, as it is a sitdown job in which volunteers may choose their own hours," Mrs. Clarite Turner said. "The work will help hundreds of children."

Volunteers for the odd-hour (but no pay) envelope stuffing may apply at the bureau's office between 9 a.m. and 12 noon on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, Mrs. Turner said.

SEN. GEORGE MURPHY

The Legislator Everybody Knows

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The freshman senator from California is known far beyond the borders of his state—better in fact than many a politician, thanks to the late, late TV show. Here is George Murphy, in the moment of his triumph in gaining a new career.)

By GENE HUNSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In Hollywood, the make-believe capital of the world, people are accustomed to instant magic so it really was no trick at all for the handsome new sign to blossom quickly on George Murphy's office door. It read:

"Mr. Murphy. U.S. Senator."

The trim, agile, neatly handsome 62-year-old Murphy seems as much at home with his new title—Junior Republican Senator from California—as the most veteran of senators. This may be the result of his skill as a veteran actor, but Murphy really has been practicing for the job a long, long time.

"I've worked for the Red Cross, the Community Chest, the Boy Scouts, the Hollywood Association, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Y.M.C.A. I've had business experience. I've been active in politics for 25 years — I worked with Warren, Nixon, Knowland," he says, in a partial recital of his non-theatrical involvements.

• • • • •

BUT IT WASN'T until the middle of 1963 that the notion of seeking elective office was given him.

"Some ladies in Long Beach suggested it," he recalled after his November election, "when I addressed the State Federation of Republican Women there. We researched the idea, and the results were good. I was very flattered, and the suggestion began to make sense."

Thinking of Murphy as a politician does not come easily to most Americans these days. It is not because Murphy is the hottest box-office draw in moviedom, because he has not made a film for more than 10 years. He doesn't even remember the name of the last Murphy picture. But thanks to TV and the late, late show, there are millions of people who see him still as a movie performer.

• • • • •

HIS OPPONENT, Sen. Pierre Salinger, once press secretary to President John F. Kennedy, made frequent allusions during the campaign to Murphy's movie career. Says Murphy:

"Salinger used to refer to me as a song and dance man. I guess that was supposed to disturb me, which it didn't.

"I danced with the best—Fred Astaire, Buddy Ebsen, Ginger Rogers, Shirley Temple."

The song-and-dance clearly didn't hurt a bit in the voting booths where Murphy, the underdog candidate, outran Salinger 3,628,555 to 3,411,912. That was in a state where there are four registered Democrats to every three registered Republicans, and where President Johnson topped Sen. Barry Goldwater by a plurality of more than 1.2 million.

• • • • •

CAMPAIGNING for Murphy were such movie celebrities as Ebsen, Irene Dunne, James Stewart, Cesar Romero, Ricardo Montalban, Joe E. Brown and Andy Devine.

Murphy, who was born in New Haven, Conn., July 4, 1902, was the son of Mike Murphy, coach of the Olympic track teams of 1908 and 1912. George went to prep school and finally Yale University. On his way toward the stage, he waited on tables, worked as a steerer for a tailor, loaded coal in Pennsylvania mines and was a bouncer in a Newark dance hall. In 1927, he took up life on the stage—as a dancer. At one point, he teamed with a Detroit girl, Julie Johnson, in a night club act. She's been his partner since, at home. They have two children, a son, Dennis, 26, and daughter, Missy, 21, who is married and lives in Colorado.

As befits a onetime bouncer, longtime dancer and son of a track coach, George Murphy stays fit. He's nearly 6 feet tall, and nearly 200 pounds.

• • • • •

MURPHY'S administrative activity began years ago, as he pointed out in his campaign. He was a two-term president of the Screen Actors Guild, commencing in 1944, and moved to a front-office industry post in 1954, as a vice president of MGM. He then was an executive with Desilu Productions and in 1960 became a V. P. in charge of public relations for Technicolor Corp. He'll continue on the Technicolor payroll, as a consultant, and at a radically reduced pay.

"I had my lawyers examine the status of that carefully for any conflict of interest," he says.

Technicolor's Edward E. Ettinger, who was treasurer of Murphy's campaign, discusses Murphy's successful campaign strategy and says:

"He has a charm about him that gets things done. Married 38 years in an industry that's full of scandal . . . two children . . . a reputation that nobody can point a finger at. We merchandised those abilities he had — and his character — and helped get the money started. He's going to be a breath of fresh air in Washington."

Murphy, referring to his activity as president of the Screen Actors Guild, says "I was a union leader for many years—I didn't get any union endorsements, but I got a helluva lot of union votes. And I've got a good reputation for being honest and decent.

"I was appearing nightly on the late, late shows, and I had some good advisers and helpers, like Walt Disney, General Eisenhower and Bing Crosby."

And what does the Junior Senator from California hope to concentrate upon in the nation's capitol?

1. Re-establishment of the program under which braceros—Mexican farmhands—work in California fields. 2. Programs to convert ocean salt water to fresh water. 3 Jobs—"We've got to find ways to create more industry in this state."

In a town that has an easy way with first names, it seemed out of keeping to some people to attempt familiarity with him. He was asked about how he should be addressed.

"Damned if I know," says Murphy. And then—"Call me George."

County Welfare Probe Futile, Supervisors Told

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A full set of the state's manuals, bulletins and letters which spell out all phases of the public assistance program in Los Angeles County weighs 105 pounds.

This is symbolic of the "complete policy and administrative control" which the state excercises over the welfare program, and explains why any local investigation would be "a futile expenditure of county funds," according to L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

Such an investigation by a private firm was recommended by the 1964 county grand jury in its annual report.

• • • • •

HOLLINGER'S comments came in the report which the supervisors, by law, must make within 60 days after receiving the grand jury recommendations.

The jury's proposal for "a thorough investigation of the Department of Charities" with recommendations for improvement was based on a suggestion by Superior Judge Roger Alton Pfaff.

Hollinger said William A. Barr, Los Angeles County superintendent of charities, "heartily agrees with Judge Pfaff's desire for improvements in the operation of public welfare programs," but does not believe any local investigation can bring this result.

• • • • •

THE CURRENT budget for the Bureau of Public Assistance is $352.5 million, Hollinger pointed out, but the State Department of Social Welfare excercises "complete policy and administrative control" of all but 2% of this amount. The 2% is the 7.5 million budgeted for general county assistance.

No matter what improved procedures were recommended by any local investigation, Hollinger said, nothing could be put into effect without the agreement of the State Department of Social Welfare.

He pointed out that Gov. Brown several years ago named a Welfare Study Commission to increase efficiency of welfare throughout California. Los Angeles County Supervisor Ernest E. Debs and Barr were members of the commission.

• • • • •

ALTHOUGH the commission made a number of recommendations, in January 1963 to improve the program, Hollinger said, "to the best of our knowledge, not one of these procedures has been considered by the State Department of Social Welfare."

The grand jury made two recommendations on payments by contract cities for services received from the county, and Hollinger said his office agrees with both.

Jurors said the formula for computing the charges of law enforcement given such cities should be given "a complete review" not less than every five years.

• • • • •

THEY ALSO proposed the county study the legality of the present practice of applying general county overhead at 50% rather than 100% of full rates when billing the contract cities.

Jurors recommended the county seek to purchase both the Lincoln Heights jail and the Saugus Rehabilitation Center from the city of Los Angeles "at a reasonable price." Both Hollinger and Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess agreed this should be done, but pointed out that city officials are demanding a price "well in excess" of both the county offer and the estimated replacement cost of the Saugus facility.

Hollinger noted recent state and federal court decisions have had strong impact, not only on police, but on prosecuting attorneys and trial courts as well.

He urged supervisors to refer the jury statements to the county's newly formed Crime and Delinquency Commission for "a positive program of action," including legislation, if necessary.

Supervisors are expected to adopt Hollinger's recommended response to the grand jury report when they meet Tuesday.

Exchange Club Will Hear City's Aeronautics Chief

Nicholas Dallas, director of aeronautics for Long Beach, will speak on "What the Long Beach Airport Means to Long Beach" at a luncheon of the Long Beach Exchange Club on Wednesday at the Lafayette Hotel.

Dallas is vitally concerned with the promotion and development of aviation in Long Beach. A major part of this activity is the management of Long Beach Airport, heliports and helipads within the city.

Dallas relates that the concept of an airport being only an airline terminal is rapidly changing. Realization that a broad spectrum of aviation activities is a major economic asset to the community has served as a springboard for development of corporate business aviation, aircraft sales and services, and the many supporting functions of general aviation. It is in this area that the most rapid growth in the industry is taking place.

Chairman for the day is Dr. Lloyd P. Mallin.

SEN. GEORGE MURPHY

The Legislator Everybody Knows

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The freshman senator from California is known far beyond the borders of his state—better in fact than many a politician, thanks to the late, late TV show. Here is George Murphy, in the moment of his triumph in gaining a new career.)

By GENE HUNSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In Hollywood, the make-believe capital of the world, people are accustomed to instant magic so it really was no trick at all for the handsome new sign to blossom quickly on George Murphy's office door. It read:

"Mr. Murphy. U.S. Senator."

The trim, agile, neatly handsome 62-year-old Murphy seems as much at home with his new title—Junior Republican Senator from California—as the most veteran of senators. This may be the result of his skill as a veteran actor, but Murphy really has been practicing for the job a long, long time.

"I've worked for the Red Cross, the Community Chest, the Boy Scouts, the Hollywood Association, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Y.M.C.A. I've had business experience. I've been active in politics for 25 years — I worked with Warren, Nixon, Knowland." he says, in a partial recital of his non-theatrical involvements.

* * * *

BUT IT WASN'T until the middle of 1963 that the notion of seeking elective office was given him.

"Some ladies in Long Beach suggested it," he recalled after his November election, "when I addressed the State Federation of Republican Women there. We researched the idea, and the results were good. I was very flattered, and the suggestion began to make sense."

Thinking of Murphy as a politician does not come easily to most Americans these days. It is not because Murphy is the hottest box-office draw in moviedom, because he has not made a film for more than 10 years. He doesn't even remember the name of the last Murphy picture. But thanks to TV and the late, late show, there are millions of people who see him still as a movie performer.

* * * *

HIS OPPONENT, Sen. Pierre Salinger, once press secretary to President John F. Kennedy, made frequent allusions during the campaign to Murphy's movie career.

Says Murphy:

"Salinger used to refer to me as a song and dance man. I guess that was supposed to disturb me, which it didn't.

"I danced with the best—Fred Astaire, Buddy Ebsen, Ginger Rogers, Shirley Temple."

The song-and-dance clearly didn't hurt a bit in the voting booths where Murphy, the underdog candidate, outran Salinger 3,628,555 to 3,411,912. That was in a state where there are four registered Democrats to every three registered Republicans, and where President Johnson topped Sen. Barry Goldwater by a plurality of more than 1.2 million.

* * * *

CAMPAIGNING for Murphy were such movie celebrities as Ebsen, Irene Dunne, James Stewart, Cesar Romero, Ricardo Montalban, Joe E. Brown and Andy Devine.

Murphy, who was born in New Haven, Conn., July 4, 1902, was the son of Mike Murphy, coach of the Olympic track teams of 1908 and 1912. George went to prep school and finally Yale University. On his way toward the stage, he waited on tables, worked as a steerer for a tailor, loaded coal in Pennsylvania mines and was a bouncer in a Newark dance hall. In 1927, he took up life on the stage—as a dancer. At one point, he teamed with a Detroit girl, Julie Johnson, in a night club act. She's been his partner since, at home. They have two children, a son, Dennis, 26, and daughter, Missy; 21, who is married and lives in Colorado.

As befits a onetime bouncer, longtime dancer and son of a track coach, George Murphy stays fit. He's nearly 6 feet tall, and nearly 200 pounds.

* * * *

MURPHY'S administrative activity began years ago, as he pointed out in his campaign. He was a two-term president of the Screen Actors Guild, commencing in 1944, and moved to a front-office industry post in 1954, as a vice president of MGM. He then was an executive with Desilu Productions and in 1960 became a V. P. in charge of public relations for Technicolor Corp. He'll continue on the Technicolor payroll as a consultant, and at a radically reduced pay.

"I had my lawyers examine the status of that carefully for any conflict of interest," he says.

Technicolor's Edward E. Ettinger, who was treasurer of Murphy's campaign, discusses Murphy's successful campaign strategy and says:

"He has a charm about him that gets things done. Married 38 years in an industry that's full of scandal . . . two children . . . a reputation that nobody can point a finger at. We merchandised those abilities he had — and his character — and helped get the money started. He's going to be a breath of fresh air in Washington."

Murphy, referring to his activity as president of the Screen Actors Guild, says "I was a union leader for many years—I didn't get any union endorsements, but I got a helluva lot of union votes. And I've got a good reputation for being honest and decent.

"I was appearing nightly on the late, late shows, and I had some good advisers and helpers, like Walt Disney, General Eisenhower and Bing Crosby."

And what does the Junior Senator from California hope to concentrate upon in the nation's capitol?

1. Re-establishment of the program under which braceros—Mexican farmhands—work in California fields. 2. Programs to convert ocean salt water to fresh water. 3 Jobs—"We've got to find ways to create more industry in this state."

In a town that has an easy way with first names, it seemed out of keeping to some people to attempt familiarity with him. He was asked about how he should be addressed.

"Damned if I know," says Murphy. And then—"Call me George."

County Welfare Probe Futile, Supervisors Told

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A full set of the state's manuals, bulletins and letters which spell out all phases of the public assistance program in Los Angeles County weighs 105 pounds.

This is symbolic of the "complete policy and administrative control" which the state excercises over the welfare program, and explains why any local investigation would be "a futile expenditure of county funds," according to L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer.

Such an investigation by a private firm was recommended by the 1964 county grand jury in its annual report.

* * * *

HOLLINGER'S comments came in the report which the supervisors, by law, must make within 60 days after receiving the grand jury recommendations.

The jury's proposal for "a thorough investigation of the Department of Charities" with recommendations for improvement was based on a suggestion by Superior Judge Roger Alton Pfaff.

Hollinger said William A. Barr, Los Angeles County superintendent of charities, "heartily agrees with Judge Pfaff's desire for improvements in the operation of public welfare programs," but does not believe any local investigation can bring this result.

* * * *

THE CURRENT budget for the Bureau of Public Assistance is $352.5 million, Hollinger pointed out, but the State Department of Social Welfare excercises "complete policy and administrative control" of all but 2% of this amount. The 2% is the 7.5 million budgeted for general county assistance.

No matter what improved procedures were recommended by any local investigation, Hollinger said, nothing could be put into effect without the agreement of the State Department of Social Welfare.

He pointed out that Gov. Brown several years ago named a Welfare Study Commission to increase efficiency of welfare throughout California. Los Angeles County Supervisor Ernest E. Debs and Barr were members of the commission.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH the commission made a number of recommendations, in January 1963 to improve the program, Hollinger said, "to the best of our knowledge, not one of these procedures has been considered by the State Department of Social Welfare."

The grand jury made two recommendations on payments by contract cities for services received from the county, and Hollinger said his office agrees with both.

Jurors said the formula for computing the charges of law enforcement given such cities should be given "a complete review" not less than every five years.

* * * *

THEY ALSO proposed the county study the legality of the present practice of applying general county overhead at 50% rather than 100% of full rates when billing the contract cities.

Jurors recommended the county seek to purchase both the Lincoln Heights jail and the Saugus Rehabilitation Center from the city of Los Angeles "at a reasonable price." Both Hollinger and Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess agreed this should be done, but pointed out that city officials are demanding a price "well in excess" of both the county offer and the estimated replacement cost of the Saugus facility.

Hollinger noted recent state and federal court decisions have had strong impact, not only on police, but on prosecuting attorneys and trial courts as well.

He urged supervisors to refer the jury statements to the county's newly formed Crime and Delinquency Commission for "a positive program of action," including legislation, if necessary.

Supervisors are expected to adopt Hollinger's recommended response to the grand jury report when they meet Tuesday.

Strippers Seeking to Ban Bare-Bosom Waitresses

By JIM McCAULEY
I-P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Strippers and the American Guild of Variety Artists have thrown a curve at Southern California's topless fashion show.

They have endorsed a bill by Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves, D-Artesia, to allow cities to ban bare-bosom fashion shows at restaurants.

Strip-tease artists resent the competition of bare-bosom cafe waitresses.

• • • •

"THEY are unfair and discriminatory to professional performers," complained Jennie Lee, Hollywood stripper and president of the Exotique Dancers League of America.

In a letter to Gonsalves, Miss Lee told the plight of strippers in the era of the bare-bosom restaurant.

"It is hard for us to understand nude waitresses within touching distance of patrons while the girls on stage have to wear pasties and are kept prisoners in the dressing room," said Miss Lee.

JENNIE LEE

Miss Lee, a shapely blonde who displays a picture of herself in a plunging neckline on the letterhead of her business-letter, called for a "decent dress law."

• • • • •

FORECAST Miss Lee: "If this is not controlled it will open up many things that are very easily controlled now."

The stripper's fight for dress modesty was backed up by the Los Angeles branch executive committee of AGVA.

The guild adopted a resolution urging that the Gonsalves bill be amended to stiffen it considerably.

The union wants to ban partly clad females from restaurant jobs statewide.

The Gonsalves bill would allow local-option bare bosoms in communities that want to sanction topless fashion shows. Other cities could forbid such shows.

Meanwhile, the Artesia legislator revealed that the legislative counsel's office has ruled that the state has preempted the field on the subject of local laws on topless fashion shows.

• • • •

HE SAID he anticipates resolutions of support from Torrance, Norwalk, Fullerton and Los Angeles — cities where bare-bosom controversies are under way.

How did Assemblyman Gonsalves become the legislature's foremost authority on mammary displays?

Gonsalves is a former mayor of Dairy Valley. And all the cows go bare-bosom in Dairy Valley!

Widow Leaves $27 Million to Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A widow from Brooklyn, N.Y., left $27 million to Princeton University as part of an enduring memorial to her husband and son, the university president announced Saturday.

The money was the second-largest single gift in the history of the university, said Dr. Robert F. Goheen.

The bequest was from Mrs. Stanley P. Jadwin, who died last Oct. 4, three days before her 87th birthday.

Mrs. Jadwin's gift, and two others totaling $6 million, were announced by Goheen at the 51st annual midwinter meeting of the Princeton National Alumni Association.

Goheen told the alumni that the university was embarking on a ten-year program in which it hopes to raise $150 million for building and expansion programs.

The $33 million in gifts to the school is being earmarked for the expansion program, he said.

Mrs. Jadwin, the former Ethel Stockwell, presented gifts totaling more than $600,000 to Princeton during her lifetime.

"She told us she would do something nice for Princeton," said Goheen, "but none of us knew what was coming. We were bowled over."

The executors informed Goheen of the amount of the bequest last November.

Mrs. Jadwin made no restrictions on the use of the $27 million except for a provision that "suitable memorials for her husband and son be established," said Goheen.

Her son, Leander Stockwell Jadwin, was a 1928 graduate of Princeton who died in an automobile accident a year after leaving school. He captained the university track team in his senior year.

Mrs. Jadwin was widowed in 1936. Her husband, Stanley, a drug manufacturer, was president and treasurer of O. H. Jadwin Sons, Inc. He was a graduate of Columbia University.

Goheen told the alumni that the university was embarking on a ten-year program in which it hopes to raise $150 million for building and expansion programs.

The $33 million in gifts to the school is being earmarked for the expansion program, he said.

Mrs. Jadwin, the former Ethel Stockwell, presented gifts totaling more than $600,000 to Princeton during her lifetime.

"She told us she would do something nice for Princeton," said Goheen, "but none of us knew what was coming. We were bowled over."

The executors informed Goheen of the amount of the bequest last November.

Mrs. Jadwin made no restrictions on the use of the $27 million except for a provision that "suitable memorials for her husband and son be established," said Goheen.

Her son, Leander Stockwell Jadwin, was a 1928 graduate of Princeton who died in an automobile accident a year after leaving school. He captained the university track team in his senior year.

Mrs. Jadwin was widowed in 1936. Her husband, Stanley, a drug manufacturer, was president and treasurer of O. H. Jadwin Sons, Inc. He was a graduate of Columbia University.

ONE DROWNED, ONE STRANGLED

Call-Girl Scheme Ends in Death for Two Teens; Pair Charged

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Authorities filed first-degree murder charges Saturday against two men whose attempt to start a prostitution ring ended with the alleged slayings of two young girls.

Police said Theodore Duisen and James Clubb signed statements that they held 18-year-old Carrie (Crickett) Phipps under water in the Mississippi River until she drowned after she refused to work for them as a prostitute.

Duisen also is charged with strangling Mrs. Patricia Sutterfield, 17, who he says did work for him.

• • • •

"I DONT know how it all started," said Duisen, a 26-year-old with a long police record.

He was arrested at his suburban Fenton home Wednesday night after his wife, Glenda, a pretty red-haired woman, unexpectedly blurted out the story to Kansas City authorities.

St. Louis County police Det. Jack Patty, who had worked on one of the alleged killings since last June, said Mrs. Duisen apparently "came in with the story because she was afraid for her own life. She said she saw both killings." Mrs. Duisen was picked up in Kansas City during a routine investigation of another matter. She is held here as a material witness.

Det. Patty said county police gave her a series of polygraph tests that indicate she is telling the truth.

• • • •

DUISEN had maintained his innocence until Clubb surrendered Friday night, just before police were to close in on his home, and signed his statement.

PATRICIA SUTTERFIELD

CARRIE PHIPPS

THEODORE DUISEN

JAMES CLUBB

Duisen's statement said Mrs. Sutterfield was working for him in a St. Louis apartment but he wanted to expand his operation.

He and Clubb induced Miss Phipps to go to the apartment late last May but she refused to become involved in the ring. Duisen said they feared she might give them away so he blinded her by squirting shaving cream in her eyes so she couldn't place the location.

Then, Duisen said, the three drove the girl to a lonely spot on the Mississippi River. "I guess it's screwy but we just did it to see if we could scare her."

• • • •

AT THE river's bank, Duisen said, Miss Phipps yelled and waved at a passing river towboat for help. "That's when I pushed her in the water."

The girl struggled and Duisen asked Clubb to help hold her under. After a while, he said, they left the body in the river and walked away. It has never been found.

Clubb gave a similar account of the incident.

Several days later, Duisen said, he grew angry at Mrs. Sutterfield because she was causing trouble among the other three. Duisen said they slapped her around and then he shaved her head to humiliate her. Duisen is a barber.

He said he then strangled her with his hands but stopped and tried to revive her. Then, he said, he changed his mind and wrapped an electric cord around her throat.

• • • •

DUISEN and Clubb say they waited until dark, put the body in an auto trunk, drove to the Meramac River in St. Louis County and threw it in the water.

A few days later a woman's body — its hair and eyebrows shaved off —was found floating in the river and Det. Patty was assigned to the case.

Both men are charged by county authorities with first-degree murder for Miss Phipps's alleged drowning. A similar joint charge was being prepared by St. Louis city authorities in the Sutterfield case.

100,000 Stricken, Schools Closed in Warsaw Epidemic of Influenza

WARSAW (UPI) — More than 100,000 Warsaw residents have been stricken with influenza in the past 10 days, doctors said Saturday.

Schools have been closed. All available doctors and nurses have been thrown into the Polish capital's fight against flu.

Medical authorities barred visitors from hospitals and warned the public to avoid theaters and movie houses.

• • • •

BUT WARSAW residents have kept their zest for the social life. Despite the warnings, the city's coffee houses remain crowded and theaters and movie houses show no slack in business.

The flu, reported to have come from Moscow, also struck at Gdansk (Danzig) on the Baltic Coast. Medical officials there reported 2,200 new flu cases yesterday.

(In Stockholm, health officials said that influenza that nearly paralyzed the Soviet city of Leningrad had moved into Sweden via Finland. A virus was isolated from a Stockholm suburbanite who has visited Turku, Finland, earlier in the week.

• • • •

THERE was a number of other cases, origin of which was suspected to be the Russian epidemic.

(Scattered outbreaks of normal flu were also reported Saturday from Scaer, near Brest in western France and in the Kabylie Mountain region of Algeria. The Algerian number of deaths" among infants and the elderly in the epidemic).

Volunteer California Cotton Cut

FRESNO (UPI)—The Western Cotton Growers Association announced a plan Saturday which it said would save the government more than $250 million and reduce cotton production by two million acres.

John A. Reynolds, executive vice president of the association, said the plan would allow the government to pay any grower who wanted to participate one-half of the present cotton-price-support payment for the next five years. The grower would agree to retire his land from cotton production.

• • • •

"I ESTIMATE that over two million acres would be voluntarily retired under such a plan," Reynolds said. "Most of this acreage would probably come from smaller growers who would wish to take the cash or payments in kind to better themselves economically, take extra training, develop recreational resources, or go into other crops where they could make more money with no cost to the government."

He said the two million acres, at an estimated saving of $125 an acre, would amount to a total price-support saving of $250 million, "but the saving would continue for all future years, because the retired allotment could not be planted."

• • • •

THE PLAN also would ease "the dangerously high cotton carryover which threatens the whole cotton program," Reynolds said.

The association sent details of the plan to President Johnson and Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman.

Call-Girl Scheme Ends in Death for Two Teens; Pair Charged

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Authorities filed first-degree murder charges Saturday against two men whose attempt to start a prostitution ring ended with the alleged slayings of two young girls.

Police said Theodore Duisen and James Clubb signed statements that they held 18-year-old Carrie (Crickett) Phipps under water in the Mississippi River until she drowned after she refused to work for them as a prostitute.

Duisen also is charged with strangling Mrs. Patricia Sutterfield, 17, who he says did work for him.

Volunteer California Cotton Cut

FRESNO (UPI)—The Western Cotton Growers Association announced a plan Saturday which it said would save the government more than $250 million and reduce cotton production by two million acres.

John A. Reynolds, executive vice president of the association, said the plan would allow the government to pay any grower who wanted to participate one-half of the present cotton-price-support payment for the next five years. The grower would agree to retire his land from cotton production.

* * * *

"I ESTIMATE that over two million acres would be voluntarily retired under such a plan," Reynolds said. "Most of this acreage would probably come from smaller growers who would wish to take the cash or payments in kind to better themselves economically, take extra training, develop recreational resources, or go into other crops where they could make more money with no cost to the government."

He said the two million acres, at an estimated saving of $125 an acre, would amount to a total price-support saving of $250 million, "but the saving would continue for all future years, because the retired allotment could not be planted."

* * * *

THE PLAN also would ease "the dangerously high cotton carryover which threatens the whole cotton program," Reynolds said.

The association sent details of the plan to President Johnson and Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman.

Pope Creates His First Cardinals Monday

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI, who once rejected the honor for himself, creates his first cardinals Monday in an action that carries forward the 20th century renewal of the Roman Catholic Church.

His elevation of 27 churchmen brings the College of Cardinals to an historic high of 103 at a time when the cardinals' role is undergoing changes.

The Pope's choices for the college emphasize his efforts to give the highest bodies of his church a more international basis. There are prelates who have suffered behind the Iron Curtain, patriarchs whose elevation gives honor to Christians in the Middle East. There are English-speaking prelates committed to the Christian unity cause, progressive Europeans whose voices were strong in the Ecumenical Council, and also conservative Italians worried about haste in modernizing the church. The Pope has also named the church's second Negro cardinal and its first from the largely Buddhist Asian nation of Ceylon.

Archbishop Lawrence Joseph Shehan of Baltimore is the only American.

THEIR UNIFORMS are little changed from those of a century ago but the Salvation Army's Joy Strings is in the grove in fashionable Blue Angel nightclub in Mayfair, London. Similar pop groups are being formed in England as the Army seeks to attract the young.

Salvation Army, 100, Goes Swinging Along

By GODFREY ANDERSON

LONDON (AP)—Facing its 100th birthday, the Salvation Army is making a reappraisal of its role in the modern world.

The long-term strategy of saving souls and exposing evil social conditions remains the same. It is rather the short-term tactics which are changed. If a few objectives have been won in some parts of the world, the Army's battle is far from over.

Poverty—at least in Europe and the United States—is not the great problem it was a hundred years ago. Soup kitchens are no longer needed for the near-starving. But other social problems are still around and some of them are worse than ever—alcoholism, narcotics, the human debris of broken homes, unmarried mothers, etc.

• • • •

"THE WELFARE state doesn't solve everything," says Gen. Frederick Coutts, the Army's world-wide commander. "The mesh of government services is too wide and lets many slip through. But in an affluent society the people have to be persuaded of the need for salvation."

Says Swedish-born Commissioner Erik Wickberg, chief of staff at international headquarters, the Army's No. 2 man:

"The basic problems remain those which faced Gen. William Booth, the Army's founder, a century ago—alcoholism, prostitution and juvenile crime. But now we have to worry about pep pills and tranquilizers too. Drug addiction is increasing."

A lack of competent officers, as full-time career Salvationists are called, is slowing the Army's advance on its social front. This problem is particularly acute in Britain because most of the Army's missionaries are sent out from here.

• • • •

TODAY THERE are only 238 officer cadets in the International Training College in London as compared with 400 a few years ago.

Top Salvationists are also worried that the Army may be losing its old contact with the common people. They note a cynical, world-weary attitude among Europeans since the war.

BUST of William Booth, Salvation Army founder, looks across heavy traffic near the site on London's Mile End Road, where he preached 100 years ago.

"It isn't blatant atheism, rather an indifference toward any form of religion," Wickberg said. "Shifts of population, the family car, instant religion watched from an armchair at home on television—all these have had their effect.

"The bands still play in the streets. We know they would be missed if they didn't. But fewer people come. Many of our best meeting sites have been taken over for parking lots. And often our witness can't be heard over the roaring buses."

• • • •

THE ANSWER to the recruiting problem is seen as going after youth and making youth aware of opportunities for service. Said the gray-haired, bespectacled Wickberg:

"Above all we have to go for the young. And we have to go for the young by using the young to win them. They won't listen to the rest of us."

First shot in this campaign was formation of the Joy Strings pop group of boy and girl Salvationists. They have played in the busy streets of London, on the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral and even in a smart west end night club where liquor was served.

"I don't like their music but they do appeal," said Wickberg. "Now the model of the Joy Strings is being copied in many corps throughout Britain. But we have to watch this sort of thing—that they don't overstep the mark. After all, we don't want to Beatleize the Salvation Army."

• • • •

Things have certainly changed for the Salvation Army in a hundred years. The once despised "curb stone church" has national acclaim in its homeland.

Perhaps the ultimate recognition will come on July 2, during the centenary celebrations, when a Salvation Army service will be held for the first time in hallowed Westminster Abbey, scene of coronations.

Today the Salvation Army has more than 5,000 officers in the United States alone, and 8,072 work and worship centers with 283,109 members there.

The Salvation Army is active in 69 countries throughout the world, including 11 in Europe. It uses 162 languages for preaching the Word. It operates from about 18,000 centers, including more than 2,000 social institutions, and it has nearly 900 day-schools, mostly in non-Christian lands. Nearly 40,000 bandsmen and 16,000 boys play Salvation Army music.

• • • •

THE ARMY operates more than 3,000 welfare institutions, including 31 general hospitals, 70 clinics, 367 hostels for homeless men and women, 66 employment bureaus, 88 maternity hoes for unwed mothers, 38 maternity hospitals, 145 children's homes, 30 boarding schools, 115 camps, six leprosaria, 10 institutes for the blind, 30 centers for alcoholics, and 51 residence hotels.

The Army's ventures in the world business have prospered.

Much of the Army's capital is tied up in the bricks and mortar of its institutions. No one at international headquarters in London will give even an approximate figure of what the Army may be worth today. Each country has its own national budget, and balance sheets are published annually in each country.

AROUND the world the Salvation Army lass's bonnet is recognized and respected. Here it is worn by cadets of Army's training school, serv-hot food as part of the S.A. winter relief program in Japan.

Orangutan Incubator Baby

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A baby orangutan is getting incubator care—just like a human baby—at the St. Louis zoo.

The diaper-clad orangutan is being tended by three zoo employes, who feed it from a bottle containing formula like that given human infants.

The orangutan, Moody J.R., named for veteran zoo employe Moody Joseph Rutherford Lentz, was taken from its parents 48 hours after it was born. Lentz is one of the baby's caretakers.

Zoo authorities said it was feared that the mother might lose interest in the baby, and that it would die.

The zoo raised one other orangutan by incubator. That one, Henry, is now 18 months old and is described as very healthy.

Long Beach's McCullouch, Frenn Place

Earl Runs 3rd in AAU Indoor; Weight Ace 2nd

Compiled from Wire Reports

NEW YORK—Hurdler Earl McCullouch ran third in the National AAU indoor track and field championships Saturday night, while another Long Beach athlete, George Frenn, placed second in the 35-pound weight throw.

McCullouch, the Long Beach City College flash, was third to winner Ralph Boston and runnerup Roger Morgan in the 60-yard high hurdles over the boards of Madison Square Garden.

Frenn, a Long Beach State College student, was second to Hal Connolly in the weight throw held at the 34th Street Armory.

Connolly let go a tremendous heave of 70 feet, ½ inch, but Frenn's toss of 66-8 was the best ever by a collegian. However, Frenn's college eligibility has expired and he is not officially representing Long Beach State, so no record will be allowed.

VETERAN Jim Grelle of Los Angeles won the mile in 4:07.4 and plucky Jack Yerman made a gallant comeback to win the 600.

Grelle, former Oregon star, jockeyed through a comparatively slowly-paced mile until he wrested the lead from Poland's Witold Baran with a half lap to go and went on to win by six yards.

Yerman, an Olympic veteran representing the Santa Clara Youth Village of California, took a nasty spill on the first turn of the 600 and the starter recalled the field.

After another false start, the race finally got away and Yerman, shaken but obviously uninjured, kept in comfortable position until he made his final charge coming off the last turn.

Yerman caught Poland's Andrzej Badenski and shot into the tape with a two-yard margin over Lt. Frank Tomeo of the Quantico Marines, who grabbed second.

VALERIY Brumel of Russia soared 7-2 to win his eighth striaght high jump event at the Garden and Billy Pemelton of Mercedes, Tex., won the pole vault as the only flyer in the field to top 16 feet.

Defending champion John Uelses of LaSalle tied for second in the pole vault with Ron Morris, Olympic veteran from the Southern California Striders, at 15-6 with Russia's Gennady Bliznetsov and Floyd Manning of the Striders tied for fourth at the same height on the basis of more misses.

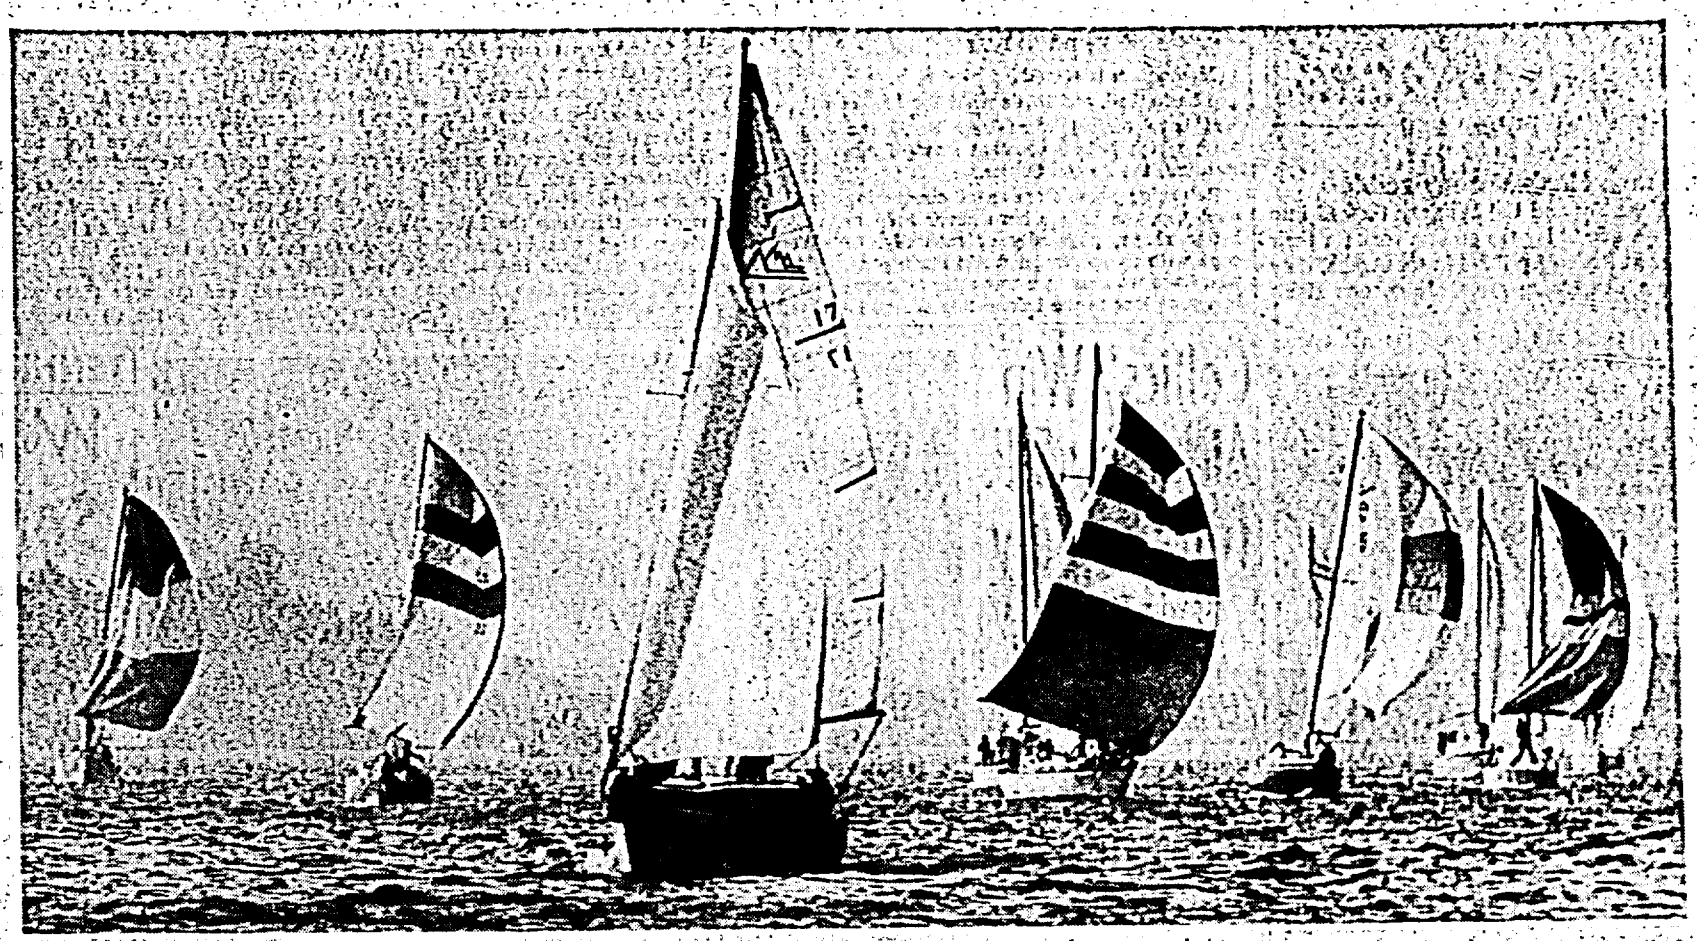

Sam Perry of Fordham won the men's 60 in six seconds flat and Wyomia Tyus of Tennessee State won the women's 60 by equalling the American indoor record of 6.8 for the third time within five hours.

SPINNAKERS unfurled, yachts skim over sea of Outer Harbor in Pacific Handicap division of Midwinter Regatta Saturday.

Sail, Hail Columbia!

By DAVE TAYLOR

San Diego Yacht Club's Jerry Driscoll maneuvered the famed former America's Cup winner Columbia through shifting fog in The Outer Harbor to take a long lead on the fleet of Class "A" ocean racing yachts in the first day's sailing of the SCYA 36th Midwinter Regatta Saturday.

Driscoll, after a late start in light four-to-seven-knot winds, managed to finish the 19.9-mile heat 17 minutes ahead of Baldwin M. Baldwin's second-place Audacious in the opening tilt of a three-race series in The Harbor.

The highly touted duel between 1958 America's Cup winner Columbia and Jim Kilroy's new 76-foot aluminum sloop Kialoa never materialized Saturday as Kialoa crossed the finish line a full 20 minutes behind Columbia and three minutes arrears of Audacious.

The sleek 12-meter Columbia is making its first appearance in a major West Coast regatta since arriving in Pacific waters after participation in America's Cup Trials at Newport, Rhode Island, last summer.

Columbia will sail another heat in the SCYA Class "A" ocean racing handicap division today and one Monday to determine the championship.

Overall entry in the Southern California Yachting Assn. classic was disappointing Saturday as only 550 of a predicted 1,000 yachts took to the starting line in the regatta opener. This fell well under last year's entry of 799 boats.

With sailboat entries in every class from eight-foot sabots to the 12-meter Columbia, the Midwinter, largest regatta of its kind in the world, is being hosted by Long Beach Yacht Club, Alamitos Bay YC, Cabrillo Beach YC and Los Angeles YC.

Cedar Key Snares San Luis Rey 'Cap

By ERNIE MASON

They call him Cedar Key, for one reason he is the key to the nation's grass courses.

He proved it Saturday as he scored a narrow head victory in the $57,500 San Luis Rey Handicap on Santa Anita's hillside and infield turf course to better the listed world record for 1½ miles.

The 5-year-old Florida-bred gelding was timed in 2:24 1/5 for the distance, bettering the mark of 2:24 2/5 set in 1963 by Pardao. Although part of the Santa Anita turf course is downhill, records are carried as world marks by turf publications.

Cedar Key, however, had no easy time scoring a head victory over Argentine-bred Polizonte and it took all the riding skill of Manuel Ycaza to get him up at the wire. French-bred Or Et Argent was third and Standard finished fourth in the field of 10 starters.

The big Saturday crowd 53,984 made Cedar Key a 9-5 favorite and he had to be pushed to the utmost at the finish to justify the selection. Cedar Key returned $5.60, $4.00 and $3.00. Polizonte paid $4.80 and $3.40 while Or Et Argent returned $3.80 to show.

The victory was the second for Cedar Key in a stakes race at Santa Anita and stamped him as the likely favorite in the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap over the grass on closing day, March 11.

The son of Fair Ruler again showed his liking for the Santa Anita turf over which he won a division of the San Juan Capistrano last year.

In Saturday's race he carried top weight of 125 pounds and was outrun in the early stages but with a

49ers Blast Mustangs on 1st-Half Spurt

Barnicoat Nets 27, Washington 23 as L.B. Romps, 98-84

By AL LARSON
L.B. P-T Staff Writer

SAN LUIS OBISPO—Long Beach State went on its biggest first-half splurge of the season, then held on to score a ticklish 98-84 victory over Cal Poly's Mustangs here Saturday night.

In converting 20 of 29 foul attempts, the 49ers breezed to a 58-43 intermission lead. But the Mustangs didn't play like like a last-place team the second half and twice roared back to within three points.

Long Beach had its margin cut to 74-71 with 6:35 to go when forward Bob Gravett got the hot hand. The 49ers spurted ahead by seven, but Poly made another run and with 2:35 remaining only trailed 82-79.

Long Beach then salted away its third conference win in eight starts when Al Ryan, Carl Washington, John Barnicoat and John Rambo scored successive baskets and in the 60-second spurt Long Beach had an 11-point cushion.

* * * *

THE FACT that the Southlanders hit 50% of their shots from the field the first half (19-38) helped matters to no end. They tailed off the final half and finished with a 44% mark. CP wound up hitting 43%.

The game, of course, was decided at the foul line where L.B. sank 34 of 49 attempts, while the Mustangs made good on 18 of 28. A slim turnout of 448 Cal Poly fans voiced their disapproval as CP was guilty of 18 personal fouls the first 20 minutes of play and 30 for the night. Long Beach had 10 loyal rooters to bolster the crowd figure to 458. They were delighted, of course, with the officials' interpretations.

Barnicoat topped all scorers with 27 points, 15 courtesy of free throws. Rambo, who lost his contact lenses earlier in the day and played with regular glasses for the first time in two years, finished with 17

UCLA Wins 600th for Wooden, 74-64

By JEROME HALL

The Bruins and the Trojans chalked up another double victory for the South over the North Saturday night and made it a weekend sweep of the four-game stand against the boys from Oregon.

UCLA's Bruins expanded their AAWU record to 10-0 by outlasting the Oregon Ducks, 74-64, in the first half of the doubleheader before 6,683 at L.A. Sports Arena.

Then the ever-improving USC Trojans unleashed their air-tight defense against the Oregon State Beavers and cavorted to a 64-38 triumph that sent the devotees of diminutive detail scurrying for the record book. What they discovered was the 38-point total was the lowest ever recorded in the six years the Arena has been open.

* * * *

WHILE UCLA is the nation's No. 2 ranked team and USC, with a record of 13-9, is probably the No. 20 ranked team, the Trojans came out of the weekend competition with a decided advantage over UCLA in comparison against common opponents.

Friday night USC beat Oregon by 21 points and UCLA beat Oregon State by 18. The two-night net point advantage favored USC by 19.

Troy's 26-point margin over the Beavers Saturday night was befitting a team that stands alone as challenger to the Bruins' three-year domination of the conference. But with only four games remaining on the schedule, including a pair between the Bruins and the Trojans March 5-6—the USC boys need help to catch up, for they are three games to the rear with a 7-3 conference record.

* * * *

LANKY John Block tallied 17 and Westphal 15 in leading the Trojans to their fifth victory in a row. The Trojans defense held the Beavers to only 17 field goals. Oregon State had only eight chances at the free throw line and made but four of them.

The Beavers' shooting record was 26%, a statistic which made the Trojan defense look even better than it was.

The UCLA team presented John Wooden with the 600th victory in his 30-year coaching career. Their performance was erratic as they led by 15 points in the second half only to fall behind when they didn't score a field goal for five minutes.

* * * *

BUT THE Bruins closed with a rush to protect their two-year unbeaten string in conference play and move ever closer to another crack at the national championship next month.

The Bruins' leading scorer was Gail Goodrich with 25 points.

It was a night for round numbers for the UCLA record book. Not only was it No. 600 for Wooden, but it was the Bruins' 20th win this season, their 50th conquest over a two-season span, counting last year's 30-0 record, and the 10th in a row in conference play this year.

The UCLA record this season is 20-2 with a pair of games in the Bay Area against

Cage Scandal Involves 2nd West Coast '5'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating possible point-shaving in basketball games at another West Coast university, Chicago's American said Saturday.

The paper said it has learned that federal agents have "officially" entered the case and said there were reports that an all-America candidate on a high-ranked team may be involved.

Sources close to gambling interests in Chicago say the scandal will balloon to involve a number of other schools, the story said.

An FBI spokesman here told United Press International he had no knowledge of such a probe.

Earlier this week, Leo Casale, a Chicago motel operator, was arrested as one of three men allegedly implicated in a point-shaving fix in a Seattle University, University of Idaho game.

At Chicago's DePaul University, school officials were investigating a student betting ring that wagered up to $1,200 on basketball games.

* * * *

BASKETBALL game coach Ray Meyer said one of the students was a former basketball player. He said the ring bet $1,000 on the DePaul, Memphis University game which DePaul won, 99-70, Jan. 5.

Meyer said he learned that the betting was done through a South Side bookie and centered on the Memphis game because the Southern team had soundly beaten DePaul last year.

"If a kid was going to bet on DePaul," Meyer said, "This was the one to bet the family jewels on."

The 5-year-old Florida-bred gelding was timed in 2:24 1/5 for the distance, bettering the mark of 2:24 2/5 set in 1963 by Pardao. Although part of the Santa Anita turf course is downhill, records are carried as world marks by turf publications.

Cedar Key, however, had no easy time scoring a head victory over Argentine-bred Polizonte and it took all the riding skill of Manuel Ycaza to get him up at the wire. French-bred Or Et Argent was third and Standard finished fourth in the field of 10 starters.

The big Saturday crowd 53,984 made Cedar Key a 9-5 favorite and he had to be pushed to the utmost at the finish to justify the selection. Cedar Key returned $5.60, $4.00 and $3.00. Polizonte paid $4.80 and $3.40 while Or Et Argent returned $3.80 to show.

The victory was the second for Cedar Key in a stakes race at Santa Anita and stamped him as the likely favorite in the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap over the grass on closing day, March 11.

The son of Fair Ruler again showed his liking for the Santa Anita turf over which he won a division of the San Juan Capistrano last year.

In Saturday's race he carried top weight of 125 pounds and was outrun in the early stages but with a

49ers Blast Mustangs on 1st-Half Spurt

Barnicoat Nets 27, Washington 23 as L.B. Romps, 98-84

By AL LARSON
I. P-T Staff Writer

SAN LUIS OBISPO—Long Beach State went on its biggest first-half splurge of the season, then held on to score a ticklish 98-84 victory over Cal Poly's Mustangs here Saturday night.

In converting 20 of 29 foul attempts, the 49ers breezed to a 58-43 intermission lead. But the Mustangs didn't play like like a last-place team the second half and twice roared back to within three points.

Long Beach had its margin cut to 74-71 with 6:35 to go when forward Bob Gravett got the hot hand. The 49ers spurted ahead by seven, but Poly made another run and with 2:35 remaining only trailed 82-79.

Long Beach then salted away its third conference win in eight starts when Al Ryan, Carl Washington, John Barnicoat and John Rambo scored successive baskets and in the 60-second spurt Long Beach had an 11-point cushion.

* * * *

THE FACT that the Southlanders hit 50% of their shots from the field the first half (19-38) helped matters to no end. They tailed off the final half and finished with a 44% mark. CP wound up hitting 43%.

The game, of course, was decided at the foul line where LB sank 34 of 49 attempts, while the Mustangs made good on 18 of 28. A slim turnout of 448 Cal Poly fans voiced their disapproval as CP was guilty of 18 personal fouls the first 20 minutes of play and 30 for the night. Long Beach had 10 loyal rooters to bolster the crowd figure to 458. They were delighted, of course, with the officials' interpretations.

Barnicoat topped all scorers with 27 points, 15 courtesy of free throws. Rambo, who lost his contact lenses earlier in the day and played with regular glasses for the first time in two years, finished with 17.

UCLA Wins 600th for Wooden, 74-64

By JEROME HALL

The Bruins and the Trojans chalked up another double victory for the South over the North Saturday night and made it a weekend sweep of the four-game stand against the boys from Oregon.

UCLA's Bruins expanded their AAWU record to 10-0 by outlasting the Oregon Ducks, 74-64, in the first half of the doubleheader before 6,683 at L.A. Sports Arena.

Then the ever-improving USC Trojans unleashed their air-tight defense against the Oregon State Beavers and cavorted to a 64-38 triumph that sent the devotees of diminutive detail scurrying for the record book. What they discovered was the 38-point total was the lowest ever recorded in the six years the Arena has been open.

* * * *

WHILE UCLA is the nation's No. 2 ranked team and USC, with a record of 13-9, is probably the No. 20 ranked team, the Trojans came out of the weekend competition with a decided advantage over UCLA in comparison against common opponents.

Friday night USC beat Oregon by 21 points and UCLA beat Oregon State by 18. The two-night net point advantage favored USC by 19.

Troy's 28-point margin over the Beavers Saturday night was befitting a team that stands alone as challenger to the Bruins' three-year domination of the conference. But with only four games remaining on the schedule, including a pair between the Bruins and the Trojans March 5-6—the USC boys need help to catch up, for they are three games to the rear with a 7-3 conference record.

* * * *

LANKY John Block tallied 17 and Westphal 15 in leading the Trojans to their fifth victory in a row. The Trojans defense held the Beavers to only 17 field goals. Oregon State had only eight chances at the free throw line and made but four of them.

The Beavers' shooting record was 26%, a statistic which made the Trojan defense look even better than it was.

The UCLA team presented John Wooden with the 600th victory in his 30-year coaching career. Their performance was erratic as they led by 15 points in the second half only to fall behind when they didn't score a field goal for five minutes.

* * * *

BUT THE Bruins closed with a rush to protect their two-year unbeaten string in conference play and move ever closer to another crack at the national championship next month.

The Bruins' leading scorer was Gail Goodrich with 28 points.

It was a night for round numbers for the UCLA record book. Not only was it No. 600 for Wooden, but it was the Bruins' 20th win this season, their 50th conquest over a two-season span, counting last year's 30-0 record, and the 10th in a row in conference play this year.

The UCLA record this season is 20-2 with a pair of games in the Bay Area against

Cage Scandal Involves 2nd West Coast '5'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating possible point-shaving in basketball games at another West Coast university, Chicago's American said Saturday.

The paper said it has learned that federal agents have "officially" entered the case and said there were reports that an all-America candidate on a high-ranked team may be involved.

Related Story . . . C-2

Sources close to gambling interests in Chicago say the scandal will balloon to involve a number of other schools, the story said.

An FBI spokesman here told United Press International he had no knowledge of such a probe.

Earlier this week, Leo Casale, a Chicago motel operator, was arrested as one of three men allegedly implicated in a point-shaving fix in a Seattle University, University of Idaho game.

At Chicago's DePaul University, school officials were investigating a student betting ring that wagered up to $1,200 on basketball games.

* * * *

BASKETBALL game coach Ray Meyer said one of the students was a former basketball player. He said the ring bet $1,000 on the DePaul, Memphis University game which DePaul won, 99-70, Jan. 5.

Meyer said he learned that the betting was done through a South Side bookie and centered on the Memphis game because the Southern team had soundly beaten DePaul last year.

"If a kid was going to bet on DePaul," Meyer said, "This was the one to bet the family jewels on."

Executive Sports Editor

Hurricane Hank Not Invincible

As Lex Connolly and Cal Winfrey flashed into town a few days ago to lay the groundwork for their third Long Beach Rodeo April 2-4 in the Arena, they dispensed some distressing news. Hurricane Hank is not invincible.

The faithful reader will know that I'm not talking about myself, for I'm about as invincible as a dart board. Hurricane Hank is a big bull (and no giggles from the audience, please) which was so mean that Lex and Cal decided to name the 1800-pound creature after me.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

In two years of rodeo work — Hurricane Hank began his career right here in Long Beach Arena—the bull sported a fantastic 70-0 record. Seventy riders started out on Hank's back and 70 riders shortly thereafter were eating dirt.

Indeed, Hank was a combination of Sonny Liston, Jimmy Brown and Marlin McKeever . . . big, mean and tough.

Then, something happened. Although he's still rated one of the toughest hunks of meat to ride on the circuit, Hurricane Hank saw his record dip to 75-5, meaning he's been playing only .500 ball in his last 10 trips to the post . . . and you don't win pennants that way.

★ ★ ★ ★

CONNOLLY HAD a partial answer to the problem of my bull. The poor thing's not a mudder. On an off-track, Hank's as terrified as a cow in a slaughter-house.

"Old Hurricane took a beating at our rodeo in Scottsdale, Ariz.," explained Lex. "In the mud and rain there, he sank into the goo and couldn't come up with his famous kick. Two of the boys rode him there."

The two boys who rode Hank aren't listed in rodeo's Blue Book. In fact, one of them—Don Brunett of Portales, N.M.—had to have his credentials double-checked to determine if there really was a Don Brunett.

The other was Vern Chipman of Pleasant Grove, Utah. A pleasant chap, Vern isn't considered the Mickey Mantle of his trade.

Howsoever, in old Hurricane's favor, I might note now that Chipman and Brunett finished 1-2 in the bull-riding division at Scottsdale. Apparently, being able to ride Hurricane Hank is like striking out Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey on nine pitches.

★ ★ ★ ★

OLD HURRICANE'S other three losses occurred in the National Finals at the L.A. Sports Arena, at Palm Springs and in the Rose Bowl. The old boy went down in style, anyway.

Following in the footsteps of Notre Dame and Jimmy Piersall, Hank the bull may be in line for comeback-of-the-year laurels in '65, however.

"He really let loose last week in Yuma," commented Connolly. "He flattened two of our top riders there. I might point out, too, that it was a very dry track."

Note to Arena manager Win Hanssen: Pack that dirt hard here on April 1 . . . and no April Fooling about it!

★ ★ ★ ★

NOT BEING Long Beach residents, Connolly (now corralled in Northridge) and Winfrey (of Disneyland fame in Anaheim) made some comments on the Long Beach Arena which I think might be taken into serious consideration by our city fathers, or the tidelands oil people, or whoever has jurisdiction over the place.

"There is no indoor facility in the United States better than Long Beach's Arena," began Connolly, then he lowered the boom. "But it will never be bigtime until you can park people there. Your parking is a mess.

"I know that people have wondered why sports events and other things just don't go over at the Arena, but the problem is as simple to me as finding a cowboy."

★ ★ ★ ★

CONNOLLY WAS only warming up, backed by Winfrey's echoes.

"Long Beach Arena's parking is worse than it is in Los Angeles' Arena," he drawled. "I know that the last time you wrote about the parking here, some people drew comparisons between Long Beach and L.A. But believe me, I've worked shows at both places and Long Beach is much worse.

"All you have to do in Long Beach to get the parking situation under control is fill in that dry-wash behind the Arena. That dirt place in back of the Arena could be a beautiful parking space. I know it's not Win Hanssen's fault, but for the sake of your city somebody should do something about the parking right away. This Arena is too beautiful to lose people because of a thing like bad parking."

Lex had a parting shot.

"I want to compliment the Long Beach Police Department. The officers have been tremendous in handling traffic at both our shows. I consider them the best I've seen anywhere."

See, Connolly isn't all bad.

Lakers in Shape for Celts Tonight

By DOUG IVES

Momentum is something nice to have in pro basketball, and that's what the Lakers will have tonight when they battle the team which is in a constant state of momentum, the Boston Celtics.

Returning home from an all-conquering road trip, the Lakers have never been in better shape, physically or mentally, to cope with the perennial world champions, who have won six in a row after an opening-game loss to the Lakers this season.

Nor has the Laker management been in better shape. The game is a sellout.

When they throw up the ball at 7:05 in the L.A. Sports Arena, the Lakers will put on the line a five-game winning streak, the last three achieved in foreign ports against New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore—and on successive nights, too.

Just last week at this time the Lakers' Western Division lead was in jeopardy against the surging St. Louis Hawks, but now coach Fred Schaus' club holds a healthy 5½-game advantage.

With only 17 games remaining, it would take a miracle finish by St. Louis, or a collossal flop by the Lakers, for the race to turn out any different than it is now.

It is true the Lakers have four more games with the Hawks, and three with mighty Boston, but St. Louis appears ill-equipped to get better than a split what with Bob Pettit sidelined with an injury.

As for the Eastern Division, the Celtics are cruising along with a 12½-game lead over Cincinnati, and are only three wins from collecting their ninth (!) divisional crown in a row.

Bill Russell and Willie Naulls, on the shelf for most of the past two weeks with minor injuries, will be in the Boston lineup tonight—and again Wednesday when the Lakers and Celtics collide. St. Louis closes out the short home stand Friday.

Despite the Lakers' momentum, it's a good chance the Lakers won't beat the Celtics this evening. But, then again, coach Fred Schaus has said previously: "We can beat them."

And it's possible.

Hawks Tip Pistons as Coaches High; Wilt Paces 76ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—John Havlicek tied the game with a free toss after a technical foul was called on Tom Meschery Saturday night and then Tom Sanders added two more free throws to start the Boston Celtics toward a 114-108 victory over the stricken San Francisco Warriors.

The Warriors, who had trailed by as much as 14 points in the second period, rallied to go ahead in the fourth. But then Meschery slammed the ball to the floor after a foul was called on teammate Guy Rodgers and referee Norm Drucker blew the whistle on Meschery for the technical.

L.B. State '9' Fancy vs. Alumni, 10-5

Long Beach State stretched its winning streak to two games Saturday with a nine-run outbreak in the middle three innings to drop its Alumni, 10-5, at Blair Field.

Lanky Bill Bielefeld, who led the 49ers pitching corps last season to a 31-13 record and the CCAA championship, was sailing along into the fourth inning with a 2-0 lead and had escaped a first-inning jam by getting 49er right fielder Craig Mueller to ground out with the bases loaded.

Then the LBSC hitting jelled and Bielefeld, who had given up only one hit for three runs, was tagged for three runs. John Bessa's single with the bases loaded gave coach Bob Wuesthoff's nine a 3-2 lead they never relinquished.

* * * *

RELIEFER Phil Snyder was met by John Gonsalves' triple, a walk to Bruce Lowell and Roger Cannon's two-run double in the fourth. Snyder suffered the loss, while UCLA transfer Spence Noteboom hurled three relief innings for the win. Jack Bogdanovich led the losers with two hits, while Gonsalves, Mueller and Rick Bryson had two each for the 49ers.

Seattle' Morally Wrong'

Precipitated Action Against Player

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle University was accused Saturday of precipatated action in expelling its basketball captain, Charlie Williams, who was arrested Wednesday along with teammate Peller Phillips on charges of complicity in a point-shaving conspiracy.

Both were expelled immediately for allegedly violating a university rule that requires athletes to report at once any approach by gamblers. A third player, L. J. Wheeler, also was expelled for allegedly concealing knowledge of the incident.

Jack Tanner, Williams' attorney, called the university's action "morally wrong" and said Williams should have had a hearing before he was expelled.

"The school was trying so hard to absolve the university of any moral obligation it has done the boy an injustice," Tanner said.

"My complaint has nothing to do with his innocence or guilt. There is no excuse for any wrong, but I feel Williams should have had the right of trial."

Leo Casale, a Chicago tavern operator, was arrested there as an alleged member of the conspiracy. Phillips and Casale once were teammates at Coalinga, Calif. Junior College.

At liberty under a $25,000 recognizance bond, Casale is to appear Tuesday in Chicago before the U.S. commissioner who had postponed his hearing pending arrival of papers on the case from Seattle.

PHILLIPS AND Williams, free under recognizance bonds of $1,000 each, are to enter pleas in the federal case here March 1.

The men are charged under a federal law with conspiring to affect the result of a game here Jan. 22 between Seattle and Idaho, which Seattle won 88 to 72. The gambling point spread was 18 points.

Phillips seeking a job to support himself and his expectant wife, has said he was "not even good friends with Casale."

"The thing we regret," said his attorney, Maurice Kadish, "is that he has been expelled from school."

Wolves, Gophers Set Up 'Title Tilt'

Compiled from Wire Reports

Top-ranked Michigan whipped Ohio State, Tennesee was upset by Alabama, high-rated Davidson, Wichita and St. Joseph's won, Rick Barry of Miami scored 50 points and Bill Bradley of Princeton netted 25 points along the nation's college basketball front Saturday.

Paced by Cazzie Russell's 26 points, Michigan outclassed the Buckeyes, 101-61, at Ann Arbor.

Minnesota set up a Big 10 title decider with Michigan at Minneapolis Tuesday night by turning back Northwestern, 88-77, at Evanston. Lou Hudson scored 31 points for the Gophers.

In other Big 10 games, Illinois tied the Jenisen Field House scoring record at Michigan State by thumping the Spartans, 113-94; George Peeples (31 points) fired a second-half Iowa attack that whipped Purdue, 101-85, at Iowa City, and Indiana ripped Wisconsin, 100-87, at Bloomington with Dick VanArsdale scoring 26 and his twin, Tom, 23.

ALABAMA stunned eighth-ranked Tennessee, 63-58, at Tuscaloosa to put Vanderbilt back on top of the Southeastern Conference race. The Commodores squeaked by Florida, 80-78, at Nashville as all-SEC center Clyde Lee was limited to 19 points.

Fred Hetzel scored 19 points to lead Davidson over Citadel, 62-50, at Davidson for the sixth-ranked Wildcats' 22nd win a row.

Dave Leach's 14-foot jump shot at the final gun gave Wichita a 69-67 victory over North Texas State in surprisingly close game at Denton, Tex. Jamie Thompson paced the victors with 24 points.

Fourth-ranked St. Joseph's also had a tough contest, downing intra-city rival Villanova, 69-61, at Philadelphia. A bomb threat delayed the game 40 minutes and saw police temporarily empty the Palestra of its capacity crowd of 9,238.

Barry's 50 points led Miami over Houston, 103-91, at Miami and Bradley bagged his 25 plus 11 rebounds and 8 assists as Princeton beat Harvard, 82-72, at Cambridge.

LUCAS BACK TODAY AFTER 3-WEEK REST

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Jerry Lucas was expected to return to action today when the Cincinnati Royals meet the New York Knickerbockers. He has been idle three weeks with a chest injury.

Pepper Wilson, Royals general manager, said that the 6-foot-8 rebounding ace flew to New York Friday.

"I don't know if he'll start," Wilson said, "but we expect to see him play some or we wouldn't have sent him to New York."

Lucas suffered a sprained stenum Jan. 29 in a game against the Lakers.

"I have a great deal of respect for Oregon, so I guess I shouldn't feel badly when we beat them by 10 points," said Wooden in the crowded dressing room that was filled with congratulations for the man who was chosen coach of the year last season and whose record of 600 victories and 180 defeats ranks him among the all-time great coaches.

"I'll have to admit I was worried," admitted Wooden. "We have an inconsistent team this year, but I guess I don't have to tell that to anybody after our performances against Washington State." The Bruins beat Washington State by 52 and 2 points in games one-week apart recently.

Scandal Slows Down Seattle '5'

RENO (AP)—The Seattle Chieftains, playing their first game without three suspended players, sputtered to an 89-77 basketball victory Saturday night over outclassed Nevada.

Charlie Williams, the accurate shooting guard and leader of the Chieftain fast break, was the most missed.

In the first half, the smaller Nevada team stole numerous passes when the Seattle fast break faltered.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

Executive Sports Editor

Hurricane Hank Not Invincible

As Lex Connolly and Cal Winfrey flashed into town a few days ago to lay the groundwork for their third Long Beach Rodeo April 2-4 in the Arena, they dispensed some distressing news. Hurricane Hank is not invincible.

The faithful reader will know that I'm not talking about myself, for I'm about as invincible as a dart board. Hurricane Hank is a big bull (and no giggles from the audience, please) which was so mean that Lex and Cal decided to name the 1800-pound creature after me.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

In two years of rodeo work — Hurricane Hank began his career right here in Long Beach Arena—the bull sported a fantastic 70-0 record. Seventy riders started out on Hank's back and 70 riders shortly thereafter were eating dirt.

Indeed, Hank was a combination of Sonny Liston, Jimmy Brown and Marlin McKeever . . . big, mean and tough.

Then, something happened. Although he's still rated one of the toughest hunks of meat to ride on the circuit, Hurricane Hank saw his record dip to 75-5, meaning he's been playing only .500 ball in his last 10 trips to the post . . . and you don't win pennants that way.

CONNOLLY HAD a partial answer to the problem of my bull. The poor thing's not a mudder. On an off-track, Hank's as terrified as a cow in a slaughter-house.

"Old Hurricane took a beating at our rodeo in Scottsdale, Ariz.," explained Lex. "In the mud and rain there, he sank into the goo and couldn't come up with his famous kick. Two of the boys rode him there."

The two boys who rode Hank aren't listed in rodeo's Blue Book. In fact, one of them—Don Brunett of Portales, N.M.—had to have his credentials double-checked to determine if there really was a Don Brunett.

The other was Vern Chipman of Pleasant Grove, Utah. A pleasant chap, Vern isn't considered the Mickey Mantle of his trade.

Howsoever, in old Hurricane's favor, I might note now that Chipman and Brunett finished 1-2 in the bull-riding division at Scottsdale. Apparently, being able to ride Hurricane Hank is like striking out Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey on nine pitches.

OLD HURRICANE'S other three losses occurred in the National Finals at the L.A. Sports Arena, at Palm Springs and in the Rose Bowl. The old boy went down in style, anyway.

Following in the footsteps of Notre Dame and Jimmy Piersall. Hank the bull may be in line for comeback-of-the-year-laurels in '65, however.

"He really let loose last week in Yuma," commented Connolly. "He flattened two of our top riders there. I might point out, too, that it was a very dry track."

Note to Arena manager Win Hanssen: Pack that dirt hard here on April 1 . . . and no April Fooling about it!

NOT BEING Long Beach residents, Connolly (now corralled in Northridge) and Winfrey (of Disneyland fame in Anaheim) made some comments on the Long Beach Arena which I think might be taken into serious consideration by our city fathers, or the tidelands oil people, or whoever has jurisdiction over the place.

"There is no indoor facility in the United States better than Long Beach's Arena," began Connolly, then he lowered the boom. "But it will never be bigtime until you can park people there. Your parking is a mess.

"I know that people have wondered why sports events and other things just don't go over at the Arena, but the problem is as simple to me as finding a cowboy."

CONNOLLY WAS only warming up, backed by Winfrey's echoes.

"Long Beach Arena's parking is worse than it is in Los Angeles' Arena," he drawled. "I know that the last time you wrote about the parking here, some people drew comparisons between Long Beach and L.A. But believe me, I've worked shows at both places and Long Beach is much worse.

"All you have to do in Long Beach to get the parking situation under control is fill in that dry-wash behind the Arena. That dirt place in back of the Arena could be a beautiful parking space. I know it's not Win Hanssen's fault, but for the sake of your city somebody should do something about the parking right away. This Arena is too beautiful to lose people because of a thing like bad parking."

Lex had a parting shot.

"I want to compliment the Long Beach Police Department. The officers have been tremendous in handling traffic at both our shows. I consider them the best I've seen anywhere."

See, Connolly isn't all bad.

Lakers in Shape for Celts Tonight

By DOUG IVES

Momentum is something nice to have in pro basketball, and that's what the Lakers will have tonight when they battle the team which is in a constant state of momentum, the Boston Celtics.

Returning home from an all-conquering road trip, the Lakers have never been in better shape, physically or mentally, to cope with the perennial world champions, who have won six in a row after an opening-game loss to the Lakers this season.

Nor has the Laker management been in better shape. The game is a sellout.

When they throw up the ball at 7:05 in the L.A. Sports Arena, the Lakers will put on the line a five-game winning streak, the last three achieved in foreign ports against New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore—and on successive nights, too.

Just last week at this time the Lakers' Western Division lead was in jeopardy against the surging St. Louis Hawks, but now coach Fred Schaus' club holds a healthy 5½-game advantage.

With only 17 games remaining, it would take a miracle finish by St. Louis, or a collossal flop by the Lakers, for the race to turn out any different than it is now.

It is true the Lakers have four more games with the Hawks, and three with mighty Boston, but St. Louis appears ill-equipped to get better than a split what with Bob Pettit sidelined with an injury.

As for the Eastern Division, the Celtics are cruising along with a 12½-game lead over Cincinnati, and are only three wins from collecting their ninth (!) divisional crown in a row.

Bill Russell and Willie Naulls, on the shelf for most of the past two weeks with minor injuries, will be in the Boston lineup tonight—and again Wednesday when the Lakers and Celtics collide, St. Louis closes out the short home stand Friday.

Despite the Lakers' momentum, it's a good chance the Lakers won't beat the Celtics this evening. But, then again, coach Fred Schaus has said previously: "We can beat them."

And it's possible.

Celtics' Win Aided by S.F. Tom Foolery

Hawks Tip Pistons as Coaches High; Wilt Paces 76ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—John Havlicek tied the game with a free toss after a technical foul was called on Tom Meschery Saturday night and then Tom Sanders added two more free throws to start the Boston Celtics toward a 114-108 victory over the stricken San Francisco Warriors.

The Warriors, who had trailed by as much as 14 points in the second period, rallied to go ahead in the fourth. But then Meschery slammed the ball to the floor after a foul was called on teammate Guy Rodgers and referee Norm Drucker blew the whistle on Meschery for the technical.

L.B. State '9' Fancy vs. Alumni, 10-5

Long Beach State stretched its winning streak to two games Saturday with a nine-run outbreak in the middle three innings to drop its Alumni, 10-5, at Blair Field.

Lanky Bill Bielefeld, who led the 49ers pitching corps last season to a 31-13 record and the CCAA championship, was sailing along into the fourth inning with a 2-0 lead and had escaped a first-inning jam by getting 49er right fielder Craig Mueller to ground out with the bases loaded.

Then the LBSC hitting jelled and Bielefeld, who had given up only one hit for three frames, was tagged for three runs. John Bessa's single with the bases loaded gave coach Bob Wuesthoff's nine a 3-2 lead they never relinquished.

RELIEFER Phil Snyder was met by John Gonsalves' triple, a walk to Bruce Lowell and Roger Cannon's two-run double in the fourth. Snyder suffered the loss, while UCLA transfer Spence Noteboom hurled three relief innings for the win. Jack Bogdanovich led the losers with two hits, while Gonsalves, Mueller and Rick Bryson had two each for the 49ers.

TENNESSEE UPSET

Wolves, Gophers Set Up 'Title Tilt'

Compiled from Wire Reports

Top-ranked Michigan whipped Ohio State, Tennesee was upset by Alabama, high-rated Davidson, Wichita and St. Joseph's won, Rick Barry of Miami scored 50 points and Bill Bradley of Princeton netted 25 points along the nation's college basketball front Saturday.

Paced by Cazzie Russell's 26 points, Michigan outclassed the Buckeyes, 101-61, at Ann Arbor.

Minnesota set up a Big 10 title decider with Michigan at Minneapolis Tuesday night by turning back Northwestern, 88-77, at Evanston. Lou Hudson scored 31 points for the Gophers.

In other Big 10 games, Illinois tied the Jenisen Field House scoring record at Michigan State by thumping the Spartans, 113-94; George Peeples (31 points) fired a second-half Iowa attack that whipped Purdue, 101-85, at Iowa City, and Indiana ripped Wisconsin, 100-87, at Bloomington with Dick VanArsdale scoring 26 and his twin, Tom, 23.

ALABAMA stunned eighth-ranked Tennessee, 63-58, at Tuscaloosa to put Vanderbilt back on top of the Southeastern Conference race. The Commodores squeaked by Florida, 80-78, at Nashville as all-SEC center Clyde Lee was limited to 19 points.

Fred Hetzel scored 19 points to lead Davidson over Citadel, 62-50, at Davidson for the sixth-ranked Wildcats' 22nd win a row.

Dave Leach's 14-foot jump shot at the final gun gave Wichita a 69-67 victory over North Texas State in surprisingly close game at Denton, Tex. Jamie Thompson paced the victors with 24 points.

Fourth-ranked St. Joseph's also had a tough contest, downing intra-city rival Villanova, 69-61, at Philadelphia. A bomb threat delayed the game 40 minutes and saw police temporarily empty the Palestra of its capacity crowd of 9,238.

Barry's 50 points led Miami over Houston, 103-91, at Miami and Bradley bagged his 25 plus 11 rebounds and 8 assists as Princeton beat Harvard, 82-72, at Cambridge.

Stanford and Cal next weekend plus a pair with USC remaining on the schedule.

"I have a great deal of respect for Oregon, so I guess I shouldn't feel badly when we beat them by 10 points," said Wooden in the crowded dressing room that was filled with congratulations for the man who was chosen coach of the year last season and whose record of 600 victories and 180 defeats ranks him among the all-time great coaches.

"I'll have to admit I was worried," admitted Wooden. "We have an inconsistent team this year, but I guess I don't have to tell that to anybody after our performances against Washington State." The Bruins beat Washington State by 52 and 2 points in games one-week apart recently.

"Ryan did a good job in the pressure situation at the end while I was pleased with the way our reserves kept us in the ball game early in the first half when the starters were experiencing trouble."

LUCAS BACK TODAY AFTER 3-WEEK REST

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Jerry Lucas was expected to return to action today when the Cincinnati Royals meet the New York Knickerbockers. He has been idle three weeks with a chest injury.

Pepper Wilson, Royals general manager, said that the 6-foot-8 rebounding ace flew to New York Friday.

"I don't know if he'll start," Wilson said, "but we expect to see him play some or we wouldn't have sent him to New York."

Lucas suffered a sprained stenum Jan. 29 in a game against the Lakers.

Seattle' Morally Wrong'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Precipitated Action Against Player

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle University was accused Saturday of precipatated action in expelling its basketball captain, Charlie Williams, who was arrested Wednesday along with teammate Peller Phillips on charges of complicity in a point-shaving conspiracy.

Both were expelled immediately for allegedly violating a university rule that requires athletes to report at once any approach by gamblers. A third player, L. J. Wheeler, also was expelled for allegedly concealing knowledge of the incident.

Jack Tanner, Williams' attorney, called the university's action "morally wrong" and said Williams should have had a hearing before he was expelled.

"The school was trying so hard to absolve the university of any moral obligation it has done the boy an injustice," Tanner said.

"My complaint has nothing to do with his innocence or guilt. There is no excuse for any wrong, but I feel Williams should have had the right of trial."

Leo Casale, a Chicago tavern operator, was arrested there as an alleged member of the conspiracy. Phillips and Casale once were teammates at Coalinga, Calif. Junior College.

At liberty under a $25,000 recognizance bond, Casale is to appear Tuesday in Chicago before the U.S. commissioner who had postponed his hearing pending arrival of papers on the case from Seattle.

* * * *

PHILLIPS AND Williams, free under recognizance bonds of $1,000 each, are to enter pleas in the federal case here March 1.

The men are charged under a federal law with conspiring to affect the result of a game here Jan. 22 between Seattle and Idaho, which Seattle won 88 to 72. The gambling point spread was 18 points.

Phillips seeking a job to support himself and his expectant wife, has said he was "not even good friends with Casale."

"The thing we regret," said his attorney, Maurice Kadish, "is that he has been expelled from school."

Scandal Slows Down Seattle '5'

RENO (AP)—The Seattle Chieftains, playing their first game without three suspended players, sputtered to an 89-77 basketball victory Saturday night over outclassed Nevada.

Charlie Williams, the accurate shooting guard and leader of the Chietain fast break, was the most missed.

In the first half, the smaller Nevada team stole numerous passes when the Seattle fast break faltered.

WYNN

Man to Man

MARA

By JERRY WYNN

PALM DESERT — Wellington Mara, owner and general manager of the New York Giants, has English and Irish in his name, football in his heart and a touch of larceny in his blood.

One of the towering figures in the National Football League, Mara has dispatched Vince Lombardi to Green Bay, Tom Landry to Dallas and Harland Svare to the Rams and absconded with Y. A. Tittle from the 49ers and Del Shofner, among others, from the Rams.

Last season the sandy-haired member of one of New York's most prominent families saw his once-mighty Giants plummet from first to last in the Eastern Division. This season he is faced with the perplexing prospects of no title, no Tittle and Joe Namath across the bay in Shea Stadium.

Do you think that the Jets and the publicity given to signing Namath pose a threat to the Giants' dominance of pro football in New York, Mr. Mara?

"It's certainly competition, but I don't know if I would call it a threat. The Jets gave us competition last year without Namath. We mind our own business and do the best we can."

Who will play quarterback for the Giants next season now that Y. A. Tittle has retired?

"I imagine that Allie Sherman will go with our returning veteran, Gary Wood. We were very happy to have signed Bob Timberlake from Michigan. He's a fine prospect. We also have Ron DiGravio from the United League and another rookie, John Torok, from Arizona State."

What caused the downfall of the Giants in 1964?

"Mainly injuries. Just when we began to play good ball—we dominated a game against Cleveland and beat St. Louis the next week—injuries wrecked us. Tittle was hurt, Shofner left early in the year with an ulcer and we lost Lynch, Pesonen, Lo-Vetere and a few others with knee injuries. We missed Shofner badly. Our passing wasn't the same without him."

Are you looking for the Giants to make a strong comeback this season?

"It's a long way back up, but I think we'll do better. We had two good rookie backs last year, Steve Thurlow from Stanford and a big fullback, Ernie Wheelwright. Another rookie, Clarence Childs, led the league in kickoff returns and has the instincts for a good defensive back. We came up with some good young linemen too."

Will Frank Gifford play this season?

"I don't know. He's continuing to move up with CBS. But I hear he is taking road work every morning and that's a good sign."

The Giants haven't made a trade with the Rams for nearly two years. Don't you like dealing with them anymore?

"Our needs and surpluses are different now than they used to be. We once were able to pin-point our needs to a particular veteran. Now we need a number of good young players. They are not available from the Rams or any other club."

Did you make an offer for Roman Gabriel?

"No, but we would like to have him. He is a very fine young quarterback."

Having employed Svare as a player and assistant coach with the Giants, do you feel he has a good future as coach of the Rams.

"Yes. He has done a good job. He was a fine player for us and always showed the application and study it takes to make a coach."

Who do you consider the greatest player in Giants' history?

"For length of service and consistent performance, I would say Mel Hein and Charley Conerly. I also have a special liking for a couple of our earlier stars, Tuffy Leemans and Ward Cuff."

Were you happy with the results of the league meeting here?

"No. We kind of dragged our feet. Maybe the surroundings were too nice or as Dan Reeves said, 'we are getting too intelligent.' It wasn't productive enough."

What now would you say is the most important problem facing the NFL?

"Maintaining the quality of our play. We had people here from CBS, Ford, Coca Cola and the President's Council on Youth Fitness make presentations and tell us how much they value our association. It was very flattering."

A Giant force in the NFL is Wellington Mara.

Peggy Skates to Lead Over Canada Gals

Pasadena Flash Still Underdog in Finals Today

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., held a surprising lead Saturday after the compulsory figures phase of women's singles at the 1965 North American Figure Skating championships.

The two-time U. S. champion overcame an early deficit in edging Valerie Jones, 16, and Petra Burka, 18, both of Toronto, for first place.

Miss Fleming had nine ordinal placement points and 691.9 total points, compared to 12 ordinals and 691.8 for the second-place Miss Jones. Miss Burka, who still remains the favorite to win the title, finished third with 13 ordinals and 688.6 points.

* * * *

THE FIGURES count 60% toward the title but this afternoon's free skating finals will make up the remaining 40%.

Miss Burka excels in this phase of the competition and is heavily favored to overtake her two rivals.

The results, with ordinals and points:

Lundquist, Ralston in Title Match

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield and Jan-Eric Lundquist of Sweden cracked the winning strings of two unseeded outsiders Saturday and qualified to meet for the National Indoor Tennis Championship.

The final today at 11 a.m., nationally televised, thus brings together the best amateur tennis players of America and Europe.

Ralston, No. 1 in the American rankings and the chief hope for bringing back the Davis Cup, outgunned Ron Holmberg, the paunchy Dallas hotel man, 6-1, 9-7 8-6.

* * * *

THE SMART and lightning quick Lundquist erased the 18-year-old high school sensation from Dallas, Cliff Richey, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Ralston, seeded No. 2 behind defending champion Chuck McKinley, started fast, suddenly ran into a tiger and finally survived a set of spotty tennis for a victory over the big blond former Brooklynite who has become largely a weekend player.

The 27-year-old Lundquist, who has virtually swept the indoor boards of Europe this winter, proved too experienced for Richey, the sandy-haired professional's son who wields a racket as if it is a weapon of destruction.

Angels Ready to Spring

By ROSS NEWHAN
Staff Writer

PALM SPRINGS — The road to Anaheim brings the Los Angeles Angels to this Eden for the final time Wednesday.

Not that Gene Autry is marshalling his posse to Florida or Arizona, but next spring it will be the California Angels convening at this desert fantasyland.

First things first, however, and first on the mind of the still Los Angeles Angels is a first division finish. The feeling is that Mickey Mouse can wait a year until something is done about Mickey Mantle.

To that end, 25 pitchers and four catchers will join manager Bill Rigney here Wednesday to be followed by the balance of the 51-man camp contingent on March 1.

That's more players than greeted Rigney when the Angels crawled out of the shell four years ago and the names of the past — Steve Bilko, Earl Averill, Ned Garver, Eli Grba — have been replaced by Cy Young award winner Dean Chance (whose contract calls for $47,000 not $41,000), All-Star shortstop Jim Fregosi, comeback of the year honoree Jim Piersall and a guy named Smith whose alias of Wonderful Willie may prove prophetic.

"Our goal is another first division finish," said Rigney, embarking on his 25th year in organized baseball.

"I said when this all started it would take five years to develop a pennant contender and we are certainly getting closer to that goal," said general manager Fred Haney, lifting the anchor on his 47th baseball excursion.

It will be recalled that Rigney has had the gumption to twice threaten his boss's vision with first division finishes. Clearly, the Angels weren't prepared for their third place finish of '62, for they succumbed on the lofty atmosphere and finished ninth the following season.

What awaits the Angels on the heels of last season's fifth-place finish remains to be seen, but thus far this has been an every-other-year ball club.

BILL RIGNEY . . . Ulcer Time Again.

"Last year we demonstrated we could pitch it and catch it and now we must start hitting it more often," said Rigney, iterating the basic philosophy of the game.

"Definitely, hitting is what we'll be looking for this spring," echoed Haney. "We must stabilize and round the edges of our attack. We have great protection up the middle and we must now fill in the holes with speed and power. Basically, we have a lot of prospects. Development, of course, takes time."

Yanks to Win Again?...Why, Naturally

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Yankees again? Of course. The Cardinals, too? Maybe.

That's the way the 1965 major league baseball pennant races shape up in the official Las Vegas odds as the 20 clubs start spring training next week.

The odds-makers have the Yankees 6 to 5 favorites to win their sixth consecutive American League pennant and list the defending champion Cardinals and the Phillies as co-choices in the National, each at 2½ to 1.

There is one shocker in the pre-season line — the pitch - rich, power - poor Dodgers. Despite their second division finish last year, the Dodgers are listed a surprisingly strong 3 to 1.

If the Yankees have any weaknesses, they are not apparent. Their only question mark is Whitey Ford, who underwent an off-season operation in an effort to correct a circulatory disorder in his pitching arm.

They have a new manager, Johnny Keane, who won the pennant and the World Series with the Cardinals, then quit.

The Yankees were quick to take on the sturdy, competent Keane in place of Yogi Berra.

Both the Orioles and the White Sox have the pitching, but they lack hitting power.

St. Louis has added pitchers Bob Purkey and Tracy Stallard and utility man Tito Francona, but still lacks bench strength.

Lack of hitting led to the Phillies' downfall late last season and, in an effort to correct that defect, manager Gene Mauch made a deal for home run hitting Dick Stuart of the Red Sox.

They gave up a front line pitcher, Dennis Bennett, and Mauch is counting on the unpredictable Bo Belinsky, obtained from the Angels, and Ray Herbert, the veteran righthander from the White Sox, to take up the mound slack.

Those who fancy the Dodgers go along with the old baseball axiom that pitching is the name of the game. In southpaw Sandy Koufax and righthander Don Drysdale the Dodgers have the best one-two pitching punch in the league, and southpaw Ron Perranoski, despite his lackluster 1964 season, is the league's premier relief hurler.

If Johnny Podres can come back from an injury to his pitching arm which sidelined him last season and Claude Osteen, a 15-game winner with the lowly Senators in 1964, comes through as expected, the Dodgers' only problems will be scoring runs and patching up a leaky defense.

The Reds, who made a strong run for the pennant last season, have tremendous pitching and perhaps enough power if Vada Pinson recovers from his 1964 slump.

The Braves with Henry Aaron, Joe Torre, Rico Carty, Ed Mathews and Denis Merke are going to score a lot of runs.

So are the Giants with Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda, Willie McCovey, Jesus Alou, Jim Hart and Ed Bailey. But it doesn't look like either club can come up with the pitching it will take to go along with that top-drawer slugging.

U.S., Mexico in World Soccer

Soccer football, the one sport that conducts a true world professional championship, moves into the Coliseum Sunday, March 7, for a World Cup elimination game between the United States and Mexico.

And, this country — supposedly on the tailend of the international soccer firmament—has a chance of upsetting the fireball shooters from south of the border, in the opinion of the game's experts.

Says Tony Morejon, the coach whose Greater L. A. League all-stars stunned three European teams of late: "If the USA management builds its team around the five selected Los Angeles players this country has a chance."

WYNN

Man to Man

MARA

By JERRY WYNN

PALM DESERT — Wellington Mara, owner and general manager of the New York Giants, has English and Irish in his name, football in his heart and a touch of larceny in his blood.

One of the towering figures in the National Football League, Mara has dispatched Vince Lombardi to Green Bay, Tom Landry to Dallas and Harland Svare to the Rams and absconded with Y. A. Tittle from the 49ers and Del Shofner, among others, from the Rams.

Last season the sandy-haired member of one of New York's most prominent families saw his once-mighty Giants plummet from first to last in the Eastern Division. This season he is faced with the perplexing prospects of no title, no Tittle and Joe Namath across the bay in Shea Stadium.

Do you think that the Jets and the publicity given to signing Namath pose a threat to the Giants' dominance of pro football in New York, Mr. Mara?

"It's certainly competition, but I don't know if I would call it a threat. The Jets gave us competition last year without Namath. We mind our own business and do the best we can."

Who will play quarterback for the Giants next season now that Y. A. Tittle has retired?

"I imagine that Allie Sherman will go with our returning veteran, Gary Wood. We were very happy to have signed Bob Timberlake from Michigan. He's a fine prospect. We also have Ron DiGravio from the United League and another rookie, John Torok, from Arizona State."

What caused the downfall of the Giants in 1964?

"Mainly injuries. Just when we began to play good ball—we dominated a game against Cleveland and beat St. Louis the next week—injuries wrecked us. Tittle was hurt, Shofner left early in the year with an ulcer and we lost Lynch, Pesonen, Lo-Vetere and a few others with knee injuries. We missed Shofner badly. Our passing wasn't the same without him."

Are you looking for the Giants to make a strong comeback this season?

"It's a long way back up, but I think we'll do better. We had two good rookie backs last year, Steve Thurlow from Stanford and a big fullback, Ernie Wheelwright. Another rookie, Clarence Childs, led the league in kickoff returns and has the instincts for a good defensive back. We came up with some good young linemen too."

Will Frank Gifford play this season?

"I don't know. He's continuing to move up with CBS. But I hear he is taking road work every morning and that's a good sign."

The Giants haven't made a trade with the Rams for nearly two years. Don't you like dealing with them anymore?

"Our needs and surpluses are different now than they used to be. We once were able to pin-point our needs to a particular veteran. Now we need a number of good young players. They are not available from the Rams or any other club."

Did you make an offer for Roman Gabriel?

"No, but we would like to have him. He is a very fine young quarterback."

Having employed Svare as a player and assistant coach with the Giants, do you feel he has a good future as coach of the Rams.

"Yes. He has done a good job. He was a fine player for us and always showed the application and study it takes to make a coach."

Who do you consider the greatest player in Giants' history?

"For length of service and consistent performance, I would say Mel Hein and Charley Conerly. I also have a special liking for a couple of our earlier stars, Tuffy Leemans and Ward Cuff."

Were you happy with the results of the league meeting here?

"No. We kind of dragged our feet. Maybe the surroundings were too nice or as Dan Reeves said, 'we are getting too intelligent.' It wasn't productive enough."

What now would you say is the most important problem facing the NFL?

"Maintaining the quality of our play. We had people here from CBS, Ford, Coca Cola and the President's Council on Youth Fitness make presentations and tell us how much they value our association. It was very flattering."

A Giant force in the NFL is Wellington Mara.

Peggy Skates to Lead Over Canada Gals

Pasadena Flash Still Underdog in Finals Today

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., held a surprising lead Saturday after the compulsory figures phase of women's singles at the 1965 North American Figure Skating championships.

The two-time U. S. champion overcame an early deficit in edging Valerie Jones, 16, and Petra Burka, 18, both of Toronto, for first place.

Miss Fleming had nine ordinal placement points and 691.9 total points, compared to 12 ordinals and 691.8 for the second-place Miss Jones. Miss Burka, who still remains the favorite to win the title, finished third with 13 ordinals and 688.6 points.

* * * *

THE FIGURES count 60% toward the title but this afternoon's free skating finals will make up the remaining 40%.

Miss Burka excels in this phase of the competition and is heavily favored to overtake her two rivals.

The results, with ordinals and points:

WOMEN'S

1, Peggy Fleming U.S.A., 9, 691.9; 2, Valerie Jones, Canada, 12, 691.8; 3, Petra Burka, Canada, 13, 688.6; 4, Albertina Noyes, U.S.A., 23, 652.1; 5, Carol Noir, U.S.A., 22, 653.4; 6 Roberta Lawrent, Canada, 29, 638.5; 7, Gloria Tatton, Canada, 32, 627.4; 8, Myrna Bodek, U.S.A., 40, 583.9.

PAIRS

1, Vivian and Ronald Joseph U.S.A., 655; 2, Cyntala and Ronald Kauffman, U.S.A., 12, 51.0; 3, Suso and Paul Huehnergard, Canada, 13, 51.6; 4 Alexis and Chris Shields, Canada, 24, 48.2; 5, Faye Strutt and Jim Walters, Canada, 24, 49.1; 6 Jeanne Heckert and Gary Clark, U.S.A., 26, 48.4.

ICE DANCE

1, Lorna Dyer and John Carrell, U.S.A., 5, 104.6; 2, Carole Forest and Kevin Leihbridge, Canada, 14, 100.3; 3, Kristin Fortune and Dennis Sveum U.S.A., 15½, 98.2; 4, Susan Urban and Stan Urban, U.S.A., 16½, 97.1; 5, Lynn Matthews and Bryan Tooping, Canada, 27, 95.3; 6, Gail Snyder and Wayne Palmer, Canada, 30, 88.5.

Lundquist, Ralston in Title Match

SALISBURY, Md. (UPI) — Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield and Jan-Eric Lundquist of Sweden cracked the winning strings of two unseeded outsiders Saturday and qualified to meet for the National Indoor Tennis Championship.

The final today at 11 a.m., nationally televised, thus brings together the best amateur tennis players of America and Europe.

Ralston, No. 1 in the American rankings and the chief hope for bringing back the Davis Cup, outgunned Ron Holmberg, the paunchy Dallas hotel man, 6-1, 9-7 8-6.

* * * *

THE SMART and lightning quick Lundquist erased the 18-year-old high school sensation from Dallas, Cliff Richey, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Ralston, seeded No. 2 behind defending champion Chuck McKinley, started fast, suddenly ran into a tiger and finally survived a set of spotty tennis for a victory over the big blond former Brooklynite who has become largely a weekend player.

The 27-year-old Lundquist, who has virtually swept the indoor boards of Europe this winter, proved too experienced for Richey, the sandy-haired professional's son who wields a racket as if it is a weapon of destruction.

Angels Ready to Spring

By ROSS NEWHAN
Staff Writer

PALM SPRINGS — The road to Anaheim brings the Los Angeles Angels to this Eden for the final time Wednesday.

Not that Gene Autry is marshalling his posse to Florida or Arizona, but next spring it will be the California Angels convening at this desert fantasyland.

First things first, however, and first on the mind of the still Los Angeles Angels is a first division finish. The feeling is that Mickey Mouse can wait a year until something is done about Mickey Mantle.

To that end, 25 pitchers and four catchers will join manager Bill Rigney here Wednesday to be followed by the balance of the 51-man camp contingent on March 1.

That's more players than greeted Rigney when the Angels crawled out of the shell four years ago and the names of the past — Steve Bilko, Earl Averill, Ned Garver, Eli Grba — have been replaced by Cy Young award winner Dean Chance (whose contract calls for $47,000 not $41,000)., All-Star shortstop Jim Fregosi, comeback of the year honoree Jim Piersall and a guy named Smith whose alias of Wonderful Willie may prove prophetic.

"Our goal is another first division finish," said Rigney, embarking on his 25th year in organized baseball.

"I said when this all started it would take five years to develop a pennant contender and we are certainly getting closer to that goal," said general manager Fred Haney, lifting the anchor on his 47th baseball excursion.

It will be recalled that Rigney has had the gumption to twice threaten his boss's vision with first division finishes. Clearly, the Angels weren't prepared for their third place finish of '62, for they succumbed on the lofty atmosphere and finished ninth the following season.

What awaits the Angels on the heels of last season's fifth-place finish remains to be seen, but thus far this has been an every-other year ball club.

U.S., Mexico in World Soccer

Soccer football, the one sport that conducts a true world professional championship, moves into the Coliseum Sunday, March 7, for a World Cup elimination game between the United States and Mexico.

And, this country — supposedly on the tailend of the international soccer firmament—has a chance of upsetting the fireball shooters from south of the border, in the opinion of the game's experts.

Says Tony Morejon, the coach whose Greater L. A. League all stars stunned three European teams of late: "If the USA management builds its team around the five selected Los Angeles players this country has a chance."

Pro Football Common Draft Inevitable

Although certain NFL owners meeting in Palm Springs vigorously denied stories that they were getting close to a common draft with the rival AFL in order to curb the runaway prices on talent, sources close to the situation reveal that such an arrangement might not be far off.

A common draft, of course, is impossible now under existing laws . . . "so why not draw a little extra publicity by denying that we're thinking of such a thing for the future," one owner confides.

However, he reveals that legislation is expected to be introduced in Congress shortly by Senator Philip Hart (D) of Michigan to grant professional football and basketball the same immunity from federal anti-trust laws now enjoyed by professional baseball.

JOE NAMATH
No Limit to Riches

"It could pass Congress within 90 days," he pointed out recently, "and if it does, it will pave the way for a common draft — if not this year, then perhaps by 1966.

"Meanwhile, it is dangerous even to discuss the possibility of a draft agreemtent with the AFL because it might endanger passage of the bill."

A story out of Chicago the past week declared that the San Francisco 49ers and New York Giants were the only holdouts against a truce and a common draft with the AFL.

However, the negative reaction from some of the other clubs has led some observers to believe that perhaps only eight or nine of the 14 owners currently favor an agreement with the AFL.

It is known that a definite majority of owners share the view that a common draft with the AFL must come soon or the pro clubs will begin going into the red despite fantastic television contracts by paying out big bonuses to college players.

IT WAS ESTIMATED that the signing war between the two pro leagues would cost the combined 22 clubs around $5 million this year.

However, the bidding got so out of hand that it is believed the total outlay may hit $7½ million or more. This includes both bonuses and salaries to be paid over periods of two or three years on the average . . . and even longer in the case of the bigger contracts.

"The huge sums of money committed to the '64 college players is even more ridiculous when you consider the fact scouts rate it a very ordinary group. Kids who would have been lucky to get from $10,000 to $15,000-a-year "if they made the team" a couple of years ago have been able to wrangle $50,000 two-year, no-cut pacts," the NFL owner points out.

At least 10 players received package deals calling for $200,000 or more with Joe Namath's contract with the New York Jets hitting the record high of $400,000.

He received a $400,000 guaranteed bonus and salary plus a luxury car valued at $9,000.

Another two dozen received bonuses and salaries of $100,000 or more, another couple of dozen collected around $75,000 and at least 40 received around $50,000. These are conservative figures. Gifts, vacations, etc., to the top 100 to 150 players add up to a staggering amount.

IT IS HEARD THAT NAMATH'S $400,000 will be paid to him over a period of eight years for tax purposes. However, that figure covers only three or four years. There are conflicting statements about that.

If he proves a smashing success, his salary naturally will go up. New York sources claim that if Namath makes it big with the Jets, he can make $2 million in 10 years—not counting extra revenue from investment opportunities and above-normal endorsements, etc.

New York, of course, offers more opportunities to pick up extra money than any other area. It is estimated that playing in New York means an extra $25,000 to the "average headline" athlete per year from personal appearances, endorsements and the like.

Sonny Werblin, owner of the Jets, also signed Notre Dame quarterback John Huarte to a $200,000 contract . . . but there was another inducement, too—a promise to sponsor a sportscasting career for the Heisman Trophy winner.

THE JETS ASTOUNDED the average sports fan by paying out $700,000 for just three players.

However, from what figures are available, the Dallas Cowboys probably made the biggest commitments of the signing war—perhaps as much as $1,250,000 in bonuses and salaries.

Three players—quarterbacks Craig Morton and Jerry Rhome, and linebacker Malcolm Walker—collected packages totaling nearly $800,000. Bob Hayes, the Olympic sprint champion, drew better than $100,000 and at least one other received a pact in that bracket.

The Chicago Bears also shelled out a tremendous sum . . . and the Rams weren't far behind.

Charles Still on Bird Binge

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Bob Charles, a lefthanded putting genius from Christchurch, New Zealand, opened an awesome five stroke lead in the $46,000 Tucson Open golf tournament Saturday by firing a brilliant five-under par 67 to go 15 stokes under par for 54 holes with a 201.

The 25-year-old Charles, bidding for his first international victory in two years and the first wire-to-wire triumph on the PGA tour this season, clicked off six birdies before taking his first bogey of the tournament when he three-putted the final green. It was his initial three-putt green in seven competitive rounds.

Al Geiberger, shooting one of the day's 66's, soared into second place at 206, a stroke in front of Tommy Jacobs, also a 66 shooter.

But the biggest gallaries trailed the sober-faced Charles, who's last important victories came in the British Open and the Houston Classic in 1963.

• • • •

BOB, who jumped in front Thursday with a 65 on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course and opened a three stroke margin Friday with a 69, is following a Tucson Open pattern. In 1963 Don January led from start to finish, winding up 22 under par with an 11-stroke victory.

Charles, playing "fairly conservatively," none the less put his approaches and chips so close to the pins that three of his birdie putts were only four feet long and another was just a foot. In fact, the only long putt he made was a 25-footer at the 12th hole.

He salvaged a fine par at the ninth hole when his tee shot wound up beside a tree he missed his first green of the tournament. He played a "safe" iron shot short of the green before holing a five-footer for his par.

Besselink in 3-Way Tie at Bogota

BOGOTA, Columbia (UPI) — Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., who broke the course record Friday, held on to a portion of the lead in the Bogota Open Golf Tournament by firing a three-under-par 69 Saturday for a 201 total after 54 holes.

Besselink fired a 61 over the Los Lagartos course Friday but had difficulty getting started Saturday, taking bogeys on the first three holes and eventually winding up in a three-way tie with Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo and Willard Scholl of Berkleigh, Pa.

Both De Vicenzo, who is playing the Caribbean winter circuit for the first time, and Scholl fired 67s.

FOUR strokes back of the leaders were Raymond Floyd of St. Andrews, Ill., who shot a 71, and Colombia's Carlos Anzaldo, who closed in with a 67.

Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., winner at Panama in the first tournament of the winter tour, soared to a 67 and fell way back with a 215 total.

CHANCES NIL FOR PLAYOFFS

Blades---Most of 'Em---Still Try

By RICH ROBERTS

The Blades have 17 games left to play this season, which doesn't include playoff games because they won't be playing any of those.

That sad destiny, brought into even sharper focus by Friday's 3-1 come-from-ahead loss at San Francisco, leaves the squad members hard-pressed for incentives.

VEJPRAVA

There will be no playoff bonuses of $1,000 or more, and certain players must be resigned to an uncertain future. These are the last 17 games they'll ever play for the Blades.

Moreover, a team that finishes last, which appears to be the Blades' lot, distributes few individual awards—like extra money in the pay envelope.

Still, they keep right on trying, which is to their credit as professional sportsmen. For the first 2½ periods in the Cow Palace Friday the Blades did themselves proud, and for a last-place team you can't ask much more than that.

Gordon Hudson Vejprava speaks for the few dedicated pros among the Blades when he tries to explain what keeps a team going when nothing's going right. And, more important, why it keeps going.

"You always feel you have a chance until you're mathematically eliminated," says Vejprava. "And even when you are out of it you can still go for goals and points. There's always next year, whether you're with this club or somewhere else."

In other words, the Blades are in that phase common to the death throes of a last-place finisher—the salary drive.

Vejprava, as stated, is a pro. He's been one for a dozen of his 32 years, none of which was spent in the big league.

But a career minor leaguer can conduct himself as professionally as a Bobby Hull, maybe more so.

What the hell!" Vejy says, "a guy's a rat to give up even if he is having a bad season, because if there's nothing else left he can always help out somebody else for points."

To tell the truth, Vejy stepped out of character when he didn't say "rat," but it was forgiveable because everybody knows the type of guy he was talking about.

What he meant was, a big league does not a big leaguer make.

McLeod's 5th Shutout as Seattle Wins

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—Bob Barlow and goalie Jim McLeod combined talents before 3,094 fans here Saturday night to lift the Seattle Totems to within six points of the Western Hockey League leading Portland Buckaroos.

McLeod got his fifth shutout of the season and Barlow scored the game's only goal in the third period as the second-place Totems blanked Victoria, 1-0.

Barlow made a spectacular play for his goal, shoveling the puck into the net while falling over goalie Al Millar, who had just blocked a long drive by Don Ward.

McLeod Golf Begins Saturday at Virginia

By JOHN CASH

Accuracy will be foremost in the minds of all six Long Beach Masters Tournament competitors when they tee off at Virginia Country Club Saturday at 10 a.m. in the eighth renewal of the annual 72-hole medal play event.

Since there is no defending champion with Bill McCormick losing his Skylinks club title, it is difficult to predict a clear-cut favorite for this year's tourney. Virginia's representative Mike Fedderly looms a slight choice, though, with the first round offering the friendly environment of his home course.

• • • • •

VIRGINIA IS NOTED FOR its narrow fairways and hilly terrain which has caused many a L.B. Masters competitor to fall far off the pace should he suffer a streak of wildness.

Originally the first round was scheduled for Meadowlark. However, a conflicting men's club tourney on March 6 forced the switch which now finds Meadowlark as the third round host March 6 and Virginia the opening round site.

Other rounds are slated for Lakewood next Sunday.

ACCURACY A NECESSITY

Venturi Near Comeback

Ken Venturi and his doctor both are confident the U.S. Open champion can resume competitive golf next month, probably at the Pensacola Open in Florida, March 5-8.

VENTURI

A circulatory ailment forced Venturi to the sidelines after the Bing Crosby tournament last month.

Dr. Robert M. Woods, team physician for the Dodgers, performed diagnostic surgery on Venturi Jan. 28. It disclosed numbness in his hands was caused by inflamation of the arteries. A medication treatment was prescribed and the golfer was told to rest.

Dr. Woods treated a similar ailment for pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers in 1962. The following year the lefthander was baseball's top pitcher.

"I haven't touched a club since the Crosby except to putt a little," Venturi says. "But I feel wonderful now. The middle finger of my right hand still is not too good, but better."

Dr. Woods said Venturi should be able to play at Pensacola, commenting, "He may be a little rusty when he returns to the tour, but that's to be expected. With warmer weather, he will be the same as he was and maybe even better."

On Friday, an unusual scene will be enacted at Palm Springs. Venturi will hit golf balls under the scrutiny of Dr. Woods.

"He wants to see what happens during the pressure of holding and swinging the clubs," the golfer explained. "I'll know in Palm Springs whether I'll be going to Pensacola or not."

Venturi says if he gets the medical go-ahead, "I'll work awfully hard to get back into the game. It will take me a while. Don't expect any miracles at Pensacola. I've got to build up strength in my hands. It will take me a week or two of good, hard work.

"Then I should be all right again."

Venturi's tremendous performance last June in the U.S. Open at the Congressional Country Club in Washington, D.C., won him Comeback-of-the-Year honors.

Then in November he noticed his hands would become cold and numb. Several weeks later in a locker room, baseball player Lee Walls noted two of Venturi's fingers looked blue. He recalled the Koufax ailment and suggested a visit to Dr. Woods.

LE MAIRE WILL ATTEMPT UNDERWATER CHANNEL SWIM

Robert LeMaire, noted big game hunter and shark wrestler, is presently training for possibly his biggest milestone—swimming to Catalina Island underwater.

LeMaire will use self-contained underwater oxygen units and will be guided by an underwater compass and aided day and night by two SCUBA divers.

The event will take place in late May or early June. In preparation, LeMaire is training in waters off Long Beach for distance, water temperature and rhythm, adjustment to underwater currents.

$55,000 Pay for Sluggers; Sisk in Fold

Compiled From Wire Services

Sluggers Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins and Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds signed contracts estimated at $55,000 Saturday while pitcher Tommy Sisk came to terms for an undisclosed sum with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sisk, the right-hand reliefer from Long Beach, had a 1-4 record last year with Pittsburgh and a 3-4 mark with the Columbus Jets of the International League.

Killebrew hit a personal high of 49 home runs and drove in 111 runs in 1964, and was believed to have received a raise in pay of $2,500. An outfielder since 1961, he is due to return to first base this season.

Robinson said he was "very satisfied" with his new contract. He had taken a substantial pay cut from his 1962 peak of $60,000 when he hit .259 in 1963. But a .306 mark last season was rewarded by a raise.

Others to sign Saturday were Wally Bunker, the freshman pitching sensation of the Baltimore Orioles; Ron Hunt and Al Jackson of the Mets, Mel Stottlemyre and Hector Lopez of the Yanks, Jack Baldschun of the Phillies and Danny Osinki, the relief pitcher traded from the Angels to the Braves.

Kids who would have been lucky to get from $10,000 to $15,000-a-year "if they made the team' a couple of years ago have been able to wrangle $50,000 two-year, no-cut pacts," the NFL owner points out.

At least 10 players received package deals calling for $200,000 or more with Joe Namath's contract with the New York Jets hitting the record high of $409,000.

He received a $400,000 guaranteed bonus and salary plus a luxury car valued at $9,000.

Another two dozen received bonuses and salaries of $100,000 or more, another couple of dozen collected around $75,000 and at least 40 received around $50,000. These are conservative figures. Gifts, vacations, etc., to the top 100 to 150 players add up to a staggering amount.

IT IS HEARD THAT NAMATH'S $400,000 will be paid to him over a period of eight years for tax purposes. However, that figure covers only three or four years. There are conflicting statements about that.

If he proves a smashing success, his salary naturally will go up. New York sources claim that if Namath makes it big with the Jets, he can make $2 million in 10 years—not counting extra revenue from investment opportunities and above-normal endorsements, etc.

New York, of course, offers more opportunities to pick up extra money than any other area. It is estimated that playing in New York means an extra $25,000 to the "average headline" athlete per year from personal appearances, endorsements and the like.

Sonny Werblin, owner of the Jets, also signed Notre Dame quarterback John Huarte to a $201,000 contract . . . but there was another inducement, too—a promise to sponsor a sportscasting career for the Heisman Trophy winner.

THE JETS ASTOUNDED the average sports fan by paying out $700,000 for just three players.

However, from what figures are available, the Dallas Cowboys probably made the biggest commitments of the signing war—perhaps as much as $1,250,000 in bonuses and salaries.

Three players—quarterbacks Craig Morton and Jerry Rhome, and linebacker Malcolm Walker—collected packages totaling nearly $800,000. Bob Hayes, the Olympic sprint champion, drew better than $100,000 and at least one other received a tart in that bracket.

The Chicago Bears also shelled out a tremendous sum . . . and the Rams weren't far behind.

Charles Still on Bird Binge

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Bob Charles, a lefthanded putting genius from Christchurch, New Zealand, opened an awesome five stroke lead in the $46,000 Tucson Open golf tournament Saturday by firing a brilliant five-under par 67 to go 15 stokes under par for 54 holes with a 201.

The 28-year-old Charles, bidding for his first international victory in two years and the first wire-to-wire triumph on the PGA tour this season, clicked off six birdies before taking his first bogey of the tournament when he three-putted the final green. It was his initial three-putt green in seven competitive rounds.

Al Geiberger, shooting one of the day's 66's, soared into second place at 206, a stroke in front of Tommy Jacobs, also a 66 shooter.

But the biggest gallaries trailed the sober-faced Charles, who's last important victories came in the British Open and the Houston Classic in 1963.

BOB, who jumped in front Thursday with a 65 on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course and opened a three stroke margin Friday with a 69, is following a Tucson Open pattern. In 1963 Don January led from start to finish, winding up 22 under par with an 11-stroke victory.

Charles, playing "fairly conservatively," none the less put his approaches and chips so close to the pins that three of his birdie putts were only four feet long and another was just a foot. In fact, the only long putt he made was a 25-footer at the 12th hole.

He salvaged a fine par at the ninth hole when his tee shot wound up beside a tree he missed his first green of the tournament. He played a "safe" iron shot short of the green before holing a five-footer for his par.

Besselink in 3-Way Tie at Bogota

BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) — Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., who broke the course record Friday, held on to a portion of the lead in the Bogota Open Golf Tournament by firing a three-under-par 69 Saturday for a 201 total after 54 holes.

Besselink fired a 64 over the Los Lagartos course Friday but had difficulty getting started Saturday, taking bogeys on the first three holes and eventually winding up in a three-way tie with Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo and Willard Scholl of Berkleigh, Pa.

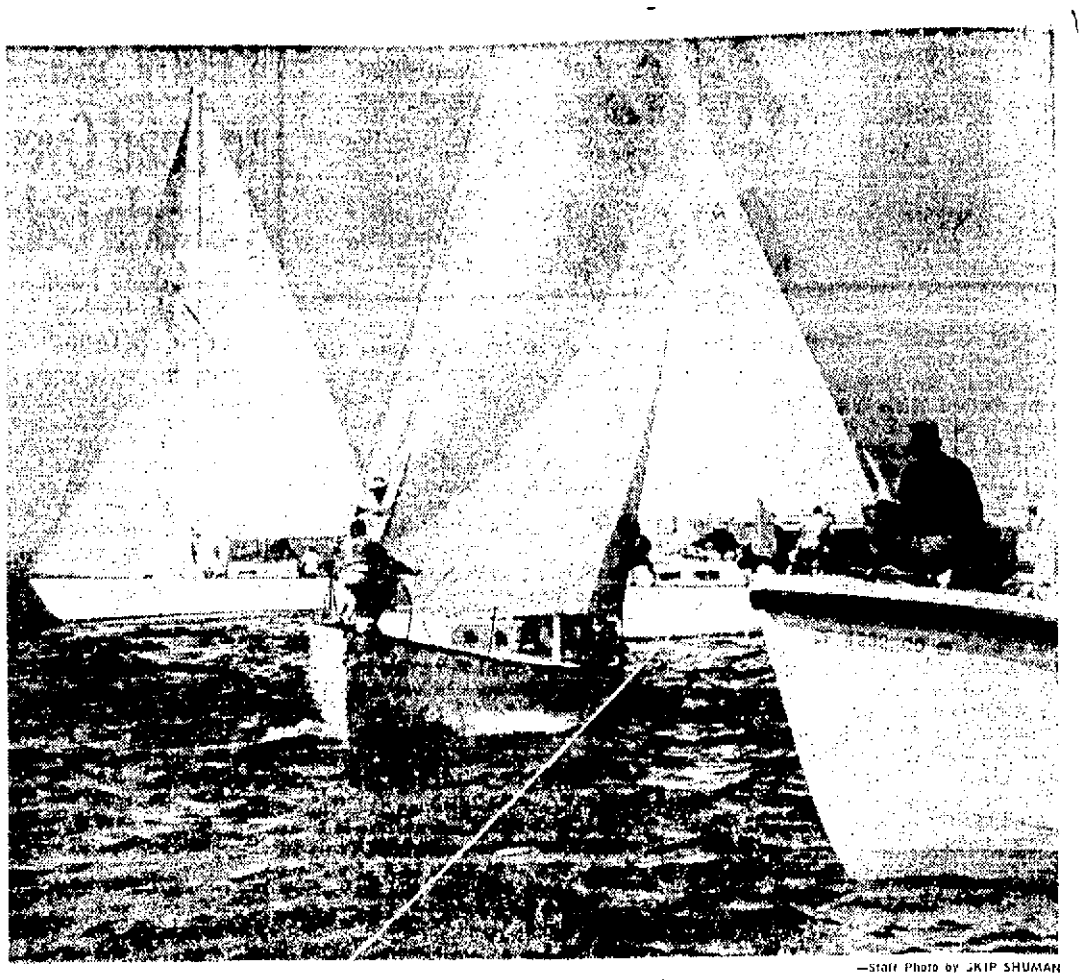

Both De Vicenzo, who is playing the Caribbean winter circuit for the first time, and Scholl fired 67s.

FOUR strokes back of the leaders were Raymond Floyd of St. Andrews, Ill., who shot a 71, and Colombia's Carlos Anzaldo, who closed in with a 67.

Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., winner at Panama in the first tournament of the winter tour, soared to a 67 and fell way back with a 215 total.

CHANCES NIL FOR PLAYOFFS

Blades---Most of 'Em---Still Try

By RICH ROBERTS

The Blades have 17 games left to play this season, which doesn't include playoff games because they won't be playing any of those.

That sad destiny, brought into even sharper focus by Friday's 3-1 come-from-ahead loss at San Francisco, leaves the squad members hard-pressed for incentives.

VEJPRAVA

There will be no playoff bonuses of $1,000 or more, and certain players must be resigned to an uncertain future. These are the last 17 games they'll ever play for the Blades.

Moreover, a team that finishes last, which appears to be the Blades' lot, distributes few individual awards—like extra money in the pay envelope.

Still, they keep right on trying, which is to their credit as professional sportsmen. For the first 2½ periods in the Cow Palace Friday the Blades did themselves proud, and for a last-place team you can't ask much more than that.

Gordon Hudson Vejprava speaks for the few dedicated pros among the Blades when he tries to explain what keeps a team going when nothing's going right. And, more important, why it keeps going.

"You always feel you have a chance until you're mathematically eliminated," says Vejprava. "And even when you are out of it you can still go for goals and points. There's always next year, whether you're with this club or somewhere else."

In other words, the Blades are in that phase common to the death throes of a last-place finisher—the salary drive.

Vejprava, as stated, is a pro. He's been one for a dozen of his 32 years, none of which was spent in the big league.

But a career minor leaguer can conduct himself as professionally as a Bobby Hull, maybe more so.

"What the heck," Vejprava says, "a guy's a nut to give up even if he is having a bad season, because if there's nothing else left he can always help out somebody else for points."

To tell the truth, Vejprava stepped out of character when he didn't say "nut," but it was forgiveable because everybody knows the type of guy he was talking about.

What he meant was, a big league guy is a nut a big leaguer make.

McLeod's 5th Shutout as Seattle Wins

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI)—Bob Barlow and goalie Jim McLeod combined talents before 3,691 fans here Saturday night to lift the Seattle Totems to within six points of the Western Hockey League leading Portland Buckaroos.

McLeod got his fifth shutout of the season and Barlow scored the game's only goal in the third period as the second-place Totems blanked Victoria, 1-0.

Barlow made a spectacular play for his goal, shoveling the puck into the net while falling over goalie Al Millar, who had just blocked a long drive by Don Ward.

ACCURACY A NECESSITY

Masters Golf Begins Saturday at Virginia

By JOHN CASH

Accuracy will be foremost in the minds of all six Long Beach Masters Tournament competitors when they tee off at Virginia Country Club Saturday at 10 a.m. in the eighth renewal of the annual 72-hole medal play event.

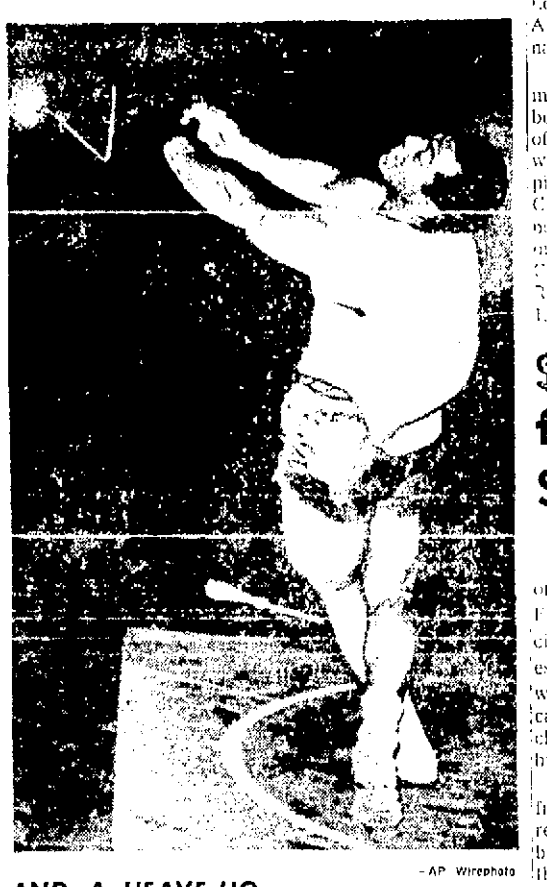

Since there is no defending champion with Bill McCormick losing his Skylinks club title, it is difficult to predict a clear-cut favorite for this year's tourney. Virginia's representative Mike Fedderly looms a slight choice, though, with the first round offering the friendly environment of his home course.

Les Klabunde (Recreation Park), Hank Rams (El Dorado), Dick Mortenson (Skylinks), Hank Gowdy (Meadowlark) and Terry Hartshorn (Lakewood) round out this year's select field.

VIRGINIA IS NOTED FOR its narrow fairways and hilly terrain which has caused many a L.B. Masters competitor to fall far off the pace should he suffer a streak of wildness.

Originally the first round was scheduled for Meadowlark. However, a conflicting men's club tourney on March 6 forced the switch which now finds Meadowlark as the third round host March 6 and Virginia the opening round site.

Other rounds are slated for Lakewood next Sunday,

Fighting the heavy haze, the smaller sailboats out of LBYC, ABYC and CBYC were tangled in a snarl of bad starts and mid-race fouls that resulted in a storm of protests after Saturday's opening race.

THE ENTIRE Flying Dutchman fleet out of Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club was disqualified Saturday for missing the first mark.

The smaller sailing classes, competing on Alamitos Bay, LBYC and ABYC Olympic ocean racing courses in outer Long Beach Harbor and in Los Angeles Harbor, race their final Midwinter heat today.

Included in Saturday's opening race was a 35-mile power boat predicted Log Race out of Long Beach Yacht Club in which LBYC's John Miller, piloting Aegis J., copped the Class "A" lead with a .987 corrected time error and Ed Roes out of Shark Island Yacht Club at the helm of Rambling Rose took Class "B" with a 1.05 error.

$55,000 Pay for Sluggers; Sisk in Fold

Sluggers Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins and Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds signed contracts estimated at $55,000 Saturday while pitcher Tommy Sisk came to terms for an undisclosed sum with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sisk, the right-hand reliefer from Long Beach, had a 1-4 record last year with Pittsburgh and a 3-4 mark with the Columbus Jets of the International League.

Killebrew hit a personal high of 49 home runs and drove in 111 runs in 1964, and was believed to have received a raise in pay of $2,500. An outfielder since 1961, he is due to return to first base this season.

Robinson said he was "very satisfied" with his new contract. He had taken a substantial pay cut from his 1962 peak of $60,000 when he hit .259 in 1963. But a .306 mark last season was rewarded by a raise.

Others to sign Saturday were Wally Bunker, the freshman pitching sensation of the Baltimore Orioles; Ron Hunt and Al Jackson of the Mets, Met Stottlemyre and Hector Lopez of the Yanks, Jack Baldschun of the Phillies and Danny Osinki, the relief pitcher traded from the Angels to the Braves.

Venturi Near Comeback

Ken Venturi and his doctor both are confident the U.S. Open champion can resume competitive golf next month, possibly at the Pensacola Open in Florida March 5-8.

VENTURI

A circulatory ailment forced Venturi to the sidelines after the Bing Crosby tournament last month.

Dr. Robert M. Woods, team physician for the Dodgers, performed diagnostic surgery on Venturi Jan. 29. It disclosed numbness in his hands was caused by inflamation of the arteries. A medication treatment was prescribed and the golfer was told to rest.

Dr. Woods made [illegible] similar [illegible] for pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers in 1962. The following year the left-hander was baseball's top pitcher.

"I haven't touched a club [illegible] the Crosby event to [illegible] Venturi said. "[illegible] Career of my right hand will is not too good, but better."

Dr. Woods said Venturi should be able to play at Pensacola, commenting, "He may be a little rusty when he returns to the tour, but that's to be expected. With warmer weather, he will be the same as he was and maybe even better."

"I haven't touched a club [illegible] Crosby event to [illegible] Venturi said. "[illegible] Career of my right hand will is not too good, but better."

On Tuesday, an unusual scene will be enacted at Palm Springs. Venturi will hit golf balls under the scrutiny of Dr. Woods.

"He wants to see what happens during the pressure of holding and swinging the clubs," the golfer explained. "I'll know in Palm Springs whether I'll be going to Pensacola or not."

Venturi says if he gets the medical go-ahead, "I'll work awfully hard to get back into the game. It will take me a while. Don't expect any miracles at Pensacola. I've got to build up strength in my hands. It will take me a week or two of good, hard work.

"Then I should be all right again."

Venturi's tremendous performance last June in the U.S. Open at the Congressional Country Club in Washington, D.C., won him Comeback-of-the-Year honors.

Then in November he noticed his hands would become cold and numb. Several weeks later in a locker room, baseball player Lee Walls noted two of Venturi's fingers looked blue. He recalled the Koufax ailment and suggested a visit to Dr. Woods.

LE MAIRE WILL ATTEMPT UNDERWATER CHANNEL SWIM

Robert LeMaire, noted big game hunter and shark wrestler, is presently training for possibly his biggest milestone—swimming to Catalina Island underwater.

LeMaire will use self-contained underwater oxygen units and will be guided by an underwater compass and aided day and night by two SCUBA divers.

The event will take place in late May or early June. In preparation, LeMaire is training in waters off Long Beach for distance, water temperature and rhythm, adjustment to underwater currents.

OREGON STATE, SAN JOSE STRONG

Trojans Face Run for Track Laurels

By JOHN DIXON

Selecting the Pacific Coast (and national) champion in collegiate track and field usually is as easy as spelling USC, but this year it's something like trying to spear a dollar bill with a Japanese noodle.

USC, Oregon State and San Jose State have enough returnees of "class" caliber to staff an Olympic team. A lot of coaches will be eating aspirin sandwiches when they try to match muscles with the big three.

USC lacks sprinters, and that's all. Coach Vern Wolfe expects heavy point production from four frosh record holders—Paul Kerry, 14.2 hurdles; Dennis Carr, 1:49.7 880; Bill Fosdick, 15-6½ pole vault, and Gary Carlsen, 172-2 discus.

Oregon State has good balance and one of the nation's quickest runners, Morgan Groth (1:46.4 880, 3:57.9 mile).

San Jose coach Bud Winter expects "one of the best teams we've ever had," and last season the Spartans were one of the nation's best. Returnees include Wayne Herman (9.5, 21.1 sprints), John Garrison (1:49.6 880) and Danny Murphy (29:37.8 10,000 meters).

Fresno State may make it a "big four," while Villanova, New Mexico and Rice are best of the rest of the U.S.

UCLA coach Jim Bush, who transferred from Occidental, performed junior college transfer miracles on the banquet circuit. The Bruins have two top-raters in distance runners Bob Day (3:58.9 mile) and Geoff Pyne of New Zealand.

New Occidental coach Dean Brittenham faces the strongest schedule in school history with one of the leanest squads in school history. Brittenham genuinely believes in character building—fortunately.

The Southern California Striders and Pasadena Athletic Assn., 1-2 among all club squads, are loaded with Olympians and high expectations.

THOUGH there's no trip to Tokyo to inspire the runners and jumpers, there's an enormous big-meet schedule which culminates with summer excursions to Europe.

The season "officially" commences with the mammoth Long Beach Relays on March 6 in Veterans Stadium. The all-day competition encompasses junior high, high school, junior college, college, frosh and open events.

Most of the late season features will be conducted in the Southland, including the Coliseum Relays May 14, Compton Invitational in the Coliseum June 4, AAU championships at San Diego June 26-27 and a European vs. U.S. meet in July.

The schedules:

HIGH FLYING 49ER

Jeff Clements, Long Beach State College senior, figures to be a mainstay in 49ers' CCAA and NCAA small college championship track and field hopes this season. Clements' best 440 time is 47.7, two-tenths second off LBSC record.

49er Hopes Ride on Classy Group

The names change but Long Beach State doesn't.

Season after season the 49ers are champions or runners-up in CCAA track and field, and the outlook is for more of the same this term.

Jack Rose's gladiators don't rate with Fresno — only a handful of collegiate clubs do. The 49ers are a furlong behind the Bulldogs but a step ahead of San Diego and L.A. State in conference competition.

Seven high-pointers graduated from the team that won silver medals in the CCAA, NCAA regionals and college-division nationals — dashers Jim Richardson and Gary Gaudet, mid-runners Dave Shirley, Darryl Taylor and Bill Crowley, weightman George Frenn and Dee Andrews, a centipede in spikes.

There's outstanding, veteran talent on hand, but it's spread thin.

Among the consistent high-finishers should be Jeff Clements, 47.6 440; Ralph Lee, 1:50.8 880; Doug Smith, 14.7 high hurdles; Kent Parson, 14-2½ pole vault, and John Rambo, 7-1¼ high jumper who won a bronze medal at Tokyo.

* * * *

HIGH hopes are held for newcomers George Davis, 1:52.5 880; Mit Hunt, 4:15.5 mile, 9:24.4 two-mile; Julio Mendez, 6-4 high jump, and a few others.

The season commences Feb. 26 with a dual meet at Cal Poly of Pomona. The Long Beach Relays follow on March 6.

Alternating laps and running 20 440s each, Ralph Lee and Steve Tilney of the Long Beach State 49er Track Club cracked an LBSC field record Saturday with a 43:48 clocking in the two-man 10-mile run.

Lee averaged 65.0 and Tilney 66.0. Tom Jennings (65.4) and Darryl Taylor (66.7) and Jim Schultz and Dave Mellady were also under the old mark in 43.59 and 44.48.

Freshmen Alan Prais and Ken Swanson set a class record of 48:26.

Third base is the critical vacuum and the list of candidates reads like a United Nations' directory: Cardenal, Kirkpatrick, Vic Power, Felix Torres, Paul Schaal, Tom Egan, Joe Koppe and the probable winner, Julio Gotay.

Besides Dean, on hand are Fred Newman, a 13-game winner as a sophomore, Bill Kelso, a winner in his only two major league starts, and such names to remember as Rudy May, Ron Piche, Bob Locke, Bob Radovich, Pat Rogan and a guy named McBride.

"It's fine. I haven't seen my team play in four months."

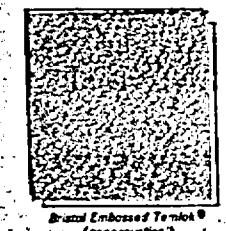

WALL STREET POISONS IVY?

ATLANTA (AP) — The secretary of the Florida High School Coaches Association says that recruiting of high school athletes by colleges has gotten out of hand in Florida and that alumni of Ivy League schools are the worst.

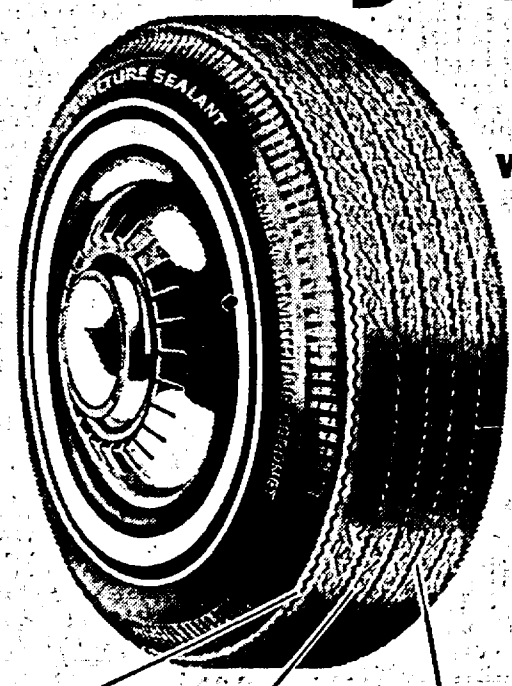

"The toughest institutions of all to deal with are in the Ivy League," said Cary McDonald of Ocala Friday.

Trojans Face Run for Track Laurels

By JOHN DIXON

Selecting the Pacific Coast (and national) champion in collegiate track and field usually is as easy as spelling USC, but this year it's something like trying to spear a dollar bill with a Japanese noodle.

USC, Oregon State and San Jose State have enough returnees of "class" caliber to staff an Olympic team. A lot of coaches will be eating aspirin sandwiches when they try to match muscles with the big three.

USC lacks sprinters, and that's all. Coach Vern Wolfe expects heavy point production from four frosh record holders—Paul Kerry, 14.2 hurdles; Dennis Carr, 1:49.7 880; Bill Fosdick, 15-6½ pole vault, and Gary Carlsen, 172-2 discus.

Oregon State has good balance and one of the nation's quickest runners, Morgan Groth (1:46.4 880, 3:57.9 mile).

San Jose coach Bud Winter expects "one of the best teams we've ever had," and last season the Spartans were one of the nation's best. Returnees include Wayne Herman (9.5, 21.1 sprints), John Garrison (1:49.6 880) and Danny Murphy (29:37.8 10,000 meters).

Fresno State may make it a "big four," while Villanova, New Mexico and Rice are best of the rest of the U. S.

UCLA coach Jim Bush, who transferred from Occidental, performed junior college transfer miracles on the banquet circuit. The Bruins have two top-raters in distance runners Bob Day (3:58.9 mile) and Geoff Pyne of New Zealand.

New Occidental coach Dean Brittenham faces the strongest schedule in school history with one of the leanest squads in school history. Brittenham genuinely believes in character building—fortunately.

The Southern California Striders and Pasadena Athletic Assn., 1-2 among all club squads, are loaded with Olympians and high expectations.

THOUGH there's no trip to Tokyo to inspire the runners and jumpers, there's an enormous big-meet schedule which culminates with summer excursions to Europe.

The season "officially" commences with the mammoth Long Beach Relays on March 6 in Veterans Stadium. The all-day competition encompasses junior high, high school, junior college, college, frosh and open events.

Most of the late season features will be conducted in the Southland, including the Coliseum Relays May 14, Compton Invitational in the Coliseum June 4, AAU championships at San Diego June 26-27 and a European vs. U. S. meet in the Coliseum in July.

The schedules:

49er Hopes Ride on Classy Group

The names change but Long Beach State doesn't.

Season after season the 49ers are champions or runners-up in CCAA track and field, and the outlook is for more of the same this term.

Jack Rose's gladiators don't rate with Fresno — only a handful of collegiate clubs do. The 49ers are a furlong behind the Bulldogs but a step ahead of San Diego and L.A. State in conference competition.

Seven high-pointers graduated from the team that won silver medals in the CCAA, NCAA regionals and college-division nationals — dashers Jim Richardson and Gary Gaudet, mid-runners Dave Shirley, Darryl Taylor and Bill Crowley, weightman George Frenn and Dee Andrews, a centipede in spikes.

There's outstanding, veteran talent on hand, but it's spread thin.

Among the consistent high-finishers should be Jeff Clements, 47.6 440; Ralph Lee, 1:50.8 880; Doug Smith, 14.7 high hurdles; Kent Parson, 14-2½ pole vault, and John Rambo, 7-1¼ high jumper who won a bronze medal at Tokyo.

* * * *

HIGH hopes are held for newcomers George Davis, 1:52.5 880; Mit Hunt, 4:15.5 mile, 9:24.4 two-mile; Julio Mendez, 6-4 high jump, and a few others.

The season commences Feb. 26 with a dual meet at Cal Poly of Pomona. The Long Beach Relays follow on March 6.

—JOHN DIXON

Feb. 26—at Cal Poly Pomona; March 6—Long Beach Relays; March 13—USC and San Diego State at Coliseum; March 20—Alumni; March 27—Claremont Relays; March 31—at L.A. State; April 10—Fresno and San Fran. State at San Francisco; April 17—Arizona; April 23-24—Mt. San Antonio Relays; May 1—CCAA championships at Fresno; May 8—West Coast Relays at Fresno; May 14—Coliseum Relays; May 15—Regional NCAA championships at Hayward; May 29—California Relays at Modesto; June 4—Compton Invitational at Coliseum; June 5—SPAAAU Jr. championships in L.B.; June 11-12 college division NCAA championships at Veterans Stadium; June 17-19—NCAA championships at Berkeley; June 26-27—AAU championships at San Diego.

HIGH FLYING 49ER

Jeff Clements, Long Beach State College senior, figures to be a mainstay in 49ers' CCAA and NCAA small college championship track and field hopes this season. Clements' best 440 time is 47.7, two-tenths second off LBSC record.

Pitching, of course, looms as the Angels' strength and the depth which has been absent in the past is now too extensive to discuss at this juncture.

Rigney and pitching coach Marv Grissom will prune 25 hurlers to 13 by opening day and needless to say their theme song will be "Just One More Chance."

Besides Dean, on hand are Fred Newman, a 13-game winner as a sophomore, Bill Kelso, a winner in his only two major league starts, and such names to remember as Rudy May, Ron Piche, Bob Locke, Bob Radovich, Pat Rogan and a guy named McBride.

When last seen, relief ace Bob Lee had a sailor wrapped around his right fist. He now has a cyst on the hand and its removal may delay his arrival.

Aside from Lee, the Angels report in perfect working order, including the manager. Asked by a bartender at a local oasis, about the condition of his ulcer, Rigney replied:

"It's fine. I haven't seen my team play in four months."

THE KEY TO VICTORY
Cedar Key (3) does not appear to be winner in this photo but a stride later at finish line he won by nose in $57,500 San Luis Rey Handicap at Santa Anita Saturday over the apparent winner, Or Et Argent.

Cedar Key in Narrow Triumph

brilliant ride by Ycaza he still was able to win although spotting his nearest rival nine pounds.

Ramant, with 110 pounds, set the early pace in the race, taking the lead on the infield course.

For most of the race Cedar Key was in the middle of the pack and hugging the rail to save ground. For the first mile Desert Chief III, from New Zealand, forced Ramant's pace with Or Et Argent next and Polizonte close to the leaders.

• • • • •

YCAZA brought Cedar Key to the outside on the second infield turn to make sure he had running room. At that point, Or Et Argent took over the lead with Polizonte second and Cedar Key sixth.

Turning into the stretch, Cedar Key came to the outside for room and then cut to the inside again as Ycaza saw a hole. It was a long drive for the ultimate winner, but under a whip ride he steadily closed on the leaders and just caught them at the wire.

The victory was worth $35,000 to owner Jerry Basta who had the good fortune to claim Cedar Key for $9,500 two years ago. Last year the gelding won $183,359 for Basta as he was campaigned almost exclusively on the grass.

In addition to the San Juan Capistrano division he won the Bowling Green and McComber handicaps in New York and was in the money in numerous other rich turf stakes.

Red Smith's Views of Sports—

NFL's Signing Rule Spoils All the Fun

The men who own the National Football League are—it seems hardly necessary to say—sportsmen and scholars of towering rectitude and probity, trustworthy, loyal, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

So completely do they trust one another that they have armed their house mother, Pete Rozelle, with a large revolver to keep them from temptation.

It goes without saying that no member of this distinguished company would even consider violating his promise to leave college boys undebauched as long as they are eligible to run interference for alma mater.

Still, just in case, the brothers have empowered Rozelle to flog transgressors by depriving an offending team of its draft rights for as long as two years.

When they took this action in their league meeting in Palm Desert, they did not mean to imply that any of them had sinned in the past.

No such implication should be read into the new ruling, for the fact is they have always deplored the premature hiring of amateur players and have indulged in it only when:

(a) Competition from a rival group like the late All-American Conference, the Canadian League or the American League made it seem advisable to rope, tie, and brand attractive livestock before somebody else got there, or (b) there was no competition but they needed the practice.

During this winter's frantic bidding for biochemistry majors who can throw out of the pocket, the favorite pastime in both leagues was telling tales of dark deeds and nefarious schemes perpetrated in "that other league."

Even when the source was considered and allowance made, some of these yarns were entertaining.

There was the case of two muscular scholars who were flown to a city or removed from the campus on the eve of one league's draft meeting. Only one was sought by a team in that league, but he was allowed to bring a teammate and pal along for company.

They were entertained in a fashion not usually recommended by the team trainer, or by the clergy, for that matter. Along about 4 a.m. when the party was over and the lads had retired, there was a knock on the door of their motel room. Two strangers entered.

Identifying himself as a representative of a certain professional team, one of the visitors produced a contract and ballpoint pen and demanded a signature on the spot.

He promised that if the boy refused to sign, no team in his league would draft him on the morrow. Full of vague fears about being "blacklisted," the kid scrawled his name. A few hours later he was drafted by the team named on the contract.

That story has a small sequel. Back on the campus, the boy discovered that a teammate was getting a bonus from the other league three times bigger than the figure on his contract. He told his story to a lawyer, and his own bonus was substantially increased. To insure his silence, perhaps?

This was only one case, not necessarily unique. All winter long, similar cloak-and-dagger tales are told about boys being spirited into hiding and kept incommunicado until negotiations were concluded, about blandishments offered and curious tactics employed.

Naturally, no matter who tells the stories, it is always "those other people" who are involved. By all the evidence, pro football's glass houses enjoyed 100% occupancy this winter.

Asked how he would get the goods on claim-jumpers, he said, "I expect I would get help from the colleges."

He will, of course, but he could get even more help from the American League if he chose to listen.

Plumping for the sanctity of motherhood, pumpkin pie, and amateur purity, the National League made an exception of red-shirts—scholars who are held out of competition as sophomores, juniors, or seniors so they may play as fifth-year students.

There will be no punitive action against a team that signs a red-shirt who feels the college is underpaying him and wants to jump to the pros.

This won't satisfy the educators, who wish to keep their chicks in the brooder as long as the chicks are eligible for the team, but at the prices they pay the colleges can't have everything their way.

They are now assured that the bidding, the conniving, the corruption of the young, will not start until after the bowl games Jan. 1. It is a famous victory.

RACING ROUNDUP

Primordial Nabs Widener Feature

By Associated Press

Primordial 2nd put on a great stretch run, then survived a claim of foul in winning the $135,600 Widener Handicap Saturday at Hialeah before the Florida racing season's biggest crowd, 31,587.

Hot Dust was second, half length behind the winner, and Your Alibhai was third. Tibaldo finished fourth in the 12-horse field.

Going Abroad, the 8-5 favorite as an entry with Valiant Man, was fifth, followed by Point du Jour, Chateaugay, Knightly Manner, Purser, Sunstruck, Valiant Man and Piave.

Jockey Larry Adams on Your Alibhai claimed Primordial 2nd, under Sandino Hernandez, interfered with his horse at the head of the stretch, but the claim was not allowed.

Primordial 2nd, one of three Argentine horses in the race, paid $20.80, $12.20 and $8.20.

AMASTAR was declared the winner of the $25,000-added Bowie Handicap after stewards disqualified first-place finisher Bonny Johnny for interference.

Bonny Johnny outran Amastar by 1¼ lengths in the seven-furlong sprint but was set down for bothering Terminator, who finished third.

Amastar, ridden by Jimmy Johnson, was moved up to first, returning $9, $5.20 and $3.40. Terminator, awarded the place, paid $4.20 and $2.80 while Bonny Johnny, dropped to third, returned $4.20.

Bonny Johnny, who covered the distance in the good time of 1:23 4-5, lugged in sharply leaving the eighth pole and stopped Terminator in his tracks. Amastar had given way to Bonny Johnny at the 70-yard pole and was soundly beaten.

The disqualification gave the winner's share of $19,142 to Amastar. Bonny Johnny collected $2,945 for owner Richard S. Reynolds.

L.B. Kickers Finish League Play Today

Although the Long Beach Soccer Club is out of the race for the Pacific Soccer League title fight, the Kickers can salvage some consolation when the team faces Lynwood's Dons today at 2:30 p.m. on the Bell Gardens field.

Manager Herb Rogers' team rounds out play in the league with this encounter and can finish in third place with a win. The Kickers defeated Lynwood in their last meeting.

THE KEY TO VICTORY
Cedar Key (3) does not appear to be winner in this photo but a stride later at finish line he won by nose in $57,500 San Luis Rey Handicap at Santa Anita Saturday over the apparent winner, Or Et Argent.

Cedar Key in Narrow Triumph

brilliant ride by Ycaza he still was able to win although spotting his nearest rival nine pounds.

Ramant, with 110 pounds, set the early pace in the race, taking the lead on the infield course.

For most of the race Cedar Key was in the middle of the pack and hugging the rail to save ground. For the first mile Desert Chief III, from New Zealand, forced Ramant's pace with Or Et Argent next and Polizonte close to the leaders.

* * * *

YCAZA brought Cedar Key to the outside on the second infield turn to make sure he had running room. At that point, Or Et Argent took over the lead with Polizonte second and Cedar Key sixth.

Turning into the stretch, Cedar Key came to the outside for room and then cut to the inside again as Ycaza saw a hole. It was a long drive for the ultimate winner, but under a whip ride he steadily closed on the leaders and just caught them at the wire.

The victory was worth $35,000 to owner Jerry Basta who had the good fortune to claim Cedar Key for $9,500 two years ago. Last year the gelding won $183,389 for Basta as he was campaigned almost exclusively on the grass.

In addition to the San Juan Capistrano division he won the Bowling Green and McComber handicaps in New York and was in the money in numerous other rich turf stakes.

Red Smith's Views of Sports—

NFL's Signing Rule Spoils All the Fun

The men who own the National Football League are—it seems hardly necessary to say—sportsmen and scholars of towering rectitude and probity, trustworthy, loyal, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

So completely do they trust one another that they have armed their house mother, Pete Rozelle, with a large revolver to keep them from temptation.

It goes without saying that no member of this distinguished company would even consider violating his promise to leave college boys undebauched as long as they are eligible to run interference for alma mater.

Still, just in case, the brothers have empowered Rozelle to flog transgressors by depriving an offending team of its draft rights for as long as two years.

When they took this action in their league meeting in Palm Desert, they did not mean to imply that any of them had sinned in the past.

No such implication should be read into the new ruling, for the fact is they have always deplored the premature hiring of amateur players and have indulged in it only when:

(a) Competition from a rival group like the late All-American Conference, the Canadian League or the American League made it seem advisable to rope, tie, and brand attractive livestock before somebody else got there, or (b) there was no competition but they needed the practice.

During this winter's frantic bidding for biochemistry majors who can throw out of the pocket, the favorite pastime in both leagues was telling tales of dark deeds and nefarious schemes perpetrated in "that other league."

Even when the source was considered and allowance made, some of these yarns were entertaining.

There was the case of two muscular scholars who were flown to a city or removed from the campus on the eve of one league's draft meeting. Only one was sought by a team in that league, but he was allowed to bring a teammate and pal along for company.

They were entertained in a fashion not usually recommended by the team trainer, or by the clergy, for that matter. Along about 4 a.m. when the party was over and the lads had retired, there was a knock on the door of their motel room. Two strangers entered.

Identifying himself as a representative of a certain professional team, one of the visitors produced a contract and ballpoint pen and demanded a signature on the spot.

He promised that if the boy refused to sign, no team in his league would draft him on the morrow. Full of vague fears about being "blacklisted," the kid scrawled his name. A few hours later he was drafted by the team named on the contract.

That story has a small sequel. Back on the campus, the boy discovered that a teammate was getting a bonus from the other league three times bigger than the figure on his contract. He told his story to a lawyer, and his own bonus was substantially increased. To insure his silence, perhaps?

This was only one case, not necessarily unique. All winter long, similar cloak-and-dagger tales are told about boys being spirited into hiding and kept incommunicado until negotiations were concluded, about blandishments offered and curious tactics employed.

Naturally, no matter who tells the stories, it is always "those other people" who are involved. By all the evidence, pro football's glass houses enjoyed 100% occupancy this winter.

Asked how he would get the goods on claim-jumpers, he said, "I expect I would get help from the colleges."

He will, of course, but he could get even more help from the American League if he chose to listen.

Plumping for the sanctity of motherhood, pumpkin pie, and amateur purity, the National League made an exception of red-shirts—scholars who are held out of competition as sophomores, juniors, or seniors so they may play as fifth-year students.

There will be no punitive action against a team that signs a red-shirt who feels the college is underpaying him and wants to jump to the pros.

This won't satisfy the educators, who wish to keep their chicks in the brooder as long as the chicks are eligible for the team, but at the prices they pay the colleges can't have everything their way.

They are now assured that the bidding, the conniving, the corruption of the young, will not start until after the bowl games Jan. 1. It is a famous victory.

RACING ROUNDUP

Primordial Nabs Widener Feature

By Associated Press

Primordial 2nd put on a great stretch run, then survived a claim of foul in winning the $135,600 Widener Handicap Saturday at Hialeah before the Florida racing season's biggest crowd, 31,587.

Hot Dust was second, half length behind the winner, and Your Alibhai was third. Tibaldo finished fourth in the 12-horse field.

Going Abroad, the 8-5 favorite as an entry with Valiant Man, was fifth, followed by Point du Jour, Chateaugay, Knightly Manner, Purser, Sunstruck, Valiant Man and Piave.

Jockey Larry Adams on Your Alibhai claimed Primordial 2nd, under Sandino Hernandez, interfered with his horse at the head of the stretch, but the claim was not allowed.

Primordial 2nd, one of three Argentine horses in the race, paid $20.80, $12.20 and $8.20.

AMASTAR was declared the winner of the $25,000-added Bowie Handicap after stewards disqualified first-place finisher Bonny Johnny for interference.

Bonny Johnny outran Amastar by 1¼ lengths in the seven-furlong sprint but was set down for bothering Terminator, who finished third.

Amastar, ridden by Jimmy Johnson, was moved up to first, returning $9, $5.20 and $3.40. Terminator, awarded the place, paid $4.20 and $2.80 while Bonny Johnny, dropped to third, returned $4.20.

Bonny Johnny, who covered the distance in the good time of 1:23 4-5, lugged in sharply leaving the eighth pole and stopped Terminator in his tracks. Amastar had given way to Bonny Johnny at the 70-yard pole and was soundly beaten.

The disqualification gave the winner's share of $19,142 to Amastar. Bonny Johnny collected $2,945 for owner Richard S. Reynolds.

L.B. Kickers Finish League Play Today

Although the Long Beach Soccer Club is out of the race for the Pacific Soccer League title fight, the Kickers can salvage some consolation when the team faces Lynwood's Dons today at 2:30 p.m. on the Bell Gardens field.

Manager Herb Rogers' team rounds out play in the league with this encounter and can finish in third place with a win. The Kickers defeated Lynwood in their last meeting.

Fishing Headlines From Pinas Bay

There are some mighty records being set at Pinas Bay, Panama, which is rapidly becoming the talk of big-game fishermen throughout this and other countries. Club de Pesca de Panama is the resort that a Dallas millionaire hacked out of jungle country to make it one of the most astounding places in the Americas.

Here are some of the recent bulletins from Pinas Bay:

For the period from Jan. 8 through Jan. 31 Club de Pesca guests landed, or officially released 118 black marlin. On Jan. 10 Barney Greathouse, Midland, Tex., tied the club record with a sailfish that weighed 170 pounds. Nancy Smith, Dallas, got a 245-pound black marlin on 20-pound-test line to set a new IGFA record for women (Jan. 11).

Fourteen black marlin were landed for a new one-day record. Tom Moore, a neophyte angler from Illinois, caught five blacks in one day for another club record. Mary Sue Farenthold, Corpus Christi, Tex., caught a 78-pound red snapper for a club record.

On Jan. 25 the club's guests boated nine blacks and then on the next day landed 12.

The Long Beach Yacht Club Anglers had a meeting Wednesday night and showed the second Pinas Bay movie, much of it in slow motion. Good and interesting!

LEGISLATIVE ANALYST A. ALAN POST thinks the Wildlife Conservation Board is getting too much money, and he wants the legislature to repeal the law which gives the board $750,000 in horse-racing funds each year.

This is just another case of a politician striking the conservationists in the back. The WCB for 17 years has been constructing projects to aid fish and wildlife and to enhance public fishing and hunting.

Post thinks that the WCB is ordering little petty local jobs that do good for only 2.4 million of California's great population. Of course, he is pointing his finger at the fishermen and hunters. It makes one wonder if he is silly enough to think that access roads into areas heretofore inaccessible take care only of fishermen and hunters.

There are campers, millions of them, who go to such areas and never dream of fishing and hunting. There are boaters who fish, but there are many others who do not and they use the facilitites provided by WCB funds.

Post goes on to say that the $5 million set aside from last November's $150 million should be adequate to meet WCB needs. That money, by the way, is for larger projects such as hatcheries and the like. What does the WCB do when it is gone. The $750,000 from horse-racing funds is not costing taxpayers anything and it should stay with the WCB and not go to the state's General Fund, as Post suggests.

A COMPREHENSIVE REPORT on the California Water Plan will be given by J. J. Doody, southern district engineer for the Department of Water Resources when he speaks to the Southern Council of Conservation Clubs at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Mobil Oil Building, 612 S. Flower St., Los Angeles.

All sportsmen will be welcome at the meeting, regardless of whether they are affiliated with the SCCC, says Bill Lowery, president.

If you have a suggestion on the 1965-66 hunting seasons and wish to present it to the Fish and Game Commission, you'd better get busy with pen or pencil and paper. The FGC will meet in Los Angeles April 2 to hear recommendations. Usually the DFG makes the recommendations, but any individual is entitled to be heard.

The commissioners will meet in Redding April 23 to make a tentative selection of the rules and regulations, then will adopt those at its Sacramento meeting May 28.

The U.S. Coast Guard has announced the establishment of a mobile boarding unit at Parker Dam, with Chief Chuck Bandel in charge. It will have jurisdiction of the Colorado River from Davis Dam to the Mexican border, about 250 miles. Chief Bandel, a 17-year veteran of the USCG, was in charge of a Coast Guard tug in Long Beach-Los Angeles Harbor prior to his new assignment.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Watch for the largest run-off from the Kern River watershed in history for April through July this year. Snow surveys from 20 stations indicate a runoff of 115% of normal. That's good news for the Kern River Valley and Lake Isabella. Not only is the snow pack heavy, but the water content is nearly double that of a year ago.

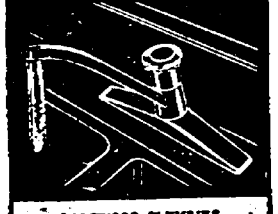

William P. Elser, vice president of the California Fish and Game Commission and a resident of San Diego, has been named Sportsman of the Year by the San Diego County Fish and Game Association. Frank Gibson, chairman of the San Diego County Board of Supervisors, presented a plaque to Elser for his work in getting the Ocean Beach public fishing pier and for his work with Ducks Unlimited.

Mel McCullough, P. O. Box 423, South Gate, Calif., has been a writer, a public relations man and has followed several other trades. Now Mel is in the travel business, packaging weekly trips to Bahia de Los Angeles for 12 sportsmen each trip.

At that Baja California resort, the men are met by "Papa" Diaz and taken to the 85-foot boat, San Augustin II, for a five-day trip that embraces some of the best fishing in the Gulf of California. Anglers will fish both from the San Augustin or outboard skiffs, with three men to each small boat. For further information, write Mel McCullough.

Rockets Go for Title at Montebello

By CHUCK MEDICK

The championship of hte Southern California Winter Baseball League will be on the line today when the Long Beach Rockets meet the Montebello Red Sox at Montebello City Park at 1:30.

The park is located on Tyler Avenue between Olympic and Whittier Blvds. in Montebello.

It won't be an easy assignment for Jack Graham's Rockets, who find themselves walking into the proverbial "lion's den." The Sox haven't lost at home in their last 15 games. This year they boast a 12-0 record.

* * * *

THE ROCKETS however, have dropped only one game on the year, and that one due to three errors in one inning. The best-of-three series moves back to Blair Field next Sunday, with a third game, if necessary, scheduled for March 7. The site of that game would be determined by the flip of a coin.

Rick Fenton's Red Sox are ready. Pitcher Ron Cottage, backed by the hitting of third baseman Rod O'Brien and centerfield George Pena, are enough to give grey hairs to the most avid Rocket booster.

HOW ABOUT GAIL THE FRAIL?

What's In a Name? . . . A Star

NEW YORK (AP) — The Man with the Golden Arm, Dave the Rave, Clem the Gem, West the Best.

Maybe the Madison Ave. advertising boys are handing out hints, but those are some of the colorful nicknames for college basketball players.

A. W. Davis of Tennessee is The Man with the Golden Arm.

Dave Stallworth, the Wichita all-America, is Dave the Rave.

Clem Haskins, a soph at Western Kentucky, is Clem the Gem.

And West the Best refers to Westley Unseld, a freshman at Louisville who is tagged as a star next season when he moves up to the Cardinal varsity.

There's a takeoff on Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside of the Glenn Davis-Doc Blanchard football era at Army. Leon Clark is the basketball Mr. Inside and Flynn Robinson the Mr. Outside, both of Wyoming.

Davis, a senior who has sparked Tennessee into the thick of contention for the Southeastern Conference championship, gained his sobriquet in his sophomore season. Publicity blurbs also term him the "24-karat Vol dandy."

Stallworth starred three seasons for Wichita until his graduation a few weeks ago at mid-term. Haskins has kept Western Kentucky in contention for the Ohio Valley Conference crown. Nicknames may become as famous as the Big O for Oscar Robertson and Wilt the Stilt for Wilt Chamberlain when they played college ball for Cincinnati and Kansas, respectively.

What do they call some of the other college stars this season?

Just plain old Bill Bradley of Princeton, Cazzie Russell of Michigan, Gail Goodrich of UCLA, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Clyde Lee of Vanderbilt and Rick Barry of Miami, Fla.

MIDGET WRESTLERS APPEAR

One of the curiosities of sport, midget wrestlers, are billed into the Long Beach Auditorium this week in a special attraction in support of the Pedro Morales vs. Karl Von Stroheim main event.

Tiny Tim and The Jamaica Kid will battle Sky Loo Loo and Irish Jackie in a one-hour match. Two preliminaries also are on the card.

Olympic Films at LBSC

Films of the 1964 Olympic Games will be shown Thursday and Friday at Long Beach State College.

Thursday and Friday at noon the program will be held in the campus Little Theater.

Admission fees are 25 cents for 14-year-olds and under, 50 cents for high school students and $1 for adults. Proceeds will aid in the operation of the Long Beach Comets girls track team and the March 6 Long Beach Relays.

THE ROCKETS however, have dropped only one game on the year, and that one due to three errors in one inning. The best-of-three series moves back to Blair Field next Sunday, with a third game, if necessary, scheduled for March 7. The site of that game would be determined by the flip of a coin.

Rick Fenton's Red Sox are ready. Pitcher Ron Cottage, backed by the hitting of third baseman Rod O'Brien and centerfield George Pena, are enough to give grey hairs to the most avid Rocket booster.

HOW ABOUT GAIL THE FRAIL?

What's In a Name? . . . A Star

NEW YORK (AP) — The Man with the Golden Arm, Dave the Rave, Clem the Gem, West the Best.

Maybe the Madison Ave. advertising boys are handing out hints, but those are some of the colorful nicknames for college basketball players.

A. W. Davis of Tennessee is The Man with the Golden Arm.

Dave Stallworth, the Wichita all-America, is Dave the Rave.

Clem Haskins, a soph at Western Kentucky, is Clem the Gem.

And West the Best refers to Westley Unseld, a freshman at Louisville who is tagged as a star next season when he moves up to the Cardinal varsity.

There's a takeoff on Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside of the Glenn Davis-Doc Blanchard football era at Army. Leon Clark is the basketball Mr. Inside and Flynn Robinson the Mr. Outside, both of Wyoming.

Davis, a senior who has sparked Tennessee into the thick of contention for the Southeastern Conference championship, gained his sobriquet in his sophomore season. Publicity blurbs also term him the "24-karat Vol dandy."

Stallworth starred three seasons for Wichita until his graduation a few weeks ago at mid-term. Haskins has kept Western Kentucky in contention for the Ohio Valley Conference crown. Nicknames may become as famous as the Big O for Oscar Robertson and Wilt the Stilt for Wilt Chamberlain when they played college ball for Cincinnati and Kansas, respectively.

What do they call some of the other college stars this season?

Just plain old Bill Bradley of Princeton, Cazzie Russell of Michigan, Gail Goodrich of UCLA, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Clyde Lee of Vanderbilt and Rick Barry of Miami, Fla.

MIDGET WRESTLERS APPEAR

One of the curiosities of sport, midget wrestlers, are billed into the Long Beach Auditorium this week in a special attraction in support of the Pedro Morales vs. Karl Von Stroheim main event.

Tiny Tim and The Jamaica Kid will battle Sky Loo Loo and Irish Jackie in a one-hour match. Two preliminaries also are on the card.

Olympic Films at LBSC

Films of the 1964 Olympic Games will be shown Thursday and Friday at Long Beach State College.

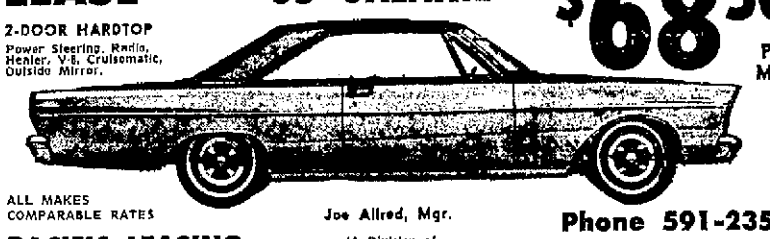

Thursday and Friday at noon the program will be held in the campus Little Theater.

Admission fees are 25 cents for 14-year-olds and under, 50 cents for high school students and $1 for adults. Proceeds will aid in the operation of the Long Beach Comets girls track team and the March 6 Long Beach Relays.

HISTORIC RESORT SITE VISITED

MG-B Tours Gilman Resort

By BILL EMERY

Less than two hours drive from Long Beach in the foothills of the romantic San Jacinto mountains, the Massacre Canyon Inn graces an historic Indian site with jet-age accommodations.

To visit this hidden haven, we borrowed the latest version of the popular MG-B sports car from Jamestown at 1350 Long Beach Blvd. and set a course for a fun week end that started on a route through Riverside and returned through Elsinore and Highway 101.

From Riverside take Highway 60 halfway to Beaumont then South on 79 and the Massacre Canyon Inn is the new addition to the famed Gilman Hot Springs.

Here you will find one of the most complete resorts for entertainment, recreation and health spa facilities in California . . . and plans are on the drawing board for additional modern accommodations to grace the 27-hole golf course plus a landing strip for the convenience of flying enthusiasts.

Rooms, cottages, and suites are priced from $7 to $20 and guests can play golf, swim or go horseback riding, then ease their tired muscles in a mineral bath, steam or blanket sweat or the whirlpool bath.

Since most of the guests go in for one or more of the many activities, the Inn features a generous menu of steaks, chops, seafoods and even a Cantonese dinner, plus, such specialty cuisine as shish kebab, cornish hen and beef stroganoff... all prepared in gourmet tradition at prices that read more like a luncheon menu rather than a dinner menu.

Evenings are relaxing around the fire pit in the lounge... listening to music nightly at the piano bar or dancing weekends to the orchestra. And, if you prefer, each room has free TV.

Anxious to try the new MG-B on a winding road, we took a side trip up San Jacinto mountain in the snow-covered area of Idyllwild. One of the improvements on this model is a five-bearing cankshaft for a smoother drive. Another is the factory optional double-laminated removable hardtop which turns the roadster into a sedan for an additional $235. Visibility is actually better than with the convertible top up, and road noise is reduced to a minimum. It's like having two different cars.

The British Motor Corporation has come a long way in putting comfort into their fun cars. Besides having more power, more accelration, more brisk performance through the four gears, the MG-B has more room, more superior ride and softer seats.

Little refinements like a sizeable built-in ashtray convenient for driver and passenger, a longer wheelbase and wide track make this a sports car . . . tailored for Southern California street drivers or rallye buffs. The real fun is driving a mountain road like Highway 74 from Idyllwild to San Juan Capistrano. The little "B" handles like a charm on corners, hills or straightaways, and gets better than 23 miles-per-gallon.

Former Long Beach Hotelman Dick Immel, manager of the Massacre Canyon Inn, told us the name is derived from an all-out Indian massacre that took place a short distance from Gilman Hot Springs.

One tribe was completely wiped out by another following several years of drought which brought about a severe scarcity of chia, a sage plant which produced seeds which the Indians used for food.

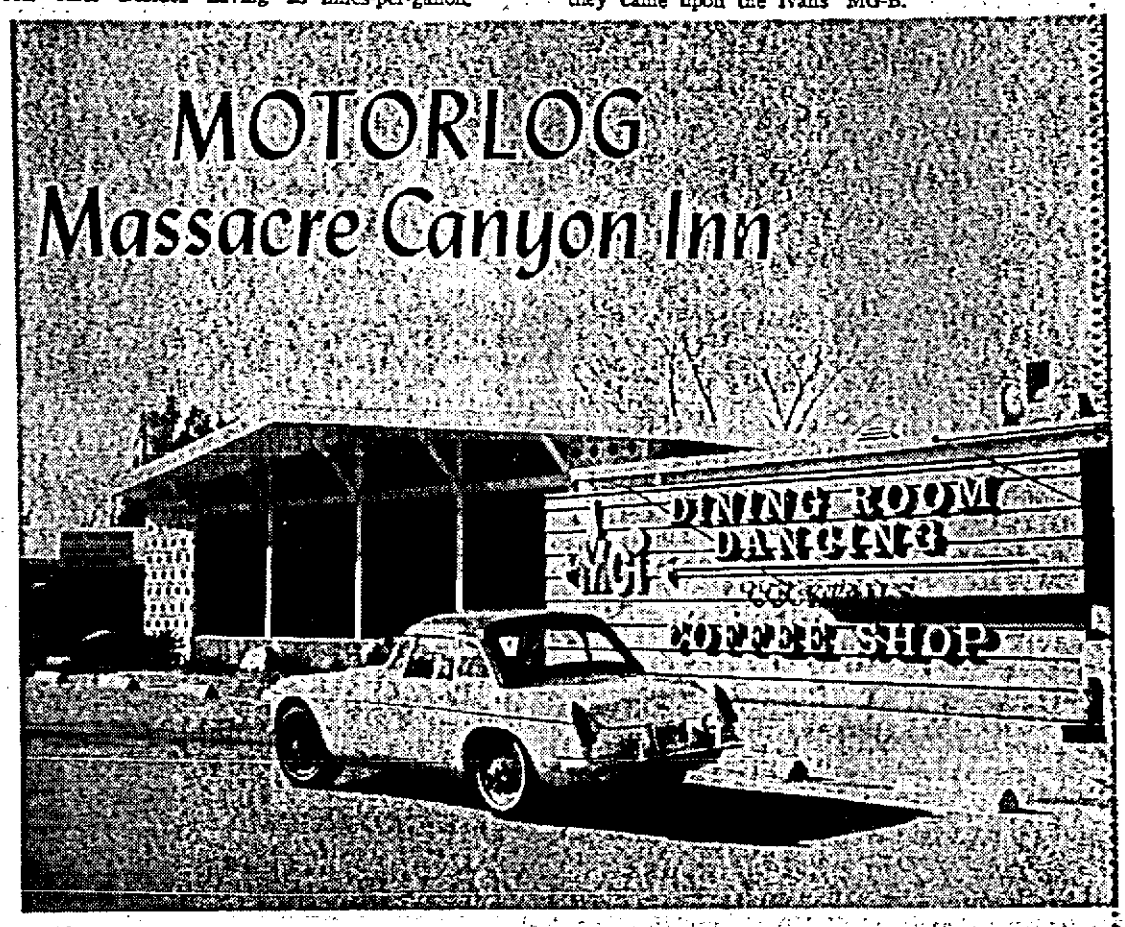

The Temeculas, a more warlike tribe from the desert, felt the shortage first. In their quest for survival, they came upon the Ivahs men, women and children on a plateau above a bend in this canyon gathering the chia. Below, the canyon walls dropped a sheer several hundred feet.

Trapped without weapons and hopelessly outnumbered, the battle ended shortly. The very few who escaped existed until their span was run.

Looking up the mountain side today, little has changed since the days of the Indians, but the valley reflects 20th century man and his jet-age activities.

It's a wonderful place to spend your leisure and to get the most fun driving an MG-B.

Long Beach to 'Do Well' Should Earthquake Hit

Disaster Reaction Long Mapped Out

By MARK CLUTTER

It has happened. And it will happen again.

Maybe this year. Maybe not in 100 years. Maybe today. Maybe while you are reading this article.

The good earth, which seems so solid and eternal, shudders. The works of man fall down. The dead and the wounded lie in the wreckage. Most of California stands above one of the world's great faults, which means that earthquakes are inevitable.

How will Long Beach react when that bad day comes?

"Very well," says Roland R. Bach, manager of the Long Beach chapter of the American Red Cross.

Long Beach will do "very well" because it has never forgotten the lessons taught by the earthquake of 1933. Again and again, for 31 years, those in authority have been making plans for that bad day which can happen at any minute.

ROLAND R. BACH
"Do Very Well"

Bach outlined what will happen if Long Beach were hit by an earthquake.

The spearhead of the shock troops will spring into immediate action. Police and firemen first of all will roar to the scene of greatest devastation. Off-duty men will rush to their stations for assignment.

"And don't forget the ham operators," Bach said. "They are shock troops too. Communications can break down, but radio can take over."

• • • •

MINUTES BEHIND THE spearhead of the shock troops will come the Red Cross, Civil Defense and the military.

"We are very fortunate here," Bach said. "The relationship of the Red Cross, Civil Defense, the military, and the municipal government is very good. That isn't true in all cities."

Long Beach is especially fortunate in having so many military units here and near here, Bach pointed out. The National Guard, the Navy, the Coast Guard, the Marines, the Air Force and the Army can be called into action as needed. All of them have the training and discipline to deal with disaster.

In addition, all the relief resources of this populous area will move to the point of disaster. If Long Beach is hit, the Red Cross of 100 cities would make their aid available.

• • • •

PROBABLY THE NATIONAL GUARD will be first in action. The Red Cross would not be far behind. Red Cross headquarters at 319 W. Broadway has a dozen emergency telephones. If the building is no longer standing, there are emergency telephones in the basement of the Public Safety Building.

"There is a division of responsibility," Bach said. "The government—all the governmental agencies—are primarily concerned with the protection of people and property. The Red Cross is concerned with food, clothing, shelter, medical care, information and assistance with rehabilitation."

The city manaegr is the general in command, at least during the first hours of disaster. If he should be dead, there is a chain of command.

The Red Cross has authority, under federal law, to take strong action. It can, for example, evacuate hospitals of patients who can be moved. It can evacuate hotels, motels, homes and other buildings for the care of patients. It can requisition anything it needs.

• • • •

"YOU MUST UNDERSTAND that all these services are paid for," Bach said, "but we do have the authority to get whatever is needed in the emergency."

The first problem in a major disaster is to provide for the immediate needs of people. First aid comes first. Then there is the problem of feeding masses of people. If restaurants are still in operation, meal tickets are provided. Otherwise, soup kitchens are set up.

Communication is of immediate importance. Control centers are set up. There is a problem of reuniting families, if possible.

"We try to get families into the same place as soon as possible," Bach said. "Sometimes the Red Cross must bear bad news. We never attempt to identify the dead, but when they have been officially identified, we must deliver the facts."

• • • •

MANY AGENCIES, PUBLIC and private, are involved in the over-all disaster plan. Public utilities, food warehouses, transportation of all kinds, military units and other things can be requisitioned. The Navy is committed to deliver blankets.

Some of the needs of people in a disaster seem mildly funny—unless one is a victim. For example, there is always a shortage of diapers.

After the first traumatic shock has passed, the Red Cross tackles the huge task of rehabilitation.

"The Red Cross is not an insurance agency," Bach said. "We don't compensate for loss. Rather, we give according to need. If a man losses the tools he needs to earn a living, we supply them. If medical care is needed, we supply it. Whatever is needed, we supply. For example, there was the little girl who lost a leg. The Red Cross bought her four artificial legs before she quit growing.

• • • •

"THE RED CROSS NEVER gives loans. Everything we do for people is an outright grant."

The people of Long Beach are admirably qualified to meet disaster. "At least two out of 10 persons know how to give first aid," Bach said. "This is due to the educational program of this chapter and the instructions given in the schools."

Bach gave some advice on how to meet a disaster. "I think the most important thing to do is for families to sit down and discuss what they should do. It is always wise to make plans for what may happen and to be emotionally prepared."

In the event of an earthquake, one should not rush outdoors. Many of the casualties of the 1933 earthquake were caused by walls or roofs collapsing on fleeing people. It is wisest to throw oneself on the floor against a wall. Falling beams form a triangle of safety. The center of the room is very dangerous.

After the shock, it is safest to be in an open place, away from houses and trees.

"In most instances, people shouldn't go very far from home," Bach said. "That only adds to the con-

COMMUNICATION being one of the keys to successful living in our complex world, it occurs to me that this quiet Sunday morning might be a good time for some observation on the techniques and personality quirks of people who use telephones.

My phone must be one of the busiest in town and from my experiences on the line I've classified some of my telephone communicants, beginning with:

THE GROUCH — This fellow's "hello" says that he knows this is going to prove a completely useless call, an imposition on a busy man engaged in important things. He almost scares you off the line.

THE OPTIMIST — This fellow's cheery hello to your call simply grips with expectation of exciting and interesting things to come. It's a great way to do it, but if your message is routine, or perhaps unpleasant, you're reluctant to disappoint him.

THE YESSER — This is usually a woman. She simply picks up the phone and says yes. It's a little abrupt and sometimes a bit sharp, but it's a lot better than saying no. Some people who call me seem to be obsessed with yes, I answer hello and they say yes. This hello-yes business can go on for quite a while before we get the conversation going.

THE TIMID ONE — This person gets you on the line and then seems scared that he's done it. He (or she) apologizes and needs a lot of encouragement to go ahead.

THE BACKGROUNDER — This caller insists on laying an elaborate groundwork for the point of his message. He can make it so elaborate you are either bored sick or mad with impatience and in no mood to give proper attention when he finally gets to it.

THE REPEATER — This conversationalist is usually oiled with a little alcohol. The worst kind, perhaps, is the woman who drinks alone at home and decides to unburden herself to somebody. Unfortunately, that somebody is sometimes I.

THE ARGUER—This caller often starts with a question, and doesn't wait for you to answer it. Even if you agree with his or her contentions, you can't get off the hook. He just won't take assent for an answer. He expected a fight and he's going to get one.

THE MYSTERY MAN — This one talks vaguely, sometimes in tongues, and insists you know what he's talking about, although you probably haven't the slightest idea. If you say you don't, he claims you're being coy.

• • • •

THESE, of course, are offbeat classifications. Most calls, of course, produce normal conversations that are informative and helpful — and even some of the oddball ones can be that, too. There are enough of the unique ones to make telephoning an interesting and amusing experience, even if it sometimes is a little exasperating.

Some of the people who call me might be able to produce some descriptions of the experience that wouldn't be altogether flattering to me. I've got my quirks.

I might add that people who are interested in good "public relations" for themselves might do well to attempt an evaluation of their own telephone personalities. It's a contact with others than can be harmful or beneficial according to the way one handles it.

One final classification:

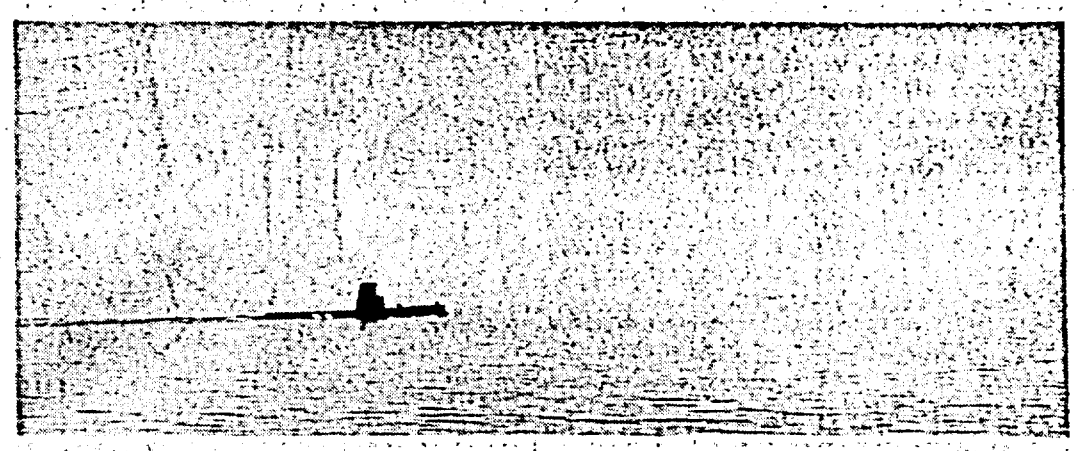

THE NON-TERMINATOR —Some people have a heckuva time ending a telephone conversation. They've made their point, imparted their information, obviously want to call it quits, but can't seem to accomplish it.

I guess I've made my point and imparted my message and it's time to terminate this column. Call me up, any old time. At the office, please.

"Down periscope," the submarine captain ordered—with a smile.

Lt. Cmdr. Ted Wilson, captain of the USS Bashaw had reason to be pleased.

His boat was going to "kill" an "enemy" destroyer escort.

His crisp orders maneuvered the craft silently and the crew worked with precision in the dimly lit conning tower carrying out the orders. The torpedo room was standing by.

"Up periscope." As the steel shaft peeked out Capt. Wilson fixed the range and ordered: "Fire six. We'll have a hit."

A torpedo spun out. Eleven seconds later the USS Marsh was "dead."

This was not real, because the torpedo passed 60 feet under the Marsh's keel — programmed to do so.

Reservists aboard were impressed.

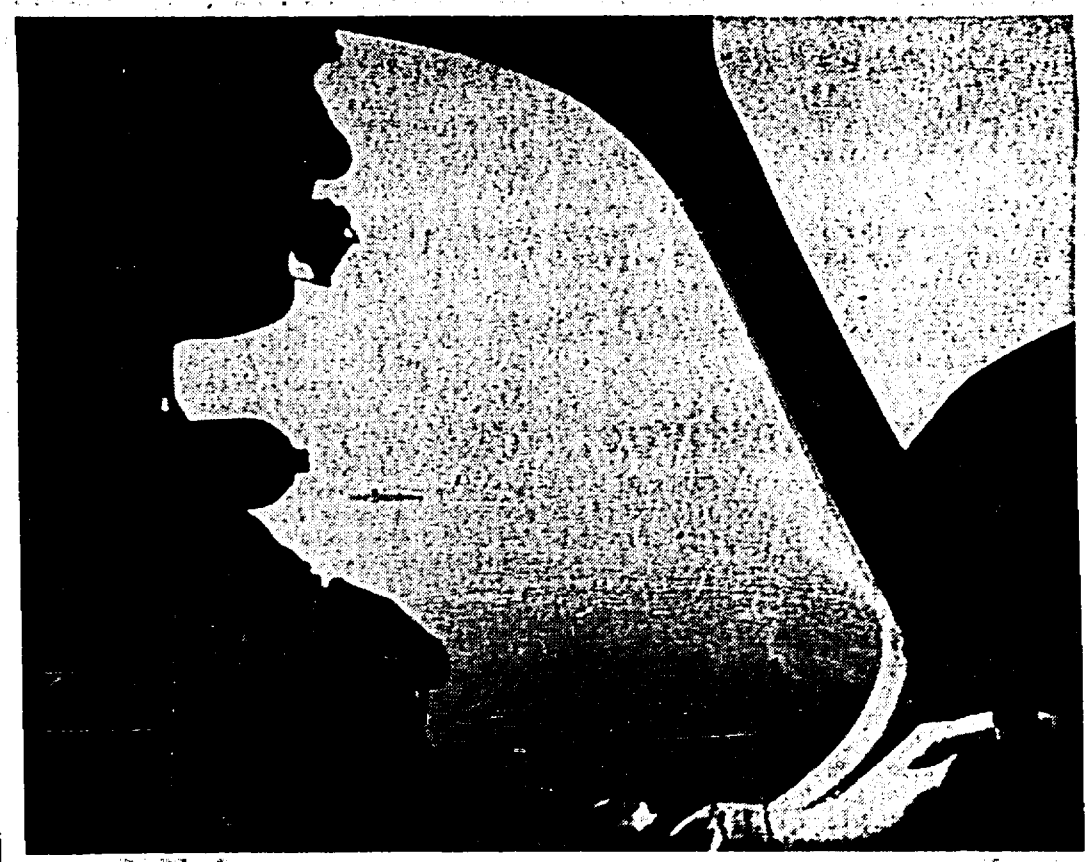

Reservists aboard the Marsh were impressed, too, but in another way when officers discovered they were "dead."

This ocean-going chess game is part of an oft-repeated antisubmarine warfare exercise of the Long Beach Naval Reserve on the DEs Vammen and Marsh and San Diegans on the Bashaw.

The game took place between Laguna Beach and Corona Del Mar, 20 miles offshore.

"Some Aspects of Medicare" will be the subject discussed by Dr. Philip F. Voight of Long Beach, before members and their guests of the Long Beach Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars at the monthly dinner at Allen Center (US Naval Station) next Thursday evening.

Dr. Voight is a former president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association and, currently, a member of the Board of Trustees.

In World War II, as a major and flight surgeon, he participated in the evacuation of 200,000 casualties from the European theater of operations as a member of the 807 Medical Evacuation Squadron. He was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service. RAdm. Wayne M. Garnet, USN Ret., chapter commander, will preside at the dinner and program.

Work Furlough Project for Prisoners a Success

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The county's Work Furlough Program, in which prisoners are released from jail to perform their regular jobs and confined during non-working hours, appears to be a success.

Chief Probation Officer Leland [illegible] said the end of the six-month trial period indicates the program is "operationally feasible and economically advantageous to Los Angeles County."

County supervisors will be asked Tuesday to extend the program another six months on a trial basis to verify the current evaluations.

• • • •

THE WORK Furlough Program was authorized in California in 1957 by the state legislature. County supervisors approved the pilot program last July 6, and the first furlough was assigned Aug. 6.

As of Dec. 31, Carter reported, 77 prisoners had entered the program. Thirty-three completed their sentences, three were removed by the court for infractions of program regulations, and one escaped.

Except for one arrest for intoxication, no offenses were committed by prisoners during their absences from jail, Carter said.

• • • •

CARTER POINTED out that the basic advantages to the program are that a prisoner is able to keep his regular job and his family does not suffer. Money earned by the prisoner on furlough is distributed by the county officer in charge.

During the trial period, Carter said, the furlough prisoners earned $34,061 in take-home pay from their outside employment. Prisoners in the program are charged $4 per working day to offset costs of their custody. The county received $7,684 from this source during the period.

• • • •

ANOTHER $17,080 was distributed to dependents of the prisoners. Carter said it is estimated such payments saved from $14,500 to $21,000 in welfare costs, which the county otherwise would have had to pay to the dependants if the prisoner was forced to give up his job.

In addition, a total of $3,297 was distributed for personal or job expenses, payment on fines and restitutions, or was held in trust for the inmate until his release.

The only adverse figure during the trial period was the cost of the program to the sheriff's and probation departments, Carter said. These totaled $59,984 as compared to $27,446 which would have had to be paid if the same number of inmates had merely been committed to county jail.

The Red Cross has authority, under federal law, to take strong action. It can, for example, evacuate hospitals of patients who can be moved. It can evacuate hotels, motels, homes and other buildings for the care of patients. It can requisition anything it needs.

* * * *

"YOU MUST UNDERSTAND that all these services are paid for," Bach said, "but we do have the authority to get whatever is needed in the emergency."

The first problem in a major disaster is to provide for the immediate needs of people. First aid comes first. Then there is the problem of feeding masses of people. If restaurants are still in operation, meal tickets are provided. Otherwise, soup kitchens are set up.

Communication is of immediate importance. Control centers are set up. There is a problem of reuniting families, if possible.

"We try to get families into the same place as soon as possible," Bach said. "Sometimes the Red Cross must bear bad news. We never attempt to identify the dead, but when they have been officially identified, we must deliver the facts."

* * * *

MANY AGENCIES, PUBLIC and private, are involved in the over-all disaster plan. Public utilities, food warehouses, transportation of all kinds, military units and other things can be requisitioned. The Navy is committed to deliver blankets.

Some of the needs of people in a disaster seem mildly funny—unless one is a victim. For example, there is always a shortage of diapers.

After the first traumatic shock has passed, the Red Cross tackles the huge task of rehabilitation.

"The Red Cross is not an insurance agency," Bach said. "We don't compensate for loss. Rather, we give according to need. If a man losses the tools he needs to earn a living, we supply them. If medical care is needed, we supply it. Whatever is needed, we supply. For example, there was the little girl who lost a leg. The Red Cross bought her four artificial legs before she quit growing.

* * * *

"THE RED CROSS NEVER gives loans. Everything we do for people is an outright grant."

The people of Long Beach are admirably qualified to meet disaster. "At least two out of 10 persons know how to give first aid," Bach said. "This is due to the educational program of this chapter and the instructions given in the schools."

Bach gave some advice on how to meet a disaster. "I think the most important thing to do is for families to sit down and discuss what they should do. It is always wise to make plans for what may happen and to be emotionally prepared."

In the event of an earthquake, one should not rush outdoors. Many of the casualties of the 1933 earthquake were caused by walls or roofs collapsing on fleeing people. It is wisest to throw oneself on the floor against a wall. Falling beams form a triangle of safety. The center of the room is very dangerous.

After the shock, it is safest to be in an open place, away from houses and trees.

"In most instances, people shouldn't go very far from home," Bach said. "That only adds to the con-

COMMUNICATION being one of the keys to successful living in our complex world, it occurs to me that this quiet Sunday morning might be a good time for some observation on the techniques and personality quirks of people who use telephones.

My phone must be one of the busiest in town and from my experiences on the line I've classified some of my telephone communicants, beginning with:

THE GROUCH — This fellow's "hello" says that he knows this is going to prove a completely useless call, an imposition on a busy man engaged in important things. He almost scares you off the line.

THE OPTIMIST — This fellow's cheery hello to your call simply grips with expectation of exciting and interesting things to come. It's a great way to do it, but if your message is routine, or perhaps unpleasant, you're reluctant to disappoint him.

THE YESSER — This is usually a woman. She simply picks up the phone and says yes. It's a little abrupt and sometimes a bit sharp, but it's a lot better than saying no. Some people who call me seem to be obsessed with yes, I answer hello and they say yes. This hello-yes business can go on for quite a while before we get the conversation going.

THE TIMID ONE — This person gets you on the line and then seems scared that he's done it. He (or she) apologizes and needs a lot of encouragement to go ahead.

THE BACKGROUNDER — This caller insists on laying an elaborate groundwork for the point of his message. He can make it so elaborate you are either bored sick or mad with impatience and in no mood to give proper attention when he finally gets to it.

THE REPEATER — This conversationalist is usually oiled with a little alcohol. The worst kind, perhaps, is the woman who drinks alone at home and decides to unburden herself to somebody. Unfortunately, that somebody is sometimes I.

THE ARGUER—This caller often starts with a question, and doesn't wait for you to answer it. Even if you agree with his or her contentions, you can't get off the hook. He just won't take assent for an answer. He expected a fight and he's going to get one.

THE MYSTERY MAN — This one talks vaguely, sometimes in tongues, and insists you know what he's talking about, although you probably haven't the slightest idea. If you say you don't, he claims you're being coy.

* * * *

THESE, of course, are offbeat classifications. Most calls, of course, produce normal conversations that are informative and helpful — and even some of the oddball ones can be that, too. There are enough of the unique ones to make telephoning an interesting and amusing experience, even if it sometimes is a little exasperating.

Some of the people who call me might be able to produce some descriptions of the experience that wouldn't be altogether flattering to me. I've got my quirks.

I might add that people who are interested in good "public relations" for themselves might do well to attempt an evaluation of their own telephone personalities. It's a contact with others than can be harmful or beneficial according to the way one handles it.

One final classification:

THE NON-TERMINATOR —Some people have a heckuva time ending a telephone conversation. They've made their point, imparted their information, obviously want to call it quits, but can't seem to accomplish it.

I guess I've made my point and imparted my message and it's time to terminate this column. Call me up, any old time. At the office, please.

"Down periscope," the submarine captain ordered—with a smile.

Lt. Cmdr. Ted Wilson, captain of the USS Bashaw had reason to be pleased.

His boat was going to "kill" an "enemy" destroyer escort.

His crisp orders maneuvered the craft silently and the crew worked with precision in the dimly lit conning tower carrying out the orders. The torpedo room was standing by.

"Up periscope." As the steel shaft peeked out Capt. Wilson fixed the range and ordered: "Fire six. We'll have a hit."

A torpedo spun out. Eleven seconds later the USS Marsh was "dead."

This was not real, because the torpedo passed 60 feet under the Marsh's keel — programmed to do so.

Reservists aboard were impressed.

Reservists aboard the Marsh were impressed, too, but in another way when officers discovered they were "dead."

"Some Aspects of Medicare" will be the subject discussed by Dr. Philip F. Voight of Long Beach, before members and their guests of the Long Beach Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars at the monthly dinner at Allen Center (US Naval Station) next Thursday evening.

Dr. Voight is a former president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association and, currently, a member of the Board of Trustees.

In World War II, as a major and flight surgeon, he participated in the evacuation of 200,000 casualties from the European theater of operations as a member of the 807 Medical Evacuation Squadron. He was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service. RAdm. Wayne M. Gamet, USN Ret., chapter commander, will preside at the dinner and program.

Work Furlough Project for Prisoners a Success

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The county's Work Furlough Program, in which prisoners are released from jail to perform their regular jobs and confined during non-working hours, appears to be a success.

Chief Probation Officer Leland C. Carter said the end of the six-month trial period indicates the program is "operationally feasible and economically advantageous to Los Angeles County."

County supervisors will be asked Tuesday to extend the program another six months on a trial basis to verify the current evaluations.

* * * *

THE WORK Furlough Program was authorized in California in 1957 by the state legislature. County supervisors approved the pilot program last July 6, and the first furlough was assigned Aug. 6.

As of Dec. 31, Carter reported, 77 prisoners had entered the program. Thirty-three completed their sentences, three were removed by the court for infractions of program regulations, and one escaped.

Except for one arrest for intoxication, no offenses were committed by prisoners during their absences from jail, Carter said.

* * * *

CARTER POINTED out that the basic advantages to the program are that a prisoner is able to keep his regular job and his family does not suffer. Money earned by the prisoner on furlough is distributed by the county officer in charge.

During the trial period, Carter said, the furlough prisoners earned $34,061 in take-home pay from their outside employment. Prisoners in the program are charged $4 per working day to offset costs of their custody. The county received $7,684 from this source during the period.

ANOTHER $17,080 was distributed to dependents of the prisoners. Carter said it is estimated such payments saved from $14,500 to $21,000 in welfare costs, which the county otherwise would have had to pay to the dependants if the prisoner was forced to give up his job.

In addition, a total of $9,297 was distributed for personal or job expenses, payment on fines and restitutions, or was held in trust for the inmate until his release.

The only adverse figure during the trial period was the cost of the program to the sheriff's and probation departments, Carter said. These totaled $59,984 as compared to $27,446 which would have had to be paid if the same number of inmates had merely been committed to the county jail.

The Post Analysis

LEGISLATIVE Analyst Alan Post's analysis of Gov. Brown's "bare bones" budget serves the good purpose of encouraging and justifying a thorough-going legislative check of every phase of the Governor's proposed massive spending program.

This is not to suggest that all of Mr. Post's proposals for deep cuts in the budget should be adopted, but his report does provide, from a reasonable source, solid evidence that the budget is not really "bare bones" and that some trimming of fat may be in order.

This is not the routine "pot-shooting" at a budget from instinct or for partisan reasons. It is the product of cold analysis by a responsible public official hired by the Legislature to check the administration's fiscal policies.

Post has recommended slashes of $41 million in general and special fund appropriations and capital outlays. He has suggested other cuts that would bring a total reduction of $123,737,973. He contends that adoption of his recommended cuts could stall off for at least another year the imposition of new taxes.

Gov. Brown has made a strong selling effort in behalf of his budget. He believes in it and that is the proper thing for him to do. But it is also proper for the public and the Legislature to give the Governor's proposals the most searching scrutiny, recognizing that the strain on the taxpayers to support state government can reach a breaking point.

Legislative Analyst Post's report is most helpful in making the scrutiny meaningful and effective.

City Manager John R. Mansell in his speech to the congress summed it up this way: "Those who always harp on a yesterday that never was and a Utopia tomorrow that never will be have no place in our scheme. People who car get their job done today —the important day all of us have before us.

CALIFORNIANS, according to the California Poll's most recent opinion test, favor retention of the initiative process by which the people ballot on various measures.

Only 5% of those queried favored outright abandonment of this system; 31% favored some modification and 47% wanted things left as they are. Others had no opinion.

At every election, there is considerable outcry against the large number of measures on the ballot. People say they do not have time or means of studying these proposals in full, that they are confused by the pro and con campaigns, and that the ballot titles are often incomprehensible.

Yet the poll indicates they don't want to yield the right to participate in the direct legislative process.

We suggest that the rather substantial number who said they would favor some modification of the system represent those who have really given the matter serious thought. There could be modifications to correct some of the abuses and to hold down the number of measures on each ballot.

We think serious consideration should be given to constructive changes.

Congress, Not Press, Should Quiz on Sensitive Matters

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has come in for some caustic criticism lately from various newsmen because he hasn't conducted more press conferences. But much of the comment misses the point. For it is not the obligation of a President of the United States to perform his duties in such a way as to enlighten the press promptly on every subject of importance, even when a policy may be in the course of evolution and final conclusions may not have been reached.

LAWRENCE

The very discussion, however, of the relationship between the press and President Johnson emphasizes a serious omission in the whole American system of government. The Congress of the United States comprises the elected representatives of the people, and presumably it is their primary responsibility not only to keep informed on what the executive branch of the government is doing but openly to criticize policies and official actions.

One would assume from some of the criticisms expressed concerning the lack of the presidential press conferences that it is the function of the newspapermen to constitute an "opposition" and to cross-examine the Chief Executive. Some presidents have liked the idea, but others have felt they would be hindered in conducting some of the delicate negotiations that arise in foreign policy because the press demands answers to specific questions. If these are ignored, they are immediately reported to have undue significance.

Press conferences are worthwhile only when they are carefully planned. It should be the prerogative of the President to insist that all questions be submitted in advance so that he can give them proper consideration and not depend entirely on impromptu answers. Although press conferences are conducted on an open basis and interesting news about controversial subjects frequentlycomes out of them, the fact remains that the Congress of the United States ought to do the interrogating. Great Britain's "loyal opposition" prepares the questions in advance and submits them to the Prime Minister. If he refuses to answer, there may be a debate questioning his judgment. When he does answer, the opposition has a chance to make its comments in public.

If the leaders in both houses of Congress were to set up a system whereby the executive branch was regularly interrogated on the floor of the Senate and the House, the President could not very readily brush aside their questions. He would have to furnish a very persuasive explanation if he failed to respond. He could delegate to his own party leaders the task of reply or even appear in person if he felt so inclined.

The American people have obtained through many administrations in the past the news of what their government was doing even when the White House has been silent. Resourcefulness is an inherent characteristic of the reporter. His job is to inform the people. But it is not the obligation of the government to furnish news before conclusions have been reached and policies have been formed which are ready for announcement.

Prospects Fade for Local Option on Gambling Laws

Independent, Press-Telegram Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—The prospects are remote for any 1965 legislation allowing California cities to enact their own gambling laws.

That is the opinion of Assemblyman George Danielson, D-Los Angeles, who battled unsuccessfully last week to win committee approval for such a bill.

McCAULEY

In a split voice vote the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee voted to defer action on the Danielson proposal so it can consider as a whole package other proposals for curbing pre-emption of local power.

However, recent Sacramento sentiment has been in favor of making the state supreme over local jurisdictions.

Danielson said that if his bill is broadened to include other aspects of local control that his bill will become so controversial that it cannot be passed.

"I think they killed the bill," concluded Danielson. "If that didn't kill it, it certainly chloroformed it."

Long Beach, Lomita and Gardena were among 13 Southland cities trying to enact a measure to allow cities to outlaw panguingue.

The bill had been coauthored by Assemblymen Bill Dannemeyer, D-Fullerton; George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach; Clayton Dills, D-Gardena; Joe Gonsalves, D-Artesia; Joseph Kennick, Long Beach and James Whetmore, R-Los Alamitos.

In spite of the local-level pressure of key Southern California legislators, the anti-gambling measure seems headed for defeat. The significance: prevailing Sacrammento sentiment wants to keep the state supreme over local-level government.

OTHER SACRAMENTO Soundings:

Orange County's new senator, John Schmitz, was one of three Republicans who tried to block confirmation of the appointment of the governor's sister-in-law to the State Personnel Board. However, a 28-to-3 vote okayed Mrs. May Layne Bonnell.

THREE Long Beach area legislators have signed up as co-authors of a bill to make possible the dismissal of public school teachers who participate in illegal demonstrations. They are Assemblymen Deukmejian, Carley V. Porter, D-Compton, and Dannemeyer.

THE BROWN Administration recently has passed the word that it wants no one to introduce any bills renaming Oroville Dam after Gov. Brown. Such a bill was supposed to be in the works, and caused criticism in Oroville. In fairness, the significant California Water Project is being built during the Brown Administration. Ultimately after Gov. Brown Gov. Brown retires from the political arena a namesake reservoir would be a fitting project. Some Republicans even would support a Brown Dam now—if Democrats would agree to transpose the two words.

• • • • •

AS A GOP Whip, Assemblyman George Deukmejian of Long Beach has been making a good impression in a round of Northern California speaking engagements. This has spurred talk that Republican leaders may ask Deukmejian to run for a major statewide office in 1966. Best bet: attorney general.

Brown-Unruh Images Refine as Demo Party Feuds Grow

I, P-T Political Editor

A FEW MONTHS ago one could pretty well categorize the various wings of the Republican Party in simple lists of the right, middle and left. And while there are still vehement hold-outs in all categories, there are strong signs of meshing toward unity in 1966.

HOUSER

But Democrats have been fragmenting. Although they have been credited with the uncanny knack of regrouping on election day, no leadership towards that end seems effective today.

Party experts in Southern California have declined, even on an anonymous basis, to try to chart the various frictions, fusses and loyalties branching out from the party trees of Governor Brown and Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh.

"You'd need a dozen charts with transparent overlays," said one, "to illustrate how an enemy of one Democratic figure breaks ranks in another situation to endorse a friend of an enemy and the intrigue multiplies until you throw up your hands at trying to find a consistent pattern."

Thus one finds Southern Demo Chairman Carmen Warschaw, an Unruh fan, in minor feuds with National Committeeman Eugene Wyman, who is a Brown fan and with former Sen. Pierre Salinger. Wyman is a foe of Sam Yorty in the Los Angeles mayoral race. Brown is rumored plumping for Congressman James Roosevelt in that race; Unruh for Yorty. Carmen thus would be for Yorty, losing no love for either Wyman or his wife, Councilwoman Rosalind. Some of the pro-Yorty people want to see Roosevelt defeated so he will stay in Congress; they say if Roosevelt won it would open the congressional seat to Roz Wyman.

At the top, the images of Brown and Unruh are becoming refined and tend to project Brown as the liberal with Unruh following his own counsel that Californians are edging toward the more conservative. Unruh has programmed his talks to this image, his largest thrust—whether spoken or not—being directed against leadership of the liberal, issues-oriented California Democratic Council (CDC).

BROWN'S ESSENCE of liberalism was most recently drawn in bold relief in a Friday speech at Claremont Men's College, on whose faculty incidentally is the author of Barry Goldwater's controversial "extremism" line in his San Francisco acceptance speech.

Brown noted "on most campuses, an impatience with the old ways. . . . I wonder if we are too much the captives of our own past. Do we persist in applying old concepts to new crises? Are we altogether too respectful of tradition? Do we find too much that is sacred and too little that is suspect in our own laws and institutions? Do too many of us believe that if our forefathers didn't have the ANSWER, then the QUESTION is an improper one?

". . . Let me add that much in our past IS worth preserving. A majority of our laws and many of our social and political institutions ARE as serviceable today as they were a hundred years ago. The point is, we must not have such deference for the entire structure of laws and institutions that we are unwilling to replace its faulty components."

THE GOVERNOR told the students his words were controversial, adding, "You'll find many in our society who equate honest inquiry with heresy, social change with socialism. You will find them at the P-TA demanding dismissal of a teacher . . . in our libraries demanding censorship of a book deploying in the foothills of a Sunday, bearing arms—and malice. But don't let them stop you. Man's progress is always more a triumph over his own fears than over the hazards of his world."

GOP Basic Tenet Is Human Freedom

EDITOR:

One thing has been overlooked in most of the discussions of the future of the Republican Party. Very few have spoken of the principles of the Republican Party. The party was first organized to obtain freedom for the slaves. Its basic tenet, then, is human freedom—and its corollary, individual responsibility. The party also stands for our founding fathers' conception of limited government. It is opposed to the centralization of power at the federal level. It is dedicated to the capitalistic free enterprise system.

I believe one can safely say that a majority of the 27,000,000 people believe that Republican principles do not encompass a totalitarian central government, socialism, or the reduction of United States sovereignty through the creation of one world government in the forseeable future. Republican principles are, and should be, outraged by the violence the United States Supreme Court has done and is doing to our Constitution, by the immorality in government as illustrated by the Bobby Baker, Walter Jenkins and Billie Sol Estes cases, by the utter fiscal irresopsibility which has brought the federal government to the brink of financial disaster and to a condition which can only be described as technical insolvency and incipient bankruptcy, by the laxity of morals in our entire society, by attacks upon committees of Congress and the FBI and by countless other evidences of a reduction in individual responsibility and an increase in collectivism in this country.

Republicans should not think so much in terms of numbers or in accommodating diverse interests in order to win elections. They should think more of the foundations upon which the party is built. For if it is built well and the cause is right, the numbers will come.

Small Minority Who Think Small

EDITOR:

The excellent articles by Mary Ellis Carlton should spur the citizens of Long Beach to beautify our city. Unfortunately we have a small minority of irresponsible, retrogressive, radical right people who think small and negatively. They are a secret group, closely-knit, and vocal. They oppose education, beauty, main library, etc.

It behooves all citizens to move forward to a better city—truly international and not afraid to proclaim the importance of the United Nations, imperfect though it may be.

The enlightened citizens of Beverly Hills approved a new main library and just recently voted 10 to 1 in favor of education bonds. Surely the enlightened citizens of Long Beach can do equally well to secure a beatiful city, Pine Avenue mall, lovely civic center area, new main library, more trees and parks, development of El Dorada Park, removal of trash from streets and alleys, covering or fencing junk yards, securing big and small department stores and specialty shops plus much more free parking space in the downtown area, improved lighting of streets, etc., etc. Perhaps more rigid inspections by Fire Department and Building Bureau are needed. A wonderful start would be the improvement of the home of each family.

Plea for Carriers

EDITOR:

My complaint is regarding the mail carriers. Must they be burdened with all the advertisements they must carry around? The stores could very easily, with little cost to them, hire a few boys to deliver the coupon-filled books that eventually find their way to the trash barrel. The mail carriers are burdened during the holidays, so why not give them a break during the off season?

Red Profit Seen in India's Riots

UPI Foreign News Analyst

INDIA'S 1961 census disclosed that in the huge subcontinent there are 845 different languages and major dialects.

Of this polyglot, Hindi and its dialects are used by something less than half of the population, mainly in the north. Among them all, the single unifying factor has been the English language, an inheritance of years of British colonial rule.

The great diversity of language made hopeless the task of unifying state and national administrations without a common denominator. And so it was that the constitution of 1950 directed that English should be the official language for the first 15 years and on Jan. 26, 1965, should be replaced by Hindi.

In 1963 Parliament passed a law saying that non-Hindi speaking states could, if they wished, retain English as an "associate language" for another 10 years. But it failed to appease the fears of millions of Indians who feared loss of their jobs to Hindi speakers or the resentment of those states proud of their own native tongue.

Rule by riot not being uncommon among the explosive Indian population, it was not, too surprising that on Jan. 26, in the State of Madras in the south mobs began taking to the streets.

Madras is a Tamil-speaking state, a language used by about 34 million.

The rioters attacked trains, burned stations and cut telephone lines in an attempt to halt communication. The mobs seized two policemen and burned them alive.

In Calcutta where Bengali is the principal tongue, student demonstrators smashed windows of bookstalls and burned Hindi books.

The rioting put new strains on the ruling Congress Party, already bursting at the seams as result of the loss of former Prime Minister Nehru.

In Kerala state elections are scheduled for next month, and the Communists who made political profit out of the food riots of last November seem likely to make further gains out of the language riots.

Congress, Not Press, Should Quiz on Sensitive Matters

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has come in for some caustic criticism lately from various newsmen because he hasn't conducted more press conferences. But much of the comment misses the point. For it is not the obligation of a President of the United States to perform his duties in such a way as to enlighten the press promptly on every subject of importance, even when a policy may be in the course of evolution and final conclusions may not have been reached.

LAWRENCE

The very discussion, however, of the relationship between the press and President Johnson emphasizes a serious omission in the whole American system of government. The Congress of the United States comprises the elected representatives of the people, and presumably it is their primary responsibility not only to keep informed on what the executive branch of the government is doing but openly to criticize policies and official actions.

One would assume from some of the criticisms expressed concerning the lack of the presidential press conferences that it is the function of the newspapermen to constitute an "opposition" and to cross-examine the Chief Executive. Some presidents have liked the idea, but others have felt they would be hindered in conducting some of the delicate negotiations that arise in foreign policy because the press demands answers to specific questions. If these are ignored, they are immediately reported to have undue significance.

Press conferences are worthwhile only when they are carefully planned. It should be the prerogative of the President to insist that all questions be submitted in advance so that he can give them proper consideration and not depend entirely on impromptu answers. Although press conferences are conducted on an open basis and interesting news about controversial subjects frequentlycomes out of them, the fact remains that the Congress of the United States ought to do the interrogating. Great Britain's "loyal opposition" prepares the questions in advance and submits them to the Prime Minister. If he refuses to answer, there may be a debate questioning his judgment. When he does answer, the opposition has a chance to make its comments in public.

If the leaders in both houses of Congress were to set up a system whereby the executive branch was regularly interrogated on the floor of the Senate and the House, the President could not very readily brush aside their questions. He would have to furnish a very persuasive explanation if he failed to respond. He could delegate to his own party leaders the task of reply or even appear in person if he felt so inclined.

The American people have obtained through many administrations in the past the news of what their government was doing even when the White House has been silent. Resourcefulness is an inherent characteristic of the reporter. His job is to inform the people. But it is not the obligation of the government to furnish news before conclusions have been reached and policies have been formed which are ready for announcement.

Prospects Fade for Local Option on Gambling Laws

Independent, Press-Telegram Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—The prospects are remote for any 1965 legislation allowing California cities to enact their own gambling laws.

That is the opinion of Assemblyman George Danielson,

McCAULEY

D-Los Angeles, who battled unsuccessfully last week to win committee approval for such a bill.

In a split, voice vote the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee voted to defer action on the Danielson proposal so it can consider as a whole package other proposals for curbing pre-emption of local power.

However, recent Sacramento sentiment has been in favor of making the state supreme over local jurisdictions.

Danielson said that if his bill is broadened to include other aspects of local control that his bill will become so controversial that it cannot be passed.

"I think they killed the bill," concluded Danielson. "If that didn't kill it, it certainly chloroformed it."

Long Beach, Lomita and Gardena were among 13 Southland cities trying to enact a measure to allow cities to outlaw panguingue.

The bill had been co-authored by Assemblymen Bill Dannemeyer, D-Fullerton; George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach; Clayton Dills, D-Gardena; Joe Gonsalves, D-Artesia; Joseph Kennick, Long Beach and James Whetmore, R-Los Alamitos.

In spite of the local-level pressure of key Southern California legislators, the anti-gambling measure seems headed for defeat. The significance: prevailing Sacrammento sentiment wants to keep the state supreme over local-level government.

OTHER SACRAMENTO Soundings:

Orange County's new senator, John Schmitz, was one of three Republicans who tried to block confirmation of the appointment of the governor's sister-in-law to the State Personnel Board. However, a 28-to-3 vote okayed Mrs. May Layne Bonnell.

* * * *

THREE Long Beach area legislators have signed up as co-authors of a bill to make possible the dismissal of public school teachers who participate in illegal demonstrations. They are Assemblymen Deukmejian, Carley V. Porter, D-Compton, and Dannemeyer.

THE BROWN Administration recently has passed the word that it wants no one to introduce any bills renaming Oroville Dam after Gov. Brown. Such a bill was supposed to be in the works, and caused criticism in Oroville. In fairness, the significant California Water Project is being built during the Brown Administration. Ultimately after Gov. Brown Gov. Brown retires from the political arena a namesake reservoir would be a fitting project. Some Republicans even would support a Brown Dam now—if Democrats would agree to transpose the two words.

* * * *

AS A GOP Whip, Assemblyman George Deukmejian of Long Beach has been making a good impression in a round of Northern California speaking engagements. This has spurred talk that Republican leaders may ask Deukmejian to run for a major statewide office in 1966. Best bet: attorney general.

Brown-Unruh Images Refine as Demo Party Feuds Grow

I, P-T Political Editor

A FEW MONTHS ago one could pretty well categorize the various wings of the Republican Party in simple lists of the right, middle and left. And while there are still vehement hold-outs in all categories, there are strong signs of meshing toward unity in 1966.

HOUSER

But Democrats have been fragmenting. Although they have been credited with the uncanny knack of regrouping on election day, no leadership towards that end seems effective today.

Party experts in Southern California have declined, even on an anonymous basis, to try to chart the various frictions, fusses and loyalties branching out from the party trees of Governor Brown and Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh.

"You'd need a dozen charts with transparent overlays," said one, "to illustrate how an enemy of one Democratic figure breaks ranks in another situation to endorse a friend of an enemy and the intrigue multiplies until you throw up your hands at trying to find a consistent pattern."

Thus one finds Southern Demo Chairman Carmen Warschaw, an Unruh fan, in minor feuds with National Committeeman Eugene Wyman, who is a Brown fan and with former Sen. Pierre Salinger. Wyman is a foe of Sam Yorty in the Los Angeles mayoral race. Brown is rumored plumping for Congressman James Roosevelt in that race; Unruh for Yorty. Carmen thus would be for Yorty, losing no love for either Wyman or his wife, Councilwoman Rosalind. Some of the pro-Yorty people want to see Roosevelt defeated so he will stay in Congress; they say if Roosevelt won it would open the congressional seat to Roz Wyman.

At the top, the images of Brown and Unruh are becoming refined and tend to project Brown as the liberal with Unruh following his own counsel that Californians are edging toward the more conservative. Unruh has programmed his talks to this image, his largest thrust—whether spoken or not—being directed against leadership of the liberal, issues-oriented California Democratic Council (CDC).

BROWN'S ESSENCE of liberalism was most recently drawn in bold relief in a Friday speech at Claremont Men's College, on whose faculty incidentally is the author of Barry Goldwater's controversial "extremism" line in his San Francisco acceptance speech.

Brown noted "on most campuses, an impatience with the old ways. . . . I wonder if we are too much the captives of our own past. Do we persist in applying old concepts to new crises? Are we altogether too respectful of tradition? Do we find too much that is sacred and too little that is suspect in our own laws and institutions? Do too many of us believe that if our forefathers didn't have the ANSWER, then the QUESTION is an improper one?

". . . Let me add that much in our past IS worth preserving. A majority of our laws and many of our social and political institutions ARE as serviceable today as they were a hundred years ago. The point is, we must not have such deference for the entire structure of laws and institutions that we are unwilling to replace its faulty components."

THE GOVERNOR told the students his words were controversial, adding, "You'll find many in our society who equate honest inquiry with heresy, social change with socialism. You will find them at the P-TA demanding dismissal of a teacher . . . in our libraries demanding censorship of a book deploying in the foothills of a Sunday, bearing arms—and malice. But don't let them stop you. Man's progress is always more a triumph over his own fears than over the hazards of his world."

GOP Basic Tenet Is Human Freedom

EDITOR:

One thing has been overlooked in most of the discussions of the future of the Republican Party. Very few have spoken of the principles of the Republican Party. The party was first organized to obtain freedom for the slaves. Its basic tenet, then, is human freedom—and its corollary, individual responsibility. The party also stands for our founding fathers' conception of limited government. It is opposed to the centralization of power at the federal level. It is dedicated to the capitalistic free enterprise system.

I believe one can safely say that a majority of the 27,000,000 people believe that Republican principles do not encompass a totalitarian central government, socialism, or the reduction of United States sovereignty through the creation of one world government in the forseeable future. Republican principles are, and should he, outraged by the violence the United States Supreme Court has done and is doing to our Constitution, by the immorality in government as illustrated by the Bobby Baker, Walter Jenkins and Billie Sol Estes cases, by the utter fiscal irresopsibility which has brought the federal government to the brink of financial disaster and to a condition which can only be described as technical insolvency and incipient bankruptcy, by the laxity of morals in our entire society, by attacks upon committees of Congress and the FBI and by countless other evidences of a reduction in individual responsibility and an increase in collectivism in this country.

Republicans should not think so much in terms of numbers or in accommodating diverse interests in order to win elections. They should think more of the foundations upon which the party is built. For if it is built well and the cause is right, the numbers will come.

Small Minority Who Think Small

EDITOR:

The excellent articles by Mary Ellis Carlton should spur the citizens of Long Beach to beautify our city. Unfortunately we have a small minority of irresponsible, retrogressive, radical right people who think small and negatively. They are a secret group, closely-knit, and vocal. They oppose education, beauty, main library, etc.

It behooves all citizens to move forward to a better city—truly international and not afraid to proclaim the importance of the United Nations, imperfect though it may be.

The enlightened citizens of Beverly Hills approved a new main library and just recently voted 10 to 1 in favor of education bonds. Surely the enlightened citizens of Long Beach can do equally well to secure a beatiful city, Pine Avenue mall, lovely civic center area, new main library, more trees and parks, development of El Dorada Park, removal of trash from streets and alleys, covering or fencing junk yards, securing big and small department stores and specialty shops plus much more free parking space in the downtown area, improved lighting of streets, etc., etc. Perhaps more rigid inspections by Fire Department and Building Bureau are needed. A wonderful start would be the improvement of the home of each family.

Plea for Carriers

EDITOR:

My complaint is regarding the mail carriers. Must they be burdened with all the advertisements they must carry around? The stores could very easily, with little cost to them, hire a few boys to deliver the coupon-filled books that eventually find their way to the trash barrel. The mail carriers are burdened during the holidays, so why not give them a break during the off season?

Red Profit Seen in India's Riots

UPI Foreign News Analyst

INDIA'S 1961 census disclosed that in the huge subcontinent there are 845 different languages and major dialects.

Of this polyglot, Hindi and its dialects are used by something less than half of the population, mainly in the north. Among them all, the single unifying factor has been the English language, an inheritance of years of British colonial rule.

The great diversity of language made hopeless the task of unifying state and national administrations without a common denominator. And so it was that the constitution of 1950 directed that English should be the official language for the first 15 years and on Jan. 26, 1965, should be replaced by Hindi.

In 1963 Parliament passed a law saying that non-Hindi speaking states could, if they wished, retain English as an "associate language" for another 10 years. But it failed to appease the fears of millions of Indians who feared loss of their jobs to Hindi speakers or the resentment of those states proud of their own native tongue.

Rule by riot not being uncommon among the explosive Indian population, it was not too surprising that on Jan. 26, in the State of Madras in the south mobs began taking to the streets.

Madras is a Tamil-speaking state, a language used by about 34 million.

The rioters attacked trains, burned stations and cut telephone lines in an attempt to halt communication. The mobs seized two policemen and burned them alive.

In Calcutta where Bengali is the principal tongue, student demonstrators smashed windows of bookstalls and burned Hindi books.

The rioting put new strains on the ruling Congress Party, already bursting at the seams as result of the loss of former Prime Minister Nehru.

In Kerala state elections are scheduled for next month, and the Communists who made political profit out of the food riots of last November seem likely to make further gains out of the language riots.

Do South Vietnamese Prefer Viet Cong?

WASHINGTON — When Sergeant Eddie Anderson of Kansas City, wounded in Viet Nam, was asked what was the basic trouble over there, he replied, "I guess the Viet Cong is more popular with the people of the country than our side is."

This is about the frankest diagnosis that has come out of Southeast Asia in a long time. Other fragmentary information indicates that it is the truth.

PEARSON

We know, despite previous denials, that wholesale desertions from the South Vietnamese Army have occurred and this was probably why half the guard was absent on that fatal night at Pleiku when the Viet Cong were able to cut through the barbed wire entanglement and sneak right up to the American military compound.

We also know that every American installation and every village friendly to Saigon must be guarded with either a moat or barbed wire and that, despite a South Vietnamese Army of 200,000 men plus 200,000 in the national guard, the military police, and other special forces, the Viet Cong have been able to attack almost at will and make the South Vietnamese appear to be incompetents more interested in Saigon intrigue than in fighting.

In brief, after 18 years of tragic fighting in Indochina, President Johnson now finds himself risking nuclear war in suppport of a regime torn by Catholic-Buddhist controversy plus military-civilian rivalry in a "government" which doesn't really control any territory outside its own barbed-wire entanglements.

* * * *

HE ALSO finds himself lauded by such former critics as Richard Nixon, Barry Goldwater, and Everett Dirksen, while such Democratic leaders as Mike Mansfield of Montana, Frank Church of Idaho, and even Bill Fulbright of Arkansas are either openly critical or privately unhappy.

Nixon, who in April, 1954, prematurely spilled the beans that President Eisenhower was planning to send ground troops into Indochina, is now gleefully telling people, "I told you so," and urging LBJ to bomb some more. When Nixon made his premature disclosure to the American Society of Newspaper Editors in 1954, however, public reaction was so negative that Eisenhower reversed his position. A poll of Congress at that time showed only five congressmen favoring war.

Yet, later that same year, Eisenhower did what he at first had decided not to do. He sent American troops to Indochina. True, they went as advisers and only in small numbers. But the numbers grew—first under him, later under Kennedy—until the United States has now walked through a side door into Indochina with massive military aid which 10 years ago we vetoed. We are in a country where we are not particularly welcome, in the middle of a Catholic-Buddhist religious war, where it is highly doubtful we can win and from which the average American, including, no doubt, President Johnson, would like to get out if we could find a graceful way of doing so.

* * * *

THE INTERESTING question is how and why we eased in a side door after refusing to go in the front. It came about partly because some American military men and State Department diehards were still convinced we should go in, partly because of Cardinal Spellman, potent head of the New York archdiocese.

Part of S.E. Asia Dilemma Due to U.S. Policy Mistakes

WASHINGTON—No matter how menacing the situation is in Southeast Asia, the Marxists have again unintentionally alerted the United States of even greater dangers.

Sen. Thomas Dodd, R-Conn., has bluntly said that if we negotiate from weakness we will have the Reds battering at Seattle. This is a bitter prophecy but part of our present dilemma comes from errors of judgment in U.S. foreign policy throughout the past 30 years.

VIRGINIA KELLY

In the 1930s, Japan directed incidents against the United States. Our failure to react sharply helped bring on World War II for Japan believed the United States was weak and would not fight.

United States fear of a war with Red China during the Korean conflict has given Communist China and the U.S.S.R. many years to increase their economic resources and their conventional and atomic military strength.

As this is written, the Red Chinese have some Migs in place in North Viet Nam but so far there is no evidence of overt action by the Red Chinese and the U.S.S.R.

Unless the Soviets provide them, Red China has only a few atomic bombs now. She will have more later. To gain time to enlarge her atomic arsenal, Peking threatens to intervene in North Viet Nam.

The U.S.S.R. has said that "present circumstances" lend "special importance" to the Chinese-Soviet friendship. This is a significant change in the Soviet stand. During the Russian-Red Chinese ideological dispute last fall, both countries ridiculed the validity of the mutual defense clauses. They may mean what they say now — or they may be bluffing.

The Senate Minority Leader, Senator Dirksen asserts that President Johnson lacks firm Democratic support for his increasingly tough position in Viet Nam. Dirksen states that the President relies heavily on Republican support.

Senators Mansfield, Majority Leader, has given only cautious support to the President's policy. Other Democrats including Sens. Wayne Morse, Gruening, and Church have advocated getting out of Viet Nam and submitting the situation to the United Nations.

Senator Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Service Committee, who would have supported the President's actions on a stronger policy, is still seriously ill at Walter Reed Hospital.

It does appear that the conservative Republican senators are a tougher breed than the liberal Democrats.

From the days of the Roosevelt Administration, some U.S. Foreign policy has been built on the illusions (fostered by certain State Department policy experts, some of whom are still on duty) that co-existence is possible with the U.S.S.R and Red China. This group maintains that they are expert on Marxist philosophy and that the Soviets are becoming more progressive.

In actuality, it is believed in Europe and the Middle East that the Soviet marshals got rid of Khrushchev, that they are in real control of the U.S.S.R., and that throughout the dispute with Red China, the militarists were in communication with the Chinese.

THERE IS SOME reason to believe that our intelligence information is faulty and that the analysis of it may not always be sound. Otherwise, why would the President have invited Premier Kosygin and Mr. Brezhnev to visit the United States and why would Secretary Rusk have asked Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko to intervene with Red China and North Viet Nam to effect a settlement of the Vietnamese war.

It is possible the North Vietnamese have 250,000 soldiers ready to fight. On the other hand, although the Red Chinese have a large number of aging and obsolescent planes, they have not had enough aviation fuel to keep their pilots trained to wartime ability. It is believed the U.S. Navy and Air Force could handle Chinese and North Vietnamese air and naval forces. It is possible that some of our Seventh Fleet ships might be sunk by Red submarines.

If the war escalates, it is probable that atomic tactical weapons would be used against the Marxist forces.

In any event (whether with conventional or sophisticated bombs) in a war with Red China, her atomic installations in Sinkiang Province and her industrial centers would be attacked.

Policy on Diplomatic Snubs Hurts U.S. Stance in Africa

By I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The State Department is immersed in an internal fight over the question of "turning the other cheek" when Uncle Sam is snubbed or slighted abroad.

On one side are those who say each incident should be judged on its merits, with special consideration given to young and underdeveloped countries, even though the American public might not understand.

On the other are the State Department's traditionalists. As the world's most powerful nation, the United States shouldn't take any nonsense, they say.

The latter group has gained the upper hand, but some State Department officials are deeply concerned over the latest argument which resulted in a near-break in relations between the United States and one of its best friends in Africa, Tanzania.

Recently, Tanzania expelled two American diplomats, and was sorry almost the minute she did it. The hard-line boys at State knew it, but insisted the United States should expel a Tanzanian from Washington in retaliation. Expelled was Herbert Katua, Tanzanian Embassy counselor and one of the few exceptionally knowledgeable African diplomats in the U.S. Katua is also friendly toward this country.

As a result, the United States is losing diplomatic leverage at a time when crisis continues to build up in Africa — all because of a relatively minor incident which started from Tanzania's lack of political experience and the formalized United States response to it.

AFTER PUBLICLY announcing that he would not handle the Foreign Aid Bill in the Senate this year, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., may eat his words. Sources close to the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee say that he is succumbing to the pressure put on him by the administration. The administration apparently feels that Fulbright is the only member of his committee who can get the bill passed and none of the other senators are particularly anxious to handle it.

The humor of the satirical booklet may have been missed by Federal Bureau of Investigation officials after the arrest of some real saboteurs.

Otherwise, why would the President have invited Premier Kosygin and Mr. Brezhnev to visit the United States and why would Secretary Rusk have asked Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko to intervene with Red China and North Viet Nam to effect a settlement of the Vietnamese war.

It is possible the North Vietnamese have 250,000 soldiers ready to fight. On the other hand, although the Red Chinese have a large number of aging and obsolescent planes, they have not had enough aviation fuel to keep their pilots trained to wartime ability. It is believed the U.S. Navy and Air Force could handle Chinese and North Vietnamese air and naval forces. It is possible that some of our Seventh Fleet ships might be sunk by Red submarines.

If the war escalates, it is probable that atomic tactical weapons would be used against the Marxist forces.

In any event (whether with conventional or sophisticated bombs) in a war with Red China, her atomic installations in Sinkiang Province and her industrial centers would be attacked.

Policy on Diplomatic Snubs Hurts U.S. Stance in Africa

By I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The State Department is immersed in an internal fight over the question of "turning the other cheek" when Uncle Sam is snubbed or slighted abroad.

On one side are those who say each incident should be judged on its merits, with special consideration given to young and underdeveloped countries, even though the American public might not understand.

On the other are the State Department's traditionalists. As the world's most powerful nation, the United States shouldn't take any nonsense, they say.

The latter group has gained the upper hand, but some State Department officials are deeply concerned over the latest argument which resulted in a near-break in relations between the United States and one of its best friends in Africa, Tanzania.

Recently, Tanzania expelled two American diplomats, and was sorry almost the minute she did it. The hard-line boys at State knew it, but insisted the United States should expel a Tanzanian from Washington in retaliation. Expelled was Herbert Katua, Tanzanian Embassy counselor and one of the few exceptionally knowledgeable African diplomats in the U.S. Katua is also friendly toward this country.

As a result, the United States is losing diplomatic leverage at a time when crisis continues to build up in Africa — all because of a relatively minor incident which started from Tanzania's lack of political experience and the formalized United States response to it.

AFTER PUBLICLY announcing that he would not handle the Foreign Aid Bill in the Senate this year, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., may eat his words. Sources close to the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee say that he is succumbing to the pressure put on him by the administration. The administration apparently feels that Fulbright is the only member of his committee who can get the bill passed and none of the other senators are particularly anxious to handle it.

ON THE SAME day that four persons were arrested for plotting to blow up the Washington Monument, the Liberty Bell and the Statue of Liberty the National Maritime Union chose to distribute a dirty thumb-printed booklet entitled "Handbook for Saboteurs." The handbook was intended to point out the deterioration of the United States Merchant Marine. The humor of the satirical booklet may have been missed by Federal Bureau of Investigation officials after the arrest of some real saboteurs.

PREPARATION FOR WEST BEACH PROJECT

Bond Underwriters to Tour Shore

Now that competition for the tideland oil has been concluded, Long Beach is getting ready for another shoreline bidding of a different sort—one that is also unique in its way but on a smaller scale and quicker schedule.

Invitations have gone out to leading bond underwriters in the United States for a shoreline tour and luncheon next Thursday in preparation for a $9,455,000 bond issue offering March 3 to get the $50 million West Beach redevelopment project in motion.

A city bus will meet the visiting bankers and brokers at 10 a.m. Thursday in downtown Los Angeles. They will make a two-hour inspection of the project area, the neighboring harbor and the eastward expanse of shoreline as well as Douglas Aircraft Co. and the Long Beach Airport complex.

LOCAL BUSINESS leaders will join city and Redevelopment Agency officials for the luncheon at the Reef Restaurant, where the briefing on plans for an expanding Long Beach future will continue.

The bond bidding on the following Wednesday, March 3, is expected to be a quick transaction in contrast with the six days of bidding for segments of the huge offshore oil production.

Redevelopment Agency officials hope to make awards for the two series of the issue within an hour after the bids are opened at 11 a.m. Bids will be received separately for the two series, but any prospective buyer may bid on both.

The bond offering is unique in that it is the first for a major urban redevelopment project without federal aid and based on future tax increments from the improved project area, with some city participation.

REDEVELOPMENT and city officials concede that the strictly-local backing may result in a slightly higher interest rate. But they expect this cost to be offset by the simpler and faster procedures in the absence of federal controls.

Security for the bonds, in addition to future tax revenues, will come also from the disposition proceeds—the resale of the land to a private developer for high-rise improvements. Receipts from the issue will be used for purchase of the land, site improvements and interest costs pending redevelopment.

Bonds of Series A will amount to $4 million maturing Feb. 1, 1975, but callable after Aug. 1, 1968.

The Series B issue of $5,485,000 will mature Feb. 1, 1995, and be callable after Aug. 1, 1972. City Council has authorized the investment of up to $2 million municipal funds in the Series B issue.

$2.8 MILLION JOB

Channel Project Bids Set Mar. 11

I-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Bids for improvement of a 3.5-mile section of San Gabriel River from Del Amo Boulevard north to Fairton Street will be opened March 11, according to Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli.

Bonelli, chairman of the supervisors' flood control committee, said the U.S. Army Engineers will open bids on the $2.8 million project. The work is expected to take about 10 months.

The contract will call for construction of a concrete-lined channel with sloping sides. A Pacific Electric Railway bridge just north of Artesia Street will have to be removed and rebuilt.

Existing highway bridges at Artesia Street, Alondra Boulevard and South Street will not be affected by the channel improvement, Bonelli said.

The section of the channel to be improved is bordered by the cities of Lakewood, Dairy Valley, Bellflower and Norwalk.

The project will be built under federal supervision. When completed, it will be turned over to the County Flood Control District for operation and maintenance.

University Post to Area Doctor

Dr. Luigi Mastroianni Jr., chief of obstetrics and gynecology at Harbor General Hospital since July 1961, has been named chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

Dr. Mastroianni, 39, is recognized in American medical circles as an authority on reproductive biology in man and other primates.

HARBOR General's internationally known division of reproductive biology will remain at Harbor under the direction of Dr. Dean Moyer, chief of pathology.

Dr. Mastroianni said he has received a new grant from the Ford Foundation to establish a division of reproductive biology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Mastroianni, of 3405 Via Palomino, Palos Verdes Estates, served as assistant professor of OB-GYN at Yale University School of Medicine. He left Yale in 1961 to assume his Harbor General post and the title of professor of OB-GYN at UCLA.

REFUSE SHORTCUT

Crosswalk Denied to Mailmen

Long Beach letter carriers will get no relief from walking when they report in at the post office.

City councilmen for the second time have turned down the Postal Union's request for a crosswalk on Third Street between Elm and American Avenues, opposite the rear entrance to the building.

Union officials said the crosswalk will save steps for more than 600 postal employes who park their cars on the south side of Third Street or frequent a restaurant there.

Council members decided it would also disrupt the traffic flow. So the walk-weary carriers will have to reach their destination by a roundabout route— or else risk their lives in traffic.

Gill Bid Low at $142,442 on 7 Trucks

The city of Long Beach will pay $142,442 for seven new rubbish trucks, each with a load capacity of 25 cubic yards.

A bid in that amount by Joe Gill Motor Co., Long Beach, was low amoung three opened last week at City Hall. The city's cost estimate had been $150,000.

Second-low offer by White Motor Co. of Los Angeles was only $76 higher at $142,518.

The new trucks will replace seven old units of 16-cubic-yard capacity each.

At another bid opening Kropfli Construction Co., Long Beach, apparently qualified for a $12,885 contract for remodeling the basement rest rooms in City Hall. Earl L. Chessman was second-low with $13,888. City engineers had estimated the cost at $15,000.

UCLA Prof to Talk

L. E. Vredevoe, humorist and UCLA professor, will speak at the annual Bellflower Chamber of Commerce installation banquet March 13 at 7 p.m.

Redouble Drive for Y Funds

Workers going into the final week of the North Community YMCA's annual sustaining membership drive are redoubling their efforts to reach their goal of $16,000.

The group has reported about $9,000 has been pledged. The funds go to finance the programs of the youth center at 6095 California Ave.

Co-chairmen C. Wesley Belt and Dr. A. Mack Scott said the activities of the Y will have to be curtailed if the additional money can not be obtained.

"We hope the community will assist us further with contributions this week so we will be able to do the job we have set out to do," a drive spokesman said.

Engineers Set Dinner and Exhibit

Professional engineers of the Long Beach area will celebrate National Engineers Week with exhibits opening today at the Elks Club, 4101 E. Willow St., and a banquet there Tuesday night.

Among the exhibits will be models of the Southern California Edison Co. atomic generating plant at San Onofre, a portion of the Apollo space capsule, the DC-9 and other engineering achievements.

Dr. Vito Nanoni, professor of hydraullics at Caltech and a prominent consulting engineer, will speak at the Tuesday banquet. Two hundred engineers are expected to attend.

The observance is sponsored by the Long Beach and Palos Verdes Chapters of the California Society of Professional Engineers, the South Bay-Harbor Section of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers and the Long Beach Naval Shipyard Engineers and Architects Society.

Washington's Ancestry Topic for 1 p.m. Dinner

"Washington's Ancestry" will be the topic of a speech by Mrs. Catherine Moyer, Los Angeles genealogist, at the dinner of the Military Order of the Purple Heart and Auxiliary today at 1 p.m. at 5277 E. Second St.

Mrs. Moyer, a descendant of John Washington, the first President's half-brother, has made an extensive study of the Washington line.

The dinner celebrates Washington's birthday. The Order of the Purule Heart was founded by Washington in 1782.

State Commander Edward Alluno, of San Jose, will be guest of honor.

Blood Bank Open Monday

The blood bank wil be open Monday from 3:30 to 7 p.m. at Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross, 319 W. Broadway, despite Washington Birthday holiday.

Mary DeLone, chairman of recruitment for blood for open heart surgery, said that donors who have signed up for Monday are depended upon to make possible surgery on a 5-year-old girl Tuesday.

Yantorn Quits Boys Club Post

Lou Yantorn, who has directed operation of the Lakewood Boys Club Branch since it opened two years ago, is resigning as of March 1.

Succeeding him in the Lakewood post will be Tom Tobin of the North Branch of the Boys Club of Long Beach.

Yantorn will become executive director of the Harbor Area Boys Clubs in Costa Mesa.

Anti-Pornography Meeting Thursday

Persons interested in halting the flow of pornographic literature to the community's younger generation are encouraged to attend a meeting of the Committee for Decent Literature to be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday at the Washington Junior High School, according to Mrs. Jackie Sunday, co-chairman.

"The rise in crime rates, the increased homosexuality in the commnuity and other sexual deviations can be traced directly to the circulation of pornographic magazines and books in the area," contends Mrs. Sunday.

Attorney James J. Clancy, former deputy district attorney, will discuss "Pornography and the Law", says Mrs. Sunday.

Dr. Donald Cortum of Torrance, national co-chairman of the CDL, is also slated to address the meeting.

Raymond Gauer, national secretary of the committee and chairman of the Los Angeles County Commission Against Indecent Literature, will discuss some of the problems encountered in combating the distribution of pornographic literature in the greater Los Angeles area.

To be shown is a movie dealing with the $2 million annual pornographic business. The film is narrated by TV commentator George Putnam.

Vice-Mayor James A. Hayes and Councilman Robert Crow will take part in the question and answer period following the various speakers' comments, Mrs. Sunday said.

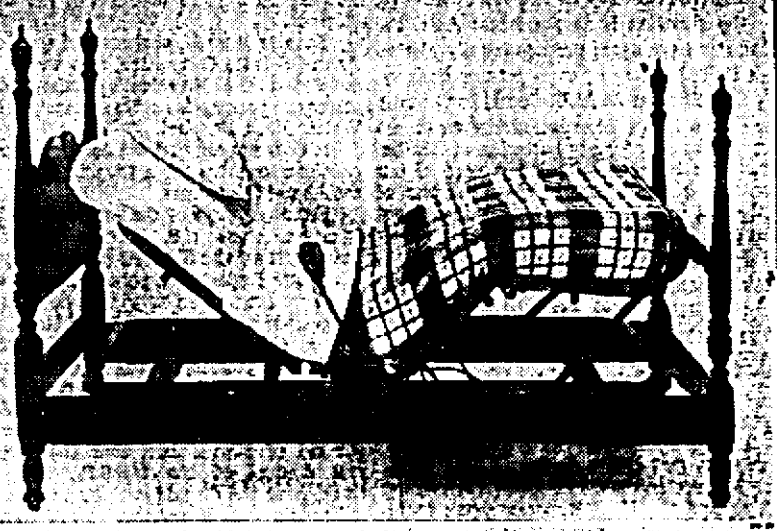

Laurel, Neb. Reunion

CSB Put 2,000 on Eligible List in '64

Nearly 2,000 applicants for Long Beach city jobs were pronounced qualified and placed on eligible lists by the Civil Service Board in 1964.

They were the successful survivors of more than 3,500 applicants processed by the board's staff and tested at 154 examinations.

More than 900 of those who made the eligible lists were actually appointed to jobs in the 375 active city classifications.

These figures were prepared by Harold E. Putnam, board secretary and chief examiner, for an annual report to be released soon.

Besides recruitment of personnel, the board received 10 appeals last year from employes discharged or suspended by administrative officials.

After hearing evidence in five cases, the board, sustained the department heads. Two appeals were withdrawn and three are pending.

Established by charter, the board celebrated its 57th birthday last month. Current members, appointed by the City Council for six-year terms, are Ray Underwood (chairman), Don P. Davis, William T. J. Harris, Clarence J. Layden and Robert McNulty.

ANIMAL POPULATION SOARS

Veterinary Medicine School Need Is Cited

I-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The Southland's population explosion involves animals as well as people, and, for that reason, there is "urgent need" for a school of veterinary medicine in this area, according to Supervisor Ernest E. Debs.

Debs said a bill is to be introduced in the State Legislature shortly, seeking establishment of such a school. He urged Southland residents to support such legislation.

In a few years, Debs warned, there will be a shortage of veterinarians which, throughout the nation, is expected to run from 7,000 to 10,000.

At present, he said, the only school for veterinary medicine in the entire Southwestern United States is at Davis, Calif. This school supplies only 25% of California's needs, however, he said.

Anti-Pornography Meeting Thursday

Persons interested in halting the flow of pornographic literature to the community's younger generation are encouraged to attend a meeting of the Committee for Decent Literature to be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday at the Washington Junior High School, according to Mrs. Jackie Sunday, co-chairman.

"The rise in crime rates, the increased homosexuality in the community and other sexual deviations can be traced directly to the circulation of pornographic magazines and books in the area," contends Mrs. Sunday.

Attorney James J. Clancy, former deputy district attorney, will discuss "Pornography and the Law", says Mrs. Sunday.

Dr. Donald Cortum of Torrance, national co-chairman of the CDL, is also slated to address the meeting.

Raymond Gauer, national secretary of the committee and chairman of the Los Angeles County Commission Against Indecent Literature, will discuss some of the problems encountered in combating the distribution of pornographic literature in the greater Los Angeles area.

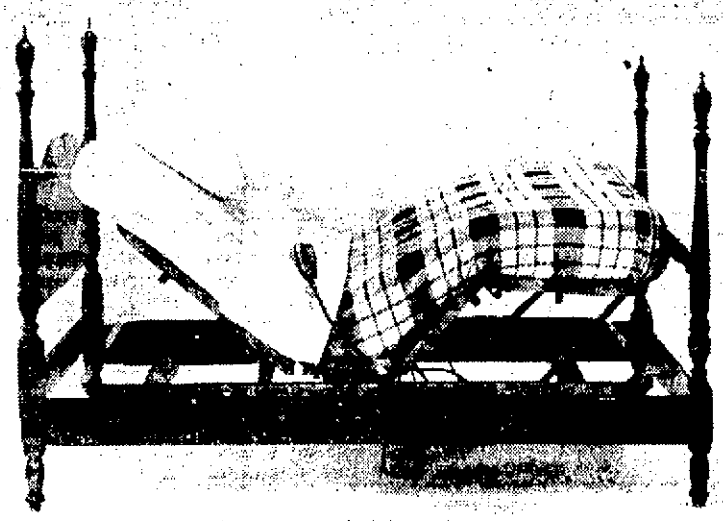

To be shown is a movie dealing with the $2 million annual pornographic business. The film is narrated by TV commentator George Putnam.

Vice-Mayor James A. Hayes and Councilman Robert Crow will take part in the question and answer period following the various speakers' comments, Mrs. Sunday said.

CSB Put 2,000 on Eligible List in '64

Nearly 2,000 applicants for Long Beach city jobs were pronounced qualified and placed on eligible lists by the Civil Service Board in 1964.

They were the successful survivors of more than 3,500 applicants processed by the board's staff and tested at 154 examinations.

More than 900 of those who made the eligible lists were actually appointed to jobs in the 375 active city classifications.

These figures were prepared by Harold E. Putnam, board secretary and chief examiner, for an annual report to be released soon.

Besides recruitment of personnel, the board received 10 appeals last year from employes discharged or suspended by administrative officials.

After hearing evidence in five cases, the board, sustained the department heads. Two appeals were withdrawn and three are pending.

Established by charter, the board celebrated its 57th birthday last month. Current members, appointed by the City Council for six-year terms, are Ray Underwood (chairman), Don P. Davis, William T. J. Harris, Clarence J. Layden and Robert McNulty.

ANIMAL POPULATION SOARS

Veterinary Medicine School Need Is Cited

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The Southland's population explosion involves animals as well as people, and, for that reason, there is "urgent need" for a school of veterinary medicine in this area, according to Supervisor Ernest E. Debs.

Debs said a bill is to be introduced in the State Legislature shortly, seeking establishment of such a school. He urged Southland residents to support such legislation.

In a few years, Debs warned, there will be a shortage of veterinarians which, throughout the nation, is expected to run from 7,000 to 10,000.

At present, he said, the only school for veterinary medicine in the entire Southwestern United States is at Davis, Calif. This school supplies only 25% of California's needs, however, he said.

EMPHYSEMA FELLS LAGUNA GREETER

'The Boomer' Is Ailing

By LEE BROWN

"My soul is feeling great, but my body is not so good."

At 74, Eiler Larsen's hair is beginning to gray. But his sun-tanned, weather-beaten features lighted up with his old vigor in Veterans Memorial Hospital, Long Beach, Saturday.

Although few know Larsen by name, most Southern Californians have either seen him greeting passersby on his familiar corner in Laguna Beach, or at least have heard of the bearded "unofficial greeter" for the Orange County artist's colony.

"HOW A-R-R-R-E YOU," he booms out to motorists driving by, always to the delight of children.

The 20-year-veteran Laguna greeter last week was felled by an attack of emphysema, a respiratory disease.

* * * *

LARSEN'S philosophy of "throwing a beam" of good will toward men has weakened not a whit in a lifetime of adventure on four continents.

"Where my mortal body hasn't been," he said, "my immortal soul has."

He expects to be back on his corner "in about a week," carrying on as "Laguna's worst gardener and best greeter." Said he, "They made me 'official greeter' last year — but without pay."

About his nationally famous — perhaps internationally famous—avocation of greeting, Larsen said:

"It makes them happy. It makes me happy. It gives me superhuman strength. I get out of myself and try to give. After all, that is the highest kind of love."

He said, "You reflect beauty by doing this. Children, particularly the children, hunger for it. And children have the greater ability to recognize reality."

As he spoke from his bed in Ward 7, Larsen half arose as he told his philosophy. His voice began to boom, carrying down the corridor.

"Ha," he exclaimed. "I don't want to talk too loud. I'll wake everyone out of their beds. The doctors will be angry if I make them all well."

Larsen's life has assumed almost legendary proportions to those who know him well, as it has for many who have merely returned his happy roar and friendly wave.

For years, he annually would walk all Holy Saturday and Saturday night from Laguna to Mt. Rubidoux Easter service near Riverside. He has been known to walk from Laguna to San Diego and back.

Born in Denmark, Larsen became a clerk for the Russian government when he was 19 and lived three years in Siberia. Since then he has been a Spanish and physical education teacher in Argentina, worked in a Chilean department store and served in the U.S. Army during World War I.

He once was caretaker of a 2,000-acre New York estate, and admits to being fired "four or five times" as a Wall Street bank messenger. He once hiked the entire Appalachian Trail, and is a member of the Audobon Society.

* * * *

HE HAS TRIED greeting in Washington, D.C., San Francisco and Palm Springs. Police escorted him out of Palm Springs and unsuccessfully tried to escort him out of Laguna when he first began greeting there during World War II. In 1959, Laguna's Mayor Jesse Riddle tried to oust him "as a nuisance"—probably on a complaint from a startled lady who claimed his booming greeting caused her fractured upper plate.

But a poll by the local newspaper showed 88% favored Larsen staying on the corner, and letters defending him flooded the Laguna post office from all parts of the country. He stayed, "throwing a beam" of good will.

Saturday, Larsen asked if someone would bring him "some five-cent stamps and one special delivery stamp. I have to send a check to my landlord." He also asked for some orange juice. "I'm sure it is all right if I have some," he said wistfully.

major world trouble spot. This could have been for real.

All are on three-hour call.

For the exercise the ships operated in a prescribed area, each knowing the other's location at the start.

The DEs in this sub search were aided by airplanes and helicopters from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. The 'copters dropped sonar plugs into the sea and hovered expectantly while taking readings on the sub's movements which were relayed to the surface vessels.

Since the sub had to use its periscope, lookouts had a harrowing time. The 'scope pops up just above the surface for about five seconds and many times a sea gull resting on the silver water or some floating debris looks like the sub's eye.

Charting the sub's course via sonar from aboard and above, the USS Vammen flagship of the Reserve group, maintained a shifting course and spread out plastic depth charges.

The submarine was credited with a "hit" if it managed to get a dummy torpedo under the keel, or 100 feet abow or astern of a surface ship. The extra length took into consideration the sub in actual combat, would be attacking a larger warship.

In this exercise, she scored a "hit."

The Vammen's Reservist captain is Lt. Cmdr. Robert Knight of Fullerton, a research chemist with Union Oil.

Gunnery officer, Lt. Larry Holdren of 7801 Tarma St., Long Beach, who directed depth charge deployment, works for Shell Chemical in Torrance.

Holdren spent his active duty in Long Beach and decided to remain in the Reserve.

The group is a cross-section of your neighbors.

"We might be working side by side with these Reservists one of these days, Lt. (jg) Dave Thaxton of El Paso, Tex., diving officer aboard the Bashaw, said. "We are glad to have them aboard getting this practical experience."

Exercise commodore was Capt. Charlie Nelson of 38 Quincy Ave., Long Beach.

Rehman Plea in Surgery Death Slated

Jerome Rehman, who lost a long court battle to prevent the district attorney's office from prosecuting him for manslaughter, will enter a plea to the charge in Long Beach March 3.

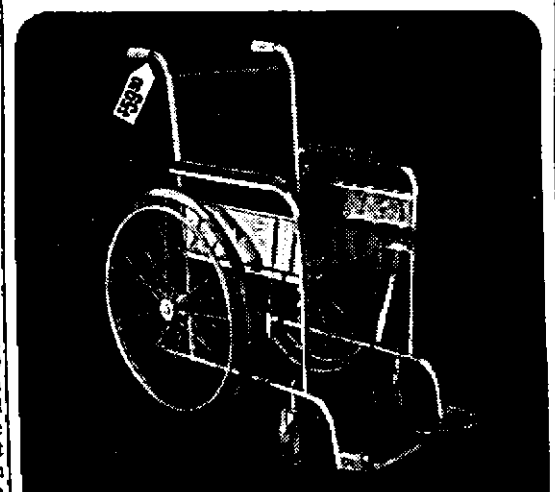

Superior Court Judge Maurice C. Sparling set the March 3 date at Rehman's request.

Rehman, 33, was convicted Aug. 2, 1963 of engaging in criminal conspiracy with three employes of his Bixby Knolls Community Hospital, 3833 Atlantic Ave. Subsequently sentenced to a 1-to-3-year state prison sentence, he is appealing that verdict.

* * * *

THE MANSLAUGHTER charge stems from the 1959 death of a woman on whom he allegedly had performed and unskilled surgery. The California Supreme Court ruled Dec. 4 that Rehman should face trial, overruling a superior court judge's decision that the statute of limitations applied.

Judge Sparling also has granted attorney Albert C. S. Ramsey, who represented Rehman during his 10-month-long conspiracy trial, permission to withdraw from the manslaughter case. The Long Beach firm of Pray, Price, Williams, and Deatherage will handle Rehman's defense.

Navy, Marines Set for Huge Exercise

(Independent, Press-Telegram writer Buck Lanier will be covering activities of Long Beach-based Navy ships and Marines during the huge 12-nation Silver Lance, opening Tuesday and running through March 12. This is the first of his stories.)

By BUCK LANIER

The Navy and Marines begin their largest maneuvers since World War II off the Southern California coast this week.

Command officials have dubbed the exercise Silver Lance and its "scenario" hammers home the present world situation.

There will be 70,000 personnel and 80 ships taking part.

This is the political picture:

Lancelot is a small, independent nation in an international hotspot. Primarily an agricultural country, it had little contact with the outside world prior to World War II.

Since then it has experienced growing prosperity, largely through U.S. economic and technical assistance. The Peace Corps has been received with enthusiasm.

Merlin, bordering Lancelot, is a satellite ally of the aggressor nation Modred. Merlin has claimed territorial rights to part of Lancelot and since 1962 has voiced complaints that Lancelot is violating her rightful border. These complaints have been supported by Modred.

• • • •

SINCE WW II, Merlin, supported by Modred, has created unrest between the two countries through local border incidents. Greater tension was built up in 1964 when Modred publicly pledged full support to Merlin. Subsequently increased intensity of unprovoked incidents and the advent of Merlin-supported guerrilla bands operating in parts of Lancelot has threatened the downfall of the pro-U.S. government.

Gaining control of a portion of Lancelot, guerrillas have set up a "People's Government" which has started a campaign of terrorism launched against U.S. citizens, the military assistance advisory group, the Agency for International Development and the Peace Corps.

Ultimate purpose? To overthrow the democratic Lancelot government.

This is the environment into which the Navy and Marines of Silver Lance will be projected.

Their mission: Protect American lives and restore order to a friendly nation.

Monday: Concept of operations.

A NATURAL IMPULSE IS TO use the telephone. This is unwise, says Bach. Everybody using the phones at once could disrupt very important communication.

"At least one person in every family should have instruction in first aid," he said. "These courses, which require only seven classroom hours, are provided free by the Red Cross."

Evacuation—fleeing from the stricken area—is foolish and impractical, Bach believes. "Stay where you are."

Bach, who plans to retire on June 30, has headed the Long Beach chapter since 1944. Prior to that he was a Red Cross liaison officer in the Pacific during World War II, a position which he received because of his work in the U.S. Army's welfare section. Because of his experience—he spent 12 years in the Army and had the rank of captain—he was transferred to the Red Cross in wartime.

U.S. Ships' Share of Trade Declines From 27% to 8%

Although American ocean commerce has doubled in the past decade, the share carried by U.S. ships has declined drastically, the Department of Commerce reports.

The department, in a report titled "Changing Patterns of U.S. Trade and Shipping Capacity," said the share of trade carried by American ships has slipped from 27.9% to only 8.5%.

Among its more startling aspects, the report shows:

—U.S. ocean trade is booming (with exports up 123% and imports increasing 88% in the past 10 years.

—Of the 12.6 million tons of foreign-flag ships (Panama, Honduras, Liberia) considered under effective U.S. control, only 70% is used in U.S. trade.

—Even if the cargo tonnages carried by foreign-flag ships under effective U.S. control were added to that carried by U.S.-flag ships, total trade carried by the combined fleets is down substantially, from 34% to 28% in a three-year period.

GOP WOMEN STATEMENT

The 64,000-member California Federation of Republican Women's board of directors has announced, through state President Mrs. Logan H. Goodknight of Long Beach, reaffirmation of the federation's purpose:

"To educate, to encourage political participation among women and to cooperate with Republican national, state and county central committees toward the election of all Republican nominees and to maintain an attitude of party loyalty toward all Republican incumbent officeholders.

In other actions the board, through resolutions, protested establishment of a Status of Women Commisston and urged defeat of the proposed legislation by the California legislature, and opposed Assembly Bill 343 which would waive identifying requirements on 15% of California Highway Patrol cars.

The board called the Women's Commission bills "patronizing," resented the "bureaucratic paternalism" they seek to establish and said they amounted to "exploitation of womanhood as an excuse to create another unnecessary burden" on taxpayers.

LONG BEACH LIFE INSURANCE AGENCY MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION

The Long Beach Life Insurance Agency Management Association is a national association and is represented in all of the leading cities in the United States. Here in Long Beach there are over 27 companies represented. The manager or the general agent of each of these companies meets monthly to discuss problems pertaining to the life insurance business and how they, as general agents or managers, can improve the already high standards of the business.

Agency heads of the various companies agree to select only agents who are qualified to be placed under contract. These agents are to be full-time career men, and the best available methods and materials are used to see that these agents get adequate and proper training. Soon after the initial training, the agency head encourages the agent to go forward and take additional training. L.U.T.C. and C.L.U. are two of the courses that agents are encouraged to take. It is hoped the agent may eventually reach the highest level of proficiency and achieve prestige and maximum satisfaction in his work.

Because life insurance renders an economic and social service to the public, the managers and general agents feel it is their duty to see that high ethical standards are lived up to and that the best-informed and qualified agents are selected to contact the public in Southern California.

A capacity audience of 1,600 is expected to hear former Sen. Barry Goldwater in his first public address since the presidential election at a 7:30 p.m. $25-a-plate banquet Monday in the International Hotel, Los Angeles.

The 1964 Republican standard bearer will speak under auspices of the Americanism Educational League. Walter Knott, league vice president, said proceeds are for patriotic youth work in high schools and colleges.

"Faith of Our Fathers" is the title of Goldwater's talk, billed as nonpolitical. He will be introduced by actor Ronald Reagan.

GOP WOMEN STATEMENT

The 64,000-member California Federation of Republican Women's board of directors has announced, through state President Mrs. Logan H. Goodknight of Long Beach, reaffirmation of the federation's purpose:

"To educate, to encourage political participation among women and to cooperate with Republican national, state and county central committees toward the election of all Republican nominees and to maintain an attitude of party loyalty toward all Republican incumbent officeholders.

In other actions the board, through resolutions, protested establishment of a Status of Women Commission and urged defeat of the proposed legislation by the California legislature, and opposed Assembly Bill 343 which would waive identifying requirements on 15% of California Highway Patrol cars.

The board called the Women's Commission bills "patronizing," resented the "bureaucratic paternalism" they seek to establish and said they amounted to "exploitation of womanhood as an excuse to create another unnecessary burden" on taxpayers.

MEMBERS of the Long Beach Association of Life Underwriters are entitled to display the meaningful emblem of the National Association of Life Underwriters. They also subscribe to the NALU Code of Ethics. In doing so, they accept an important liaison role between the client and the life insurance company. Only by observing the highest ethical balance can your life insurance representative avoid any conflict between these two obligations.

In keeping with the purposes of their organization, members of the local life underwriters association accept personal responsibility for helping to shape the character and direction of the life insurance business. Through their association, they are engaged in a year-around program of activities designed to guarantee you—the client—self-improvement and training for the life underwriter so that he is competent to help you plan a security program that meets your needs and still fits your pocketbook—and to give you continuous service so that this program is always up-to-date.

Protection from misrepresentation and other unethical practices. Association members pledge to adhere to the highest standards of business and ethical conduct.

Federal, state, and local legislation relating to life insurance that is in your best interest.

Greater understanding of what life insurance is and does, and of the indispensable role of the career life underwriter as a family and business financial advisor.

The life insurance agents, general agents, and managers—members of this Association—who subscribe to, endorse, and actively participate in this program are listed below:

LONG BEACH LIFE INSURANCE AGENCY MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION

The Long Beach Life Insurance Agency Management Association is a national association and is represented in all of the leading cities in the United States. Here in Long Beach there are over 27 companies represented. The manager or the general agent of each of these companies meets monthly to discuss problems pertaining to the life insurance business and how they, as general agents or managers, can improve the already high standards of the business.

Agency heads of the various companies agree to select only agents who are qualified to be placed under contract. These agents are to be full-time career men, and the best available methods and materials are used to see that these agents get adequate and proper training. Soon after the initial training, the agency head encourages the agent to go forward and take additional training. L.U.T.C. and C.L.U. are two of the courses that agents are encouraged to take. It is hoped the agent may eventually reach the highest level of proficiency and achieve prestige and maximum satisfaction in his work.

Because life insurance renders an economic and social service to the public, the managers and general agents feel it is their duty to see that high ethical standards are lived up to and that the best-informed and qualified agents are selected to contact the public in Southern California.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Mart Indicators Decline as Blue Chip Shares Dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chip stocks drifted slightly lower last week, but the rest of the list staged a fairly good rally. Trading fell below the previous week's active pace.

Losses in the blue chip shares largely were responsible for declines in some stock market indicators. Traders noted that although the group already has retreated substantially from its highs of last month, there was little buying interest.

Buyers, instead, focused their attention on the so-called secondary industrial shares which, analysts point out, have failed to participate in the market's long upswing. In addition to their comparatively low prices, the secondary shares also have been on a number of institutional shopping lists recently.

• • • • •

THE WEEK began with a continuation of the Viet Nam jitters which cost the Dow-Jones Industrial average a little over 7 points in the first two sessions. However, by Wednesday calmness again prevailed and the indicator rose 1.58. Further upward progress was made Thursday and Friday.

Some companies got a good lift Thursday from President Johnson's plans to put $700 million back into corporate pockets through revision of the depreciation guidelines. The experts recall the upswing in corporate profits which followed the last revision of the guidelines a few years ago.

However, administration proposals for plugging the gold drain by restraining corporate investments overseas cut a number of internationally based companies back.

• • • • •

DOW-JONES Industrials slipped 2.86 to 885.61, but rails advanced 2.24 to 210.42. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index tacked on 0.16 at 86.21. Volume slowed to 27,889,821 shares from 29,674,210 shares a week before and compared with 18,411,260 shares in the same week last year.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 2-to-1 as 853 issues moved higher while 469 declined. Of the 1,522 issues traded, 213 rose to new 1964-65 highs while 19 touched new lows.

Anticipation of Pan American World Airways' favorable earnings report, which was released after the close Thursday, put it at the top of the active list with a gain of 2½ at 31⅝ on 655,400 shares.

Chrysler took second place with a loss of ¾ at 55⅞ on 490,200 shares. Brokers said some investors were concerned over the possible dilution from Chrysler's proposed 1-for-7 rights offering of common shares.

• • • • •

EASTERN Airlines was also active. It dropped 3 on reports of a possible forthcoming dilution of the common shares. Pure Oil recovered from early losses and finished unchanged. Pure has reached a tentative agreement by which Union Oil of California will acquire it. Union Oil will exchange a new issue of convertible preferred stock, on a share-for-share basis, for all of Pure Oil's outstanding shares.

Chemicals largely were responsible for the decline in the averages. DuPont plunged 10¼. Traders apparently were disappointed over the company's failure to split the stock as had been expected. Eastman Kodak dropped 1 and Union Carbide gave up 1¼. International Minerals and Chemical advanced 2.

Steels generally were fractions lower. The group will undoubtedly, according to market sources, remain in the doldrums until some trend is set in labor talks with the unions and until there is definite word on who will hold the presidency of the union.

• • • • •

AN 11-POINT spurt Thursday helped IBM to finish the week with a gain of 6⅜. IBM, which leases most of its products, will benefit from the planned change in the depreciation guidelines. Xerox, which also leases its products, soared 7 points.

Electronics, which were long neglected, were strong. Motorola advanced 4¼, Beckman 2¾, Litton 2½, Honeywell 4 and Texas Instruments 1⅝. Control Data dropped 1¼.

New York Central Railroad picked up 4 and Pennsylvania Railroad, its proposed merger partner, added 4¼. There have been rumors the Interstate Commerce Commission would pass on the merger shortly. The rumors were denied by the commission.

A string of good earnings statements and news of record passenger traffic in January kept airline shares on the uptrack. KLM Royal Dutch soared 6, National 3¾, Northwest 2⅞, Delta 3¼ and Trans World 2¼.

• • • • •

ALCOA advanced 3½ after it boosted its aluminum price. Reynolds Metals added 1¼. It also boosted its price and raised its dividend last week.

Briggs & Stratton rose 4 on a dividend boost. Pan American Sulphur rose 1½. Directors boosted the quarterly dividend and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. Celanese declined around midweek after directors announced plans for a rights offering on more than $70 million in convertible debentures. However, it finished with a gain of 2¾.

Hamilton Watch preferred shares were down 2½ and the common shares were off 1½. Directors announced plans to call the preferred issue. Raybestos-Manhattan added 3⅛ on a dividend boost.

Justice Is Swift, Judge Is Sure in Traffic Court

BALTIMORE (AP)—The wheels of justice turned swiftly Saturday in traffic court. In 98 minutes, Judge Aaron A. Baer heard and judged 71 traffic cases and postponed 35 others.

Despite the volume, Judge Baer said he felt justice was served.

"I let every case stand on its own, but when I get the traffic ticket I can usually determine what legal questions must be asked to make a judgment," he said.

"You can do this in traffic court more easily than in a criminal court. When you handle a docket which sometimes has 260 cases on it, you can't let the defendant or witnesses beat around the bush."

'Peyton Place Motel' Bought

GILMANTON, N.H. (AP) — The country home and motel of the late Grace Metalious, author of "Peyton Place," was sold at auction Saturday for $140,000.

The property, auctioned to help clear debts left by Mrs. Metalious, was purchased by the former owners, Lawrence and Estelle Luneau. The property consists of 100 acres of land and the motel named "Peyton Place Motel."

When Mrs. Metalious died last year in Boston she reportedly left $123,000 in debts.

U.S.-Canada Gas Moguls Square Off

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Friendly relations between some Canadian and American natural gas moguls have hit a roadblock.

It is up to the Federal Power Commission (FPC) whether the obstacle magnifies or dissolves. It won't vanish if the Americans have their way. It will get bigger.

Exchanges of Canadian and American gas on an export-import basis were going along merrily until late last year. Then Great Lakes Transmission Co., Wilmington, Del., a newly organized subsidiary of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., Toronto, asked the FPC for permission to loop a $200 million, 989-mile Canada-to-Canada pipeline through northern Minnesota and Wisconsin and central Michigan.

These areas already are served by American gas companies. They began to ask: what is Great Lake's motive? Did it foresee the day when, with the facilities built with FPC permission, it could tap lucrative U.S. market areas? Why, when Trans-Canada has already demonstrated it can build a pipeline clear across the Canadian land mass, does it find it necessary to transit three American states with another line?

• • • • •

THE FPC also was a bit uneasy. It flatly rejected Great Lake's first application on grounds the company had made ambiguous statements about gas supplies, about whether it intended to try to serve the U.S. market, and also had failed to give a detailed explanation of some of its supporting data.

The commission said the omissions were "in utter disregard of regulations." It told Great Lakes, in effect, not to darken its door again until it was ready to put all the facts on the table.

A month later, Great Lakes filed a revised application, minus reference to any specific service to U.S. customers but saying that if such an eventuality arose it would recognize its responsibility and, on proper order of the FPC, carry it out.

This satisfied FPC filing requirements and, last Jan. 5, the commission issued notice the application had been accepted under its speed-up procedure which by-passes an examiner's hearing "if there is no opposition."

• • • • •

THAT WAS when the roof fell in. Protestants stumbled over each other in their haste to lodge objections. As of Feb. 1, the deadline for would-be intervenors to file, 12 petitions had been put in the record.

They charged among other things that Great Lakes had a hungry eye on what they regarded as a taboo market—their own domain.

This put it up to the FPC. It can reject the protests on grounds the proposed project does not infringe the public interest, or it can hold hearings to air the objections. If it doesn't it might have to go to court.

Great Lakes promptly answered most of the complaints. Its position added up to a denial that it is, with malice aforethought, bent on biting off a fuscious chunk of the American market. In substance, it told the commission the Americans were crying foul before they were hurt; that they are trying to foreclose a competition that doesn't exist and can't without FPC authorization. When that time comes, it said, then will be the time to protest.

Among those filing protests were: Tennessee Gas Transmission Company's subsidiary, Midwestern Pipe Line Co., which imports Trans-Canada gas; Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co., Kansas City, which exports gas to Union Gas Co., Chatham, Ontario; Michigan - Wisconsin Pipeline Co., Detroit; the Michigan, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania Public Service Commission; the Independent Petroleum Association of America; four coal organizations; two Canadian gas companies, including Union, and Consumers Power Co., Jackson, Mich.

Great Lakes's line, with a capacity of 800 million cubic feet a day, would extend from Emerson, Manitoba, to Sarnia, Ontario. A 50-mile branch line would go from the Straits of Mackinac to Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Trans-Canada would supply $25 million of the financing. Great Lakes would raise $175 million by placing bonds with U.S. insurance companies.

Lively PTA Meetings Forecast for Spring

By SAM FOGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the lexicon of the average American parent, three of the dullest initials are PTA—Parent Teacher Associations.

For parents and teachers alike, they usually mean an evening of weak punch, deadly speeches and the prospect of missing a favorite television show.

But according to an affiliate of the National Education Association, the traditionally tedious PTA meetings in city and suburbia will be the battlegrounds this spring of a determined right-wing effort to gain the upper hand in the nation's school systems.

A warning of turbulence ahead was made in "The Shape of Education for 1965," a publication issued this week by the National School Public Relations Association, a NEA adjunct.

• • • • •

THE FIRST three chapters are devoted to the alleged threat posed by such ultra-conservative groups as the John Birch Society. The first paragraph says:

"There is . . . evidence that in the spring of 1965 extremists will be concentrating their fire on school superintendents and school board members."

The publication cited a bulletin fhom the Birch Society urging members to "join your local PTA at the beginning of the school year, get your conservative friends to do likewise, and go to work to take it over."

• • • • •

THE PURPORTED advisory was further quoted as saying that "when you and your friends get the local PTA groups straightened out, move up the ladder as soon as you can to assert a wide influence. And don't let the dirty tactics of the opposition get you down."

The NEA-sponsored booklet reported that W. R. Fulton, an education professor at Oklahoma University, recently estimated that 35 state PTA congresses have been "confronted with rabble-rousing tactics of the extremists." In 20 states, Fulton said, extremists were successful in getting members elected to PTA offices.

The publication also reported that Edwin W. Davis, an official of an NEA commission on professional rights and responsibilities, had told the national convention that in 1964, one out of every 30 school districts in the United States had been confronted with "extremist attacks."

Davis also claimed that in five states "right wing extremists were threatening to wrest control of state PTA groups from the rank and file members."

INTELLIGENT INVESTING

Difference Between Stocks and Bonds

By MORTON YARMON

By law, a corporation is defined as an artificial person chartered to do certain things.

In practice, a corporation is a group of real persons who get together with two thoughts in mind: to share business risks, and to find the money for expansion projects that cost too much for the resources of any single one of them.

The difference between stocks and bonds is rooted in the two basic ways in which the modern corporation can raise the money needed for expansion.

• • • • •

THE corporation's original owners may decide to sell shares in their business—which means that whoever buys their shares will share in their profits or losses. Or they may decide to borrow money, promising to pay interest at a certain fixed rate and to repay, at a specified date, the money advanced to them.

When a company sells shares in its business, it issues stock. When it borrows money, it issues bonds.

So, when you buy a share of stock, you become a partner.

• • • • •

WHEN you buy a bond, though, you become simply a creditor of the company. You do not become a part owner of the business any more than the bank becomes a part owner of your home when it lends you money through a mortgage.

Inherent in this difference is the reason why stocks are so much more popular with investors than bonds. For, bonds give you a fixed rate of interest no matter what kind of profit the company makes. Also, when the bond—or loan—comes due, the company is obligated to pay back to you only the amount you originally loaned it. Because of this, the value of bonds generally fluctuates within a narrow range.

With stocks, on the other hand, the sky is the limit. If the company does well, profits can come to you in two ways: in dividends, and in the increase in the market value of the shares of the business that you own as other investors, hearing about the company's success, bid to get hold of its shares.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Mart Indicators Decline as Blue Chip Shares Dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chip stocks drifted slightly lower last week, but the rest of the list staged a fairly good rally. Trading fell below the previous week's active pace.

Losses in the blue chip shares largely were responsible for declines in some stock market indicators. Traders noted that although the group already has retreated substantially from its highs of last month, there was little buying interest.

Buyers, instead, focused their attention on the so-called secondary industrial shares which, analysts point out, have failed to participate in the market's long upswing. In addition to their comparatively low prices, the secondary shares also have been on a number of institutional shopping lists recently.

* * * *

THE WEEK began with a continuation of the Viet Nam jitters which cost the Dow-Jones Industrial average a little over 7 points in the first two sessions. However, by Wednesday calmness again prevailed and the indicator rose 1.58. Further upward progress was made Thursday and Friday.

Some companies got a good lift Thursday from President Johnson's plans to put $700 million back into corporate pockets through revision of the depreciation guidelines. The experts recall the upswing in corporate profits which followed the last revision of the guidelines a few years ago.

However, administration proposals for plugging the gold drain by restraining corporate investments overseas cut a number of internationally based companies back.

* * * *

DOW-JONES Industrials slipped 2.86 to 885.61, but rails advanced 2.24 to 210.42. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index tacked on 0.16 at 86.21. Volume slowed to 27,889,821 shares from 29,674,210 shares a week before and compared with 18,411,260 shares in the same week last year.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 2-to-1 as 853 issues moved higher while 489 declined. Of the 1,522 issues traded, 213 rose to new 1964-65 highs while 19 touched new lows.

Anticipation of Pan American World Airways' favorable earnings report, which was released after the close Thursday, put it at the top of the active list with a gain of 2½ at 31⅝ on 685,400 shares.

Chrysler took second place with a loss of ¾ at 55⅞ on 490,200 shares. Brokers said some investors were concerned over the possible dilution from Chrysler's proposed 1-for-7 rights offering of common shares.

* * * *

EASTERN Airlines was also active. It dropped 3 on reports of a possible forthcoming dilution of the common shares. Pure Oil recovered from early losses and finished unchanged. Pure has reached a tentative agreement by which Union Oil of California will acquire it. Union Oil will exchange a new issue of convertible preferred stock, on a share-for-share basis, for all of Pure Oil's outstanding shares.

Chemicals largely were responsible for the decline in the averages. DuPont plunged 10¼. Traders apparently were disappointed over the company's failure to split the stock as had been expected. Eastman Kodak dropped 1 and Union Carbide gave up 1¼. International Minerals and Chemical advanced 2.

Steels generally were fractions lower. The group will undoubtedly, according to market sources, remain in the doldrums until some trend is set in labor talks with the unions and until there is definite word on who will hold the presidency of the union.

* * * *

AN 11-POINT spurt Thursday helped IBM to finish the week with a gain of 6⅝. IBM, which leases most of its products, will benefit from the planned change in the depreciation guidelines. Xerox, which also leases its products, soared 7 points.

Electronics, which were long neglected, were strong. Motorola advanced 4¼, Beckman 2¾, Litton 2⅜, Honeywell 4 and Texas Instruments 1⅝. Control Data dropped 1¼.

New York Central Railroad picked up 4 and Pennsylvania Railroad, its proposed merger partner, added 4¼. There have been rumors the Interstate Commerce Commission would pass on the merger shortly. The rumors were denied by the commission.

A string of good earnings statements and news of record passenger traffic in January kept airline shares on the uptrack. KLM Royal Dutch soared 6, National 3¾, Northwest 2⅞, Delta 3¾ and Trans World 2¼.

* * * *

ALCOA advanced 3½ after it boosted its aluminum price. Reynolds Metals added 1¼. It also boosted its price and raised its dividend last week.

Briggs & Stratton rose 4 on a dividend boost. Pan American Sulphur rose 1½. Directors boosted the quarterly dividend and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. Celanese declined around midweek after directors announced plans for a rights offering on more than $70 million in convertible debentures. However, it finished with a gain of 2¾.

Hamilton Watch preferred shares were down 2½ and the common shares were off 1½. Directors announced plans to call the preferred issue. Raybestos-Manhattan added 3⅛ on a dividend boost.

Justice Is Swift, Judge Is Sure in Traffic Court

BALTIMORE (AP)—The wheels of justice turned swiftly Saturday in traffic court. In 98 minutes, Judge Aaron A. Baer heard and judged 71 traffic cases and postponed 35 others.

Despite the volume, Judge Baer said he felt justice was served.

"I let every case stand on its own, but when I get the traffic ticket I can usually determine what legal questions must be asked to make a judgment," he said.

"You can do this in traffic court more easily than in a criminal court. When you have 260 cases on it, you can't let the defendant or witnesses beat around the bush."

'Peyton Place Motel' Bought

GILMANTON, N. H. (AP) — The country home and motel of the late Grace Metalious, author of "Peyton Place," was sold at auction Saturday for $140,000.

The property, auctioned to help clear debts left by Mrs. Metalious, was purchased by the former owners, Lawrence and Estelle Lunean. The property consists of 100 acres of land and the motel named "Peyton Place Motel."

When Mrs. Metalious died last year in Boston she reportedly left $123,000 in debts.

U.S.-Canada Gas Moguls Square Off

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Friendly relations between some Canadian and American natural gas moguls have hit a roadblock.

It is up to the Federal Power Commission (FPC) whether the obstacle magnifies or dissolves. It won't vanish if the Americans have their way. It will get bigger.

Exchanges of Canadian and American gas on an export-import basis were going along merrily until late last year. Then Great Lakes Transmission Co., Wilmington, Del., a newly organized subsidiary of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., Toronto, asked the FPC for permission to loop a $200 million, 989-mile Canada-to-Canada pipeline through northern Minnesota and Wisconsin and central Michigan.

These areas already are served by American gas companies. They began to ask: what is Great Lake's motive? Did it foresee the day when, with the facilities built with FPC permission, it could tap lucrative U.S. market areas? Why, when Trans-Canada has already demonstrated it can build a pipeline clear across the Canadian land mass, does it find it necessary to transit three American states with another line?

* * * *

THE FPC also was a bit uneasy. It flatly rejected Great Lake's first application on grounds the company had made ambiguous statements about gas supplies, about whether it intended to try to serve the U.S. market, and also had failed to give a detailed explanation of some of its supporting data.

The commission said the omissions were "in utter disregard of regulations." It told Great Lakes, in effect, not to darken its door again until it was ready to put all the facts on the table.

A month later, Great Lakes filed a revised application, minus reference to any specific service to U.S. customers but saying that if such an eventuality arose it would recognize its responsibility and, on proper order of the FPC, carry it out.

This satisfied FPC filing requirements and, last Jan. 5, the commission issued notice the application had been accepted under its speed-up procedure which by-passes an examiner's hearing "if there is no opposition."

* * * *

THAT WAS when the roof fell in. Protestants stumbled over each other in their haste to lodge objections. As of Feb. 1, the deadline for would-be intervenors to file, 12 petitions had been put in the record.

They charged among other things that Great Lakes had a hungry eye on what they regarded as a taboo market—their own domain.

This put it up to the FPC. It can reject the protests on grounds the proposed project does not infringe the public interest, or it can hold hearings to air the objections. If it doesn't it might have to go to court.

Great Lakes promptly answered most of the complaints. Its position added up to a denial that it is, with malice aforethought, bent on biting off a luscious chunk of the American market. In substance, it told the commission the Americans were crying foul before they were hurt: that they are trying to foreclose a competitinn that doesn't exist and can't without FPC authorization. When that time comes, it said, then will be the time to protest.

Among those filing protests were: Tennessee Gas Transmission Company's subsidiary, Midwestern Pipe Line Co., which imports Trans-Canada gas; Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co., Kansas City, which exports gas to Union Gas Co., Chatham, Ontario; Michigan - Wisconsin Pipeline Co., Detroit; the Michigan, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania Public Service Commission; the Independent Petroleum Association of America; four coal organizations; two Canadian gas companies, including Union, and Consumers Power Co., Jackson, Mich.

Great Lakes's line, with a capacity of 800 million cubic feet a day, would extend from Emerson, Manitoba, to Sarnia, Ontario. A 50-mile branch line would go from the Straits of Mackinac to Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Trans-Canada would supply $25 million of the financing. Great Lakes would raise $175 million by placing bonds with U.S. insurance companies.

Lively PTA Meetings Forecast for Spring

By SAM FOGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the lexicon of the average American parent, three of the dullest initials are PTA — Parent Teacher Associations.

For parents and teachers alike, they usually mean an evening of weak punch, deadly speeches and the prospect of missing a favorite television show.

But according to an affiliate of the National Education Association, the traditionally tedious PTA meetings in city and suburbia will be the battlegrounds this spring of a determined right-wing effort to gain the upper hand in the nation's school systems.

A warning of turbulence ahead was made in "The Shape of Education for 1965," a publication issued this week by the National School Public Relations Association, a NEA adjunct.

* * * *

THE FIRST three chapters are devoted to the alleged threat posed by such ultra-conservative groups as the John Birch Society. The first paragraph says:

"There is . . . evidence that in the spring of 1965 extremists will be concentrating their fire on school superintendents and school board members."

The publication cited a bulletin fhom the Birch Society urging members to "join your local PTA at the beginning of the school year, get your conservative friends to do likewise, and go to work to take it over."

* * * *

THE PURPORTED advisory was further quoted as saying that "when you and your friends get the local PTA groups straightened out, move up the ladder as soon as you can to assert a wide influence. And don't let the dirty tactics of the opposition get you down."

The NEA-sponsored booklet reported that W. R. Fulton, an education professor at Oklahoma University, recently estimated that 35 state PTA congresses have been "confronted with rabble-rousing tactics of the extremists." In 20 states, Fulton said, extremists were successful in getting members elected to PTA offices.

The publication also reported that Edwin W. Davis, an official of an NEA commission on professional rights and responsibilities, had told the national convention that in 1964, one out of every 30 school districts in the United States had been confronted with "extremist attacks."

Davis also claimed that in five states "right wing extremists were threatening to wrest control of state PTA groups from the rank and file members."

INTELLIGENT INVESTING

Difference Between Stocks and Bonds

By MORTON YARMON

By law, a corporation is defined as an artificial person chartered to do certain things.

In practice, a corporation is a group of real persons who get together with two thoughts in mind: to share business risks, and to find the money for expansion projects that cost too much for the resources of any single one of them.

The difference between stocks and bonds is rooted in the two basic ways in which the modern corporation can raise the money needed for expansion.

* * * *

THE corporation's original owners may decide to sell shares in their business—which means that whoever buys their shares will share in their profits or losses. Or they may decide to borrow money, promising to pay interest at a certain fixed rate and to repay, at a specified date, the money advanced to them.

When a company sells shares in its business, it issues stock. When it borrows money, it issues bonds.

So, when you buy a share of stock, you become a partner.

* * * *

WHEN you buy a bond, though, you become simply a creditor of the company. You do not become a part owner of the business any more than the bank becomes a part owner of your home when it lends you money through a mortgage.

Inherent in this difference is the reason why stocks are so much more popular with investors than bonds. For bonds give you a fixed rate of interest no matter what kind of profit the company makes. Also, when the bond—or loan—comes due, the company is obligated to pay back to you only the amount you originally loaned it. Because of this, the value of bonds generally fluctuates within a narrow range.

With stocks, on the other hand, the sky is the limit. If the company does well, profits can come to you in two ways: in dividends, and in the increase in the market value of the shares of the business that you own as other investors, hearing about the company's success, bid to get hold of its shares.

Sabotage Plan Was to 'Frighten' U.S.

By HARRY W. SHARPE
United Press International

The FBI and New York police last week broke up a fantastic plot to dynamite three historic shrines of American freedom — the Statue of Liberty, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, and the 555-foot Washington Monument.

Seized in New York City were three Negro men — members of the militant black liberation front—and a Canadian white woman, 26-year-old Michelle Duclos, member of a radical Quebec independence party.

The comely, long-haired blonde, recently a Montreal television announcer, was accused of smuggling a box of dynamite in her car from Canada to bring the plot to fruition.

• • • •

NEW YORK City Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said the quartet planned the sabotage "as a symbolic action designed to frighten the American people." The accused apparently had ties with pro-Castro and other "far out" causes.

Ray Woods, 31, a Negro rookie policeman, got wind of the intrigue several months ago. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was called in. Wood was assigned to fall in with the conspirators by becoming a member of the black federation. Thereafter every move of the suspects was watched.

Miss Duclos buried the explosives and percussion caps in a vacant Bronx lot, then contacted Wood. Wood and Robert Steele Collier, 28, leader of the black federation, dug up the dynamite. FBI agents, there by pre-arrangement, arrested Collier, then, with police, swooped down on Miss Duclos, Khaleel Sayyed, 22, former Howard University student in Washington, and Walter August Bowe, 32, a Fidel Castro supporter.

• • • •

COMMISSIONER Murphy said they may have "contacts" in other cities.

President Johnson once again reaffirmed that the United States wants "no wider war" in South Viet Nam but will use all means necessary to preserve the freedom of that Communist - embattled Southeast Asian country.

—AP Wirephoto

THE TOPIC WAS Viet Nam as President Johnson and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville met Friday in the White House. After an hour's conference, the French aide told reporters "we discussed many things and it will not surprise you if I say that the main topic was Southeast Asia, particularly Viet Nam."

He told a meeting of top business leaders that future reprisals against the aggressors, Red China and North Viet Nam, will be gauged by what they do. "Our actions will be measured, fitting and adequate," he warned.

Russia sent the State Department a stiff note declaring the United States faces "serious consequences" if it continues such military actions. Meantime the South Vietnamese government was in a state of turmoil as another political coup was attempted but failed.

Johnson was in close touch with the situation. Earlier he had discussed the Asian crisis with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower who originated the South Viet Nam anti-Communist policy.

• • • •

DEFENSE Secretary Robert S. McNamara told Congress on behalf of the President that the United States has no choice but to continue to fight Communist expansion. The price, he said, is all Asia. "We intend to stand fast against the implacable animosity of Red China," he said, "until that nation, too, realizes that its security and progress can be better served by a more peaceful policy."

Republican congressional leaders headed by Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., declared their support of Johnson's strike-for-strike policy though some Democrats argued vehemently that the President should try for a negotiated settlement and neutralization of the nations forming old Indochina.

Johnson and the State Department reiterated that talk was useless until Viet Cong armies were pulled out of Viet Nam.

McNamara voiced doubt that Red China would back up its bellicose threats against the U.S. He said Peking's leaders had "shown great caution when confronted with a determined display of military power."

Soviet Premier Kosygin who recently visited North Viet Nam, toned down his anti-American threats. At the same time Soviet Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky was warning that Russia's nuclear arsenal is potent enough to "destroy everything living." McNamara made much the same statement about U.S. power. He also observed that 150 million Americans might die in an all out nuclear war that would certainly decimate Russia.

• • • •

McNAMARA saw no immediate cause for fear in Red China's development of an atomic device, but he cautioned that the picture could change in the next five years. The State Department said it had reason to believe that Peking would fire another nuclear test soon. The department conceded that a second Chinese blast might have an adverse psychological effect in Asia, but said it would have "no effect on our determination to resist aggression."

The department also warned foreign nations which have condoned pro-Viet Cong mob attacks on U.S. embassies and consulates that it would "take a very hard look" at future U.S. programs with those countries. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow was among those hard hit.

The Kremlin expelled Baltimore Sun correspondent Adam Clymer as an outgrowth of the mob assault. Clymer denied charges that he slapped a policeman while trying to get into the embassy for medical aid. Johnson took "a most serious view" of the ouster. The State Department said the expulsion "was totally unjustified."

IN OTHER news spheres, the President ordered the Treasury Department to make $700 million in tax depreciation benefits available to business corporations to help keep the national economy booming. This meant a relaxation of equipment write-off guidelines adopted in 1962.

Johnson unveiled the new prosperity stimulant in an address to a private business research organization. He described the four-year advance of the economy as "a partnership for prosperity" and called for "responsible, self-restraint of business, labor and government" to keep it going.

In another speech to bankers and industrialists he renewed his pledge to keep the dollar sound and again appealed to all businessmen and citizens to help dam the critical U.S. gold flow abroad by curbing overseas investments and spending. He said this should be a "voluntary partnership," and that it was urgent, no matter "how painful," that the balance of payments trade deficit be liquidated.

Congress gave the President's program a lift by passing a bill to remove the outdated "gold cover" requirement on deposits in federal reserve banks. This will plow about $5 million in gold back into the treasury.

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

Does U.S. Have Back Against Viet Wall?

By United Press International

Newspaper editorials in Asia, Africa and Europe continued focusing on the Viet Nam war and America's efforts to prevent a Communist takeover.

The SUDOST-TAGESPOST of Graz, Austria, said recent events in Southeast Asia "have again made unmistakably clear that the Americans in Viet Nam are fighting with their backs against the wall and that they are perfectly aware of the fact that one has to pay for the errors of an unfortunate policy which had been pursued even before Dien Bien Phu.

"But one also knows that an unconditional withdrawal from South Viet Nam would entail the loss of the entire Western position in Southeast Asia."

The evening newspaper MADRID carried a cartoon showing a cowboy and Chinese woman hurling plates at each other, while Oriental figures in a doorway in the background—standing under a sign which says "Viet Nam"—are saying, "If you two want to fight, why don't you go to your own house?"

In Lisbon, the political writer of CORREIA MARQUES discussing the Viet Nam crisis, said he did not see how the United States could "get out from that complicated problem."

He said it was obvious that Washington and London could not accept the proposal for negotiations as "the Communists have shown they do not respect agreements."

The EAST AFRICAN STANDARD of Nairobi, Kenya, said, "Well might friends of the U.S.A. abroad sadly ask themselves who won the presidential election—Johnson or Goldwater."

The Standard said the Viet Nam situation is fraught with peril for world peace. The Americans, it said have backed the wrong regime in Taiwan and the wrong man in Chiang Kai-shek.

The conservative TIMES of India said U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam cannot deter the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam:

"Washington's capacity for 'swift reprisals' does not now impress us if it ever did.

"The people of South Viet Nam are becoming increasingly restive under the authoritarian and corrupt regimes that have been imposed on them by U.S. encouragement and connivance," it said.

The PHILIPPINES HERALD of Manila said North Viet Nam and Red China should take the initiative toward a conference table settlement by withdrawing the Viet Cong guerrillas:

"If North Viet Nam is really interested in a settlement, it should make the first logical move by calling off its guerrillas. It's as simple as that . . .

"The initiatve toward a peaceful solution, in other words, must come from North Viet Nam itself and from Red China, which is directly aiding and conspiring with it to overthrow the South Vietnamese government."

The conservative YOMIURI newspaper in Tokyo urged the U.S. to take the initiative toward bringing the disputants together for talks:

"The war in Viet Nam is no longer a mere local dispute, but is threatening to assume such serious proportions as to affect the world situation. Should the war spread into North Viet Nam, the Soviet Union and Communist China would not fail to step into the dispute.

"In that event, the war in Viet Nam will be a more serious event than the Korean War. Therefore, the dispute is fraught with the danger of developing into World War III.

"It is not an exaggeration to say that U.S. President Johnson's decision will affect the fate of the people of the world."

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

Does U.S. Have Back Against Viet Wall?

By United Press International

Newspaper editorials in Asia, Africa and Europe continued focusing on the Viet Nam war and America's efforts to prevent a Communist takeover.

The SUDOST-TAGESPOST of Graz, Austria, said recent events in Southeast Asia "have again made unmistakably clear that the Americans in Viet Nam are fighting with their backs against the wall and that they are perfectly aware of the fact that one has to pay for the errors of an unfortunate policy which had been pursued even before Dien Bien Phu.

"But one also knows that an unconditional withdrawal from South Viet Nam would entail the loss of the entire Western position in Southeast Asia."

The evening newspaper MADRID carried a cartoon showing a cowboy and Chinese woman hurling plates at each other, while Oriental figures in a doorway in the background—standing under a sign which says "Viet Nam"—are saying, "If you two want to fight, why don't you go to your own house?"

In Lisbon, the political writer of CORREIA MARQUES discussing the Viet Nam crisis, said he did not see how the United States could "get out from that complicated problem."

He said it was obvious that Washington and London could not accept the proposal for negotiations as "the Communists have shown they do not respect agreements."

The EAST AFRICAN STANDARD of Nairobi, Kenya, said, "Well might friends of the U.S.A. abroad sadly ask themselves who won the presidential election—Johnson or Goldwater."

The Standard said the Viet Nam situation is fraught with peril for world peace. The Americans, it said have backed the wrong regime in Taiwan and the wrong man in Chiang Kai-shek.

The conservative TIMES of India said U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam cannot deter the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam:

"Washington's capacity for 'swift reprisals' does not now impress us if it ever did.

"The people of South Viet Nam are becoming increasingly restive under the authoritarian and corrupt regimes that have been imposed on them by U.S. encouragement and connivance," it said.

The PHILIPPINES HERALD of Manila said North Viet Nam and Red China should take the initiative toward a conference table settlement by withdrawing the Viet Cong guerrillas:

"If North Viet Nam is really interested in a settlement, it should make the first logical move by calling off its guerrillas. It's as simple as that . . .

"The initiative toward a peaceful solution, in other words, must come from North Viet Nam itself and from Red China, which is directly aiding and conspiring with it to overthrow the South Vietnamese government."

The conservative YOMIURI newspaper in Tokyo urged the U.S. to take the initiative toward bringing the disputants together for talks:

"The war in Viet Nam is no longer a mere local dispute, but is threatening to assume such serious proportions as to affect the world situation. Should the war spread into North Viet Nam, the Soviet Union and Communist China would not fail to step into the dispute.

"In that event, the war in Viet Nam will be a more serious event than the Korean War. Therefore, the dispute is fraught with the danger of developing into World War III.

"It is not an exaggeration to say that U.S. President Johnson's decision will affect the fate of the people of the world."

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Sabotage Plan Was to 'Frighten' U.S.

By HARRY W. SHARPE
United Press International

The FBI and New York police last week broke up a fantastic plot to dynamite three historic shrines of American freedom — the Statue of Liberty, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, and the 555-foot Washington Monument.

Seized in New York City were three Negro men — members of the militant black liberation front—and a Canadian white woman, 26-year-old Michelle Duclos, member of a radical Quebec independence party.

The comely, long-haired blonde, recently a Montreal television announcer, was accused of smuggling a box of dynamite in her car from Canada to bring the plot to fruition.

* * * *

NEW YORK City Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said the quartet planned the sabotage "as a symbolic action designed to frighten the American people." The accused apparently had ties with pro-Castro and other "far out" causes.

Ray Woods, 31, a Negro rookie policeman, got wind of the intrigue several months ago. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was called in. Wood was assigned to fall in with the conspirators by becoming a member of the black federation. Thereafter every move of the suspects was watched.

Miss Duclos buried the explosives and percussion caps in a vacant Bronx lot, then contacted Wood. Wood and Robert Steele Collier, 28, leader of the black federation, dug up the dynamite, FBI agents, there by pre-arrangement, arrested Collier, then, with police, swooped down on Miss Duclos, Khaleel Sayyed, 22, former Howard University student in Washington, and Walter August Bowe, 32, a Fidel Castro supporter.

* * * *

COMMISSIONER Murphy said they may have "contacts" in other cities.

President Johnson once again reaffirmed that the United States wants "no wider war" in South Viet Nam but will use all means necessary to preserve the freedom of that Communist - embattled Southeast Asian country.

—AP Wirephoto

THE TOPIC WAS Viet Nam as President Johnson and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville met Friday in the White House. After an hour's conference, the French aide told reporters "we discussed many things and it will not surprise you if I say that the main topic was Southeast Asia, particularly Viet Nam."

He told a meeting of top business leaders that future reprisals against the aggressors, Red China and North Viet Nam, will be gauged by what they do. "Our actions will be measured, fitting and adequate," he warned.

Russia sent the State Department a stiff note declaring the United States faces "serious consequences" if it continues such military actions. Meantime the South Vietnamese government was in a state of turmoil as another political coup was attempted but failed.

Johnson was in close touch with the situation. Earlier he had discussed the Asian crisis with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower who originated the South Viet Nam anti-Communist policy.

* * * *

DEFENSE Secretary Robert S. McNamara told Congress on behalf of the President that the United States has no choice but to continue to fight Communist expansion. The price, he said, is all Asia. "We intend to stand fast against the implacable animosity of Red China," he said, "until that nation, too, realizes that its security and progress can be better served by a more peaceful policy."

Republican congressional leaders headed by Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., declared their support of Johnson's strike-for-strike policy though some Democrats argued vehemently that the President should try for a negotiated settlement and neutralization of the nations forming old Indochina.

Johnson and the State Department reiterated that talk was useless until Viet Cong armies were pulled out of Viet Nam.

McNamara voiced doubt that Red China would back up its bellicose threats against the U.S. He said Peking's leaders had "shown great caution when confronted with a determined display of military power."

Soviet Premier Kosygin who recently visited North Viet Nam, toned down his anti-American threats. At the same time Soviet Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky was warning that Russia's nuclear arsenal is potent enough to "destroy everything living." McNamara made much the same statement about U.S. power. He also observed that 150 million Americans might die in an all out nuclear war that would certainly decimate Russia.

* * * *

McNAMARA saw no immediate cause for fear in Red China's development of an atomic device, but he cautioned that the picture could change in the next five years. The State Department said it had reason to believe that Peking would fire another nuclear test soon. The department conceded that a second Chinese blast might have an adverse psychological effect in Asia, but said it would have "no effect on our determination to resist aggression."

The department also warned foreign nations which have condoned pro-Viet Cong mob attacks on U.S. embassies and consulates that it would "take a very hard look" at future U.S. programs with those countries. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow was among those hard hit.

The Kremlin expelled Baltimore Sun correspondent Adam Clymer as an outgrowth of the mob assault. Clymer denied charges that he slapped a policeman while trying to get into the embassy for medical aid. Johnson took "a most serious view" of the ouster. The State Department said the expulsion "was totally unjustified."

IN OTHER news spheres, the President ordered the Treasury Department to make $700 million in tax depreciation benefits available to business corporations to help keep the national economy booming. This meant a relaxation of equipment write-off guidelines adopted in 1962.

Johnson unveiled the new prosperity stimulant in an address to a private business research organization. He described the four-year advance of the economy as "a partnership for prosperity" and called for "responsible, self-restraint of business, labor and government" to keep it going.

In another speech to bankers and industrialists he renewed his pledge to keep the dollar sound and again appealed to all businessmen and citizens to help dam the critical U.S. gold flow abroad by curbing overseas investments and spending. He said this should be a "voluntary partnership," and that it was urgent, no matter "how painful," that the balance of payments trade deficit be liquidated.

Congress gave the President's program a lift by passing a bill to remove the outdated "gold cover" requirement on deposits in federal reserve banks. This will plow about $5 million in gold back into the treasury.

INFERIOR BUSINESS MAN

'Sexy Rexy' Says He's a Dreamer

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Rex Harrison had just come from a date with a doctor's needle.

He had, but minutes before, received a vitamin shot in a very familar neighborhood which we euphemists refer to as "the right lower thigh." He in his rich Professor 'Iggins enuciation, located the area much more colorfully, and then we turned from the background of Sexy Rexy to the foreground — to the future

"WHAT DO you play after you've played 'Caesar' and a Pope?'

"There was talk of me playing Noah in 'The Bible,' " he admitted.

"John Huston said it should be somebody like his father"—here Harrison smiled —" and now John Houston is playing it." — "You have to keep in mind you're going to win the Oscar," I mentioned, "for 'My Fair Lady.' "

"Now let's not be too sure about that!"

• • • •

"YOU still have your home in Portofino?" I asked.

"Oh Lord yes, that's where Rachel (Rachel Roberts his wife) and I keep my books and animals.

"Then you're a resident of Italy?"

"I don't think so. I would check that with Aaron Frosh my lawyer. I'm not very bright about things like that."

"You're not very smart about business?" I said

"No I'm an artist and a dreamer," Harrison said. "I don't really think about money much. I think one of the reasons you're sucessful in my profession is if think about what's going to be good... and if you make a lot of money, too, well that's jolly nice.

"I've been in it 30 years," the big dreamer and artist said, "and I have done pretty well...because I don't think too much about money. I think it's just a question of how good you're going to be, that's all.

Hamilton Pursued By Bardot, Moreau

GEORGE HAMILTON
His Best Break

CUAULTA, Mex. (AP)— How's this for a dream job—making love to Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau?

"And," adds actor George Hamilton, "I don't even have to shave or take a bath. The more unkempt I look, the better."

George is making "Viva Maria," shooting on location near this southern Mexico city.

He's loved by both French stars in the picture—the only male co-star.

"Alain Delon turned this part down," says George. "He should have his head examined."

The script, being shot in French, is all about a mythical Latin American revolution, Circa 1910. George plays a revolutionary with beard and two-dollar wardrobe.

"The only difficult thing about the part is speaking French with a Mexican accent, he says. "I consider it the best break I've ever had in the movies."

Hamilton, who looks more Mexican than many of the natives watching the filming, got the job by being in the right place at the right time. As he tells it:

"I was getting some sun in Acapulco when I heard they were having trouble casting the male lead. I hopped on a plane and introduced myself to producer-director Louis Malle—in French.

"I got the job on the spot."

One scene coming up later in the picture has George being seduced by the sexy Miss Moreau while handcuffed to a 50-pound yoke.

"I guarantee you, it's the most interesting prison scene ever shot says George. It beats convicts rattling their knives and forks."

SCIENCE FICTION

Dana Andrews portrays scientist in "Crack in the World," story of a project of the future to tap the energy of the earth's core, which opens in the area Wednesday.

Claudia Teams With Rock

Heads turned and shutters snapped briskly at Universal City recently. Claudia Cardinale flew in for a week's engagements with studio wardrobe, makeup and photographic experts prior to beginning her first picture in America, "Blindfold," co-starring Rock Hudson.

Peter, Paul Mary Sing Here Friday

Three big names in the folk-sing firmament — Peter, Paul and Mary — will appear in concert here 8:30 p.m. Friday at Municipal Auditorium.

The three — Paul Stookey, the tall bearded one; Peter Yarrow, the shorter bearded one and Mary Travers, tall, blonde willowy one — got together in 1961 and since have sold more than 10 millions records.

In their last appearance here they drew a capacity audience.

Tickets are available at Humphreys Music and Music City, Lakewood.

INFERIOR BUSINESS MAN

'Sexy Rexy' Says He's a Dreamer

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Rex Harrison had just come from a date with a doctor's needle.

He had, but minutes before, received a vitamin shot in a very familar neighborhood which we euphemists refer to as "the right lower thigh." He in his rich Professor 'Iggins enuciation, located the area much more colorfully, and then we turned from the background of Sexy Rexy to the foreground — to the future of the Man Who's Played Everything.

'I'm an Artist'

"WHAT do you play after you've played 'Caesar' and a Pope?"

"There was talk of me playing Noah in 'The Bible,' " he admitted.

"John Huston said it should be somebody like his father"—here Harrison smiled —" and now John Houston is playing it." — "You have to keep in mind you're going to win the Oscar," I mentioned, "for 'My Fair Lady.' "

"Now let's not be too sure about that!"

* * * *

"YOU still have your home in Portofino?" I asked.

"Oh Lord yes, that's where Rachel (Rachel Roberts his wife) and I keep my books and animals.

"Then you're a resident of Italy?"

"I don't think so. I would check that with Aaron Frosh my lawyer. I'm not very bright about things like that."

"You're not very smart about business?" I said

"No I'm an artist and a dreamer," Harrison said. "I don't really think about money much. I think one of the reasons you're sucessful in my profession is if think about what's going to be good... and if you make a lot of money, too, well that's jolly nice.

"I've been in it 30 years," the big dreamer and artist said, "and I have done pretty well...because I don't think too much about money. I think it's just a question of how good you're going to be, that's all.

Dream Job

Hamilton Pursued By Bardot, Moreau

GEORGE HAMILTON
His Best Break

CUAULTA, Mex. (AP)— How's this for a dream job—making love to Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau?

"And," adds actor George Hamilton, "I don't even have to shave or take a bath. The more unkempt I look, the better."

George is making "Viva Maria," shooting on location near this southern Mexico city.

He's loved by both French stars in the picture—the only male co-star.

"Alain Delon turned this part down," says George. "He should have his head examined."

The script, being shot in French, is all about a mythical Latin American revolution, Circa 1910. George plays a revolutionary with beard and two-dollar wardrobe.

"The only difficult thing about the part is speaking French with a Mexican accent, he says. "I consider it the best break I've ever had in the movies."

Hamilton, who looks more Mexican than many of the natives watching the filming, got the job by being in the right place at the right time. As he tells it:

"I was getting some sun in Acapulco when I heard they were having trouble casting the male lead. I hopped on a plane and introduced myself to producer-director Louis Malle—in French.

"I got the job on the spot."

One scene coming up later in the picture has George being seduced by the sexy Miss Moreau while handcuffed to a 50-pound yoke.

"I guarantee you, it's the most interesting prison scene ever shot says George. It beats convicts rattling their knives and forks."

SCIENCE FICTION

Dana Andrews portrays scientist in "Crack in the World," story of a project of the future to tap the energy of the earth's core, which opens in the area Wednesday.

Claudia Teams With Rock

Heads turned and shutters snapped briskly at Universal City recently. Claudia Cardinale flew in for a week's engagements with studio wardrobe, makeup and photographic experts prior to beginning her first picture in America, "Blindfold," co-starring Rock Hudson.

Peter, Paul Mary Sing Here Friday

Three big names in the folk-sing firmament -- Peter, Paul and Mary — will appear in concert here 8:30 p.m. Friday at Municipal Auditorium.

The three — Paul Stookey, the tall bearded one; Peter Yarrow, the shorter bearded one and Mary Travers, tall, blonde willowy one — got together in 1961 and since have sold more than 10 millions records.

In their last appearance here they drew a capacity audience.

Tickets are available at Humphreys Music and Music City, Lakewood.

HENRY FONDA takes to the clear Arizona air after an all too brief encounter with a bucking bronc in "The Rounders," modern day western comedy.

Peter O'Toole, drinks beer from a bucket in "Lord Jim," based on Joseph Conrad's classic story which has benefit premiere for the Women's Guild of Cedars-Sinai Medical Group March 4 at the Stanley Warner Beverly Hills Theater.

JANA TURNER and Cliff Robertson in scene from "Love Has Many Faces."

'INNOCENTS' AT OFF-BROADWAY

An Earnest Acting Job

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

If the success of a play turned mainly on acting performances which were "in dead earnest," Off-Broadway's current production of "The Innocents," based on Henry James' famous short story "The Turn of the Screw," would be a fantastic success.

The players—Kathleen Hansel (Flora), Wilma Le Moine (Mrs. Grose), Ramona Sosic (Miss Giddens) and John Neilsen (Miles) — performed at Friday night's poorly attended opening as if their lives depended on the results. Those lovely "innocents," the children Hansel and Neilsen, scaring the wits out of their governess, Miss Sosic, were particularly appealing in their roles.

However, unfortunately Mr. James' classic was primarily a psychological thriller, full of intriguing interiors, or fears in the mind, and thus called for in-depth portrayals.

• • • •

UNDER JERRY Anderson's routine direction, the current production glazes over the play's interior demands and amounts to little more than a mere "run-of-the-mell-er-drama" (pun intended, darn it!)

An excellent scene at the foot of the staircase in which the fear-ridden governess, Miss Sosic helps the boy Miles reject the evil ghost-like influence of the valet, Peter Quint, shows what could be accomplished if the play had consistently reached for more depth.

If memory serves me right, the current production is from the adaptation of James' story by the Trinidad-born writer, William Archibald. The program makes a serious omission: his name appears nowhere.

"Innocents" will continue weekends through March 6.

Voskovec Signed

Broadway character George Voskovec has been cast in the pivotal role of the East German defense attorney in "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold." The film stars Richard Burton and Claire Bloom.

'INNOCENTS' AT OFF-BROADWAY

An Earnest Acting Job

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

If the success of a play turned mainly on acting performances which were "in dead earnest," Off-Broadway's current production of "The Innocents," based on Henry James' famous short story "The Turn of the Screw," would be a fantastic success.

The players—Kathleen Hansel (Flora), Wilma Le Moine (Mrs. Grose), Ramona Sosic (Miss Giddens) and John Neilsen (Miles) — performed at Friday night's poorly attended opening as if their lives depended on the results. Those lovely "innocents," the children Hansel and Neilsen, scaring the wits out of their governess, Miss Sosic, were particularly appealing in their roles.

However, unfortunately Mr. James' classic was primarily a psychological thriller, full of intriguing interiors, or fears in the mind, and thus called for in-depth portrayals.

* * * *

UNDER JERRY Anderson's routine direction, the current production glazes over the play's interior demands and amounts to little more than a mere "run-of-the-mell-er-drama" (pun intended, darn it!)

An excellent scene at the foot of the staircase in which the fear-ridden governess, Miss Sosic helps the boy Miles reject the evil ghost-like influence of the valet, Peter Quint, shows what could be accomplished if the play had consistently reached for more depth.

If memory serves me right, the current production is from the adaptation of James' story by the Trinidad-born writer, William Archibald. The program makes a serious ommission: his name appears nowhere.

"Innocents" will continue weekends through March 6.

Members of the specially trained, 70-man field auditing staff of the Audit Bureau of Circulations* make regular call on 2,900 publications . . . ours included . . . located in almost as many places.

The ABC auditor's call might last a day, a week, or even several months . . . just as long as it takes him to make a complete audit of our circulation records and obtain the information about our circulation audience that ABC will later publish.

Actually, he is working for you—our readers and our advertisers. Knowing full well that we will stay in business only so long as our publication continues to serve the interests of our readers, this audit of our paid circulation provides us with a regular and objective review of how well you think we are doing.

Knowing full well that sales messages must reach a responsive audience in order to be effective, our advertisers are also interested in the ABC auditor's call. The hard, and sometimes cold, facts he reports about our circulation provide you with an informed basis for investing your advertising money.

Yes, the ABC auditor has been here . . . and he will be here again calling to check on how well we are doing our job and to provide the facts to help us and our advertisers do even better.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

This publication is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited by experienced ABC field auditors. Our ABC report shows how much circulation we have, where it goes, how obtained, and other facts that tell you what you get for your advertising money when you use this publication.

EXCLUSIVE SALES AGENTS

Members of the specially trained, 70-man field auditing staff of the Audit Bureau of Circulations* make regular call on 2,900 publications . . . ours included . . . located in almost as many places.

The ABC auditor's call might last a day, a week, or even several months . . . just as long as it takes him to make a complete audit of our circulation records and obtain the information about our circulation audience that ABC will later publish.

Actually, he is working for you—our readers and our advertisers. Knowing full well that we will stay in business only so long as our publication continues to serve the interests of our readers, this audit of our paid circulation provides us with a regular and objective review of how well you think we are doing.

Knowing full well that sales messages must reach a responsive audience in order to be effective, our advertisers are also interested in the ABC auditor's call. The hard, and sometimes cold, facts he reports about our circulation provide you with an informed basis for investing your advertising money.

Yes, the ABC auditor has been here . . . and he will be here again calling to check on how well we are doing our job and to provide the facts to help us and our advertisers do even better.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

This publication is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited by experienced ABC field auditors. Our ABC report shows how much circulation we have, where it goes, how obtained, and other facts that tell you what you get for your advertising money when you use this publication.

By BOB SANDERS

It was Feb. 22 Washington's Birthday, 1907. These were the headlines.

The Long Beach Bathhouse, the biggest indoor swimming (bathing in those days) pool west of Chicago, was five years old and preparing for another big season.

It's different now.

Washington's Birthday — Monday — this year marks the last day for the huge structure, now known as the Nu-Pike Plunge.

Tuesday, workmen will begin demolishing the mammoth concrete edifice to make way for a parking lot.

Clyde Seek, general manager of the Long Beach Amusement Co. which operated the plunge, says increasing use of home and other pools, extremely high maintenance and operating costs and the inevitable bugaboo of taxes at the plunge, sounded the death call.

Before taxes and home pools.—a long time ago—things were different.

The Long Beach Bathouse was opened in Augest, 1902, simultaneously with the advent of the Big Red Cars in Long Beach.

The story goes that on opening day the Pacific Electric's big cars brought thousands of people to Long Beach, so many in fact that accommodations were not available and hundreds had to sleep on the beach.

Originally the bathhouse contained 485 private dressing rooms (200 more were added a few years later.) 22 hot salt tub baths, a separate 40 by 60 foot pool exclusively for ladies in addition to the big 60 by 120 foot tank used by both men and women.

Early ads extolled the virtues of water "changed daily" and heated to a constant 83 degrees.

A long underground tunnel connected the bathhouse with the beach so that early-day patrons could run out to the beach, bathe in the ocean if they were hardy souls and then return to luxuriate in the hot salt baths or splash in one of the two indoor saltwater pools (later converted to fresh water.)

Several West Coast "firsts" are believed to have been established at the Long Beach Bathhouse. Among them were the first bowling alleys, constructed as part of the original building, and the forerunner of the modern lifeguard, then billed as "Swimming Masters in Constant Attendance."

Also, one of the first beauty contests was held on an eight-foot raised platform along the front of the bathhouse in 1925, attracting more than 300 girls and nobody knows how many watchers.

It was remodelled in 1924, when the two pools were combined into the big 60 by 160 foot present one and the wooden roof girders converted to steel, and in 1949 when it was made into its present state.

More than four generations of kids, depending on how you count generations of kids, learned to swim there. Many of those first "kids" aren't around any more, and others are in their late 50s and 60s.

Only a very few can remember the Grand Opening of the Season May 20, 1905, when the ads in the local press heralded such things as:

"Weird and Mystifying Exhibition of Mind Reading by Mlle. Chapman.

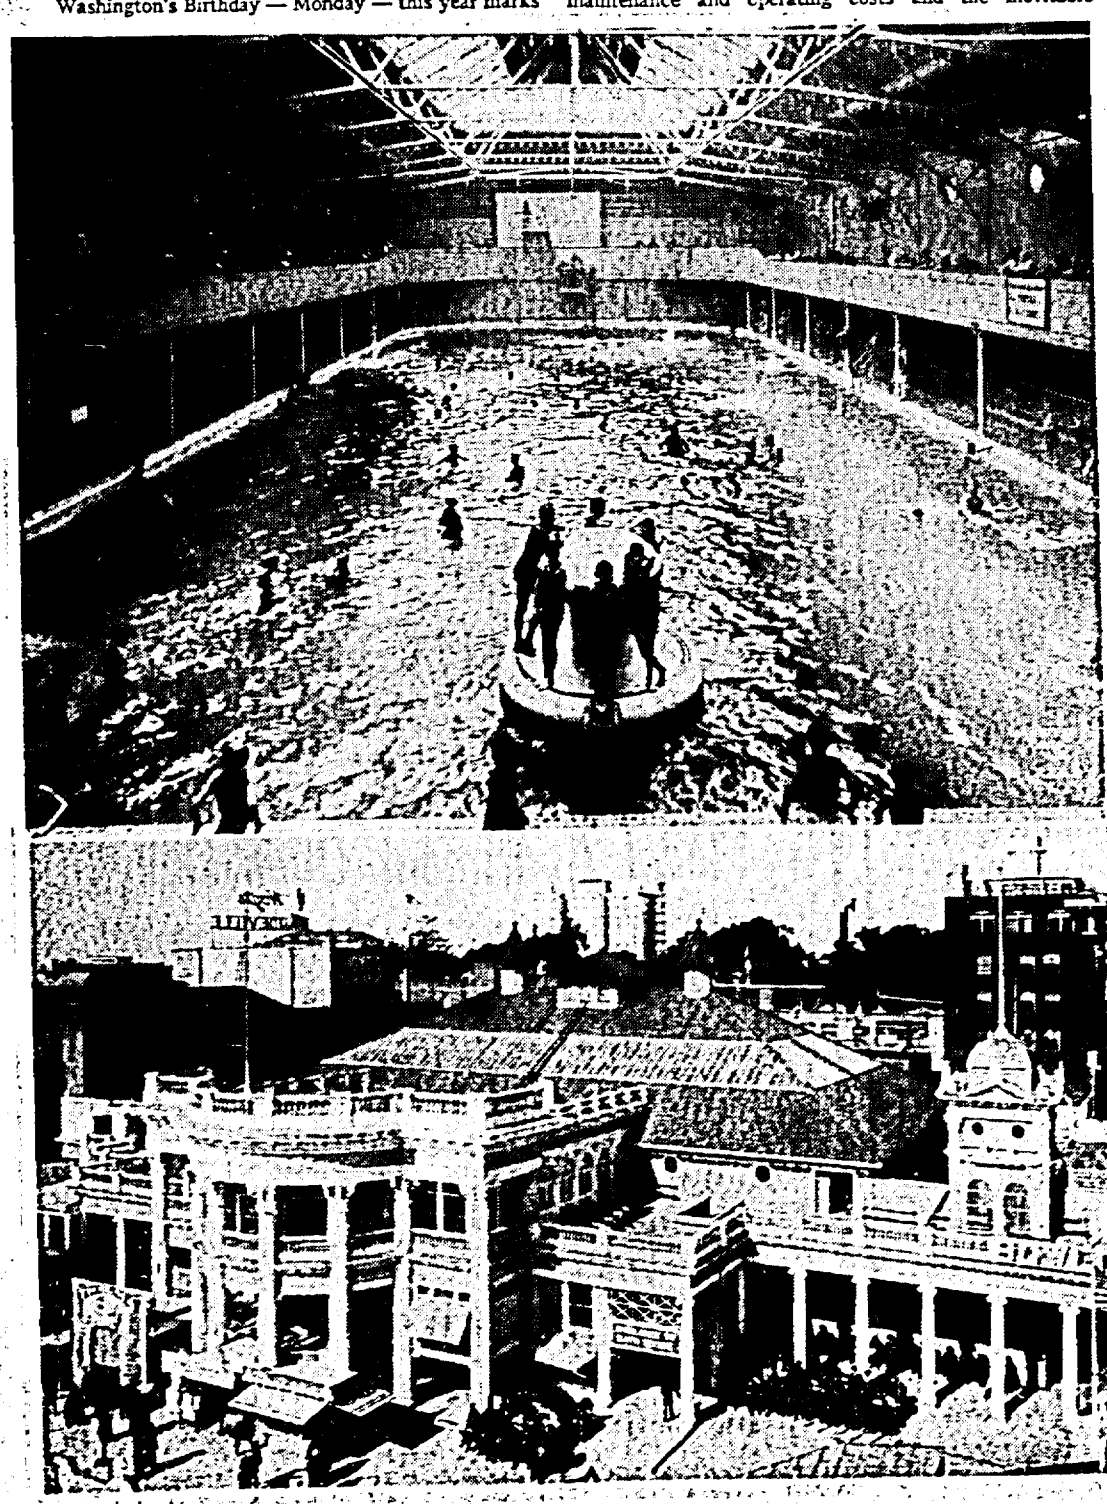

"High Dive of 90 Feet from the Arch of Bathhouse by Senor Dropus, High Diver to the Court of Portugal.

"Men's, Women's, Boys' and Girls' Swimming Races.

Concert by the Long Beach Marine Band, and

"Balloon Ascension by Prof. Haddock, 'King of the Air.'"

Prof. Haddock was unable to make his ascension that day because of high winds but the management of the bathhouse recouped nicely by billing a "double balloon ascension" (one at 10 a.m. and the other at 2 p.m.) for the following day, May 21. Whether it came off or not no one ever reported.

In photo at upper left, children play on fountain at shallow end of mammoth pool (1930's). A picture of gigantic plunge taken some years later shows general view of both house and downtown area behind it (photo lower left). In later years other Pike buildings began to grow up around the old plunge (photo above), like the pillow store which was erected in front of entrance.

Top Potential Seen for L. B. Within 25 Years

"Within the next 25 years Long Beach will be the greatest and most tremendous city in the West," Elmer S. Nelson, veteran economist and business consultant, told members of the Long Beach Apartment House Association at their February meeting last week.

"No city on the Pacific Coast, outside of San Francisco, is so well located, has such potential and tremendous advantages going for it as Long Beach," declared Nelson, now of Redlands, but for 44 years a leading California and national economist at Los Angeles and Washington, D.C.

* * * *

"YOU PEOPLE living here will be astounded within even five to 10 years from now with what will develop in this city and its immediate area. Your problem will be to adjust to the vast development and your job will be to help provide the leadership and proper city government administration to expedite it," Nelson asserted.

While oil is playing a big part in the development in this area, "water is the golden fluid that binds your city here to the Southern part of our State and makes Long Beach the vortex of the huge economic and population explosion in the Southland," he said.

* * * *

"IT WON'T BE LONG," Nelson continued, "when from Point Loma to Carmel there will be a string of modern plants — using not oil but nuclear energy to convert salt water in the billions of gallons into palatable and usable clear water — for use in developing more electrical energy.

For some 200 years the nation and the West here depended upon natural resources, the economist continued; but now science, education and industry must and have taken the lead to provide things through new and necessary modern methods for the exploding population.

Cities in many places are beginning to change their characteristics and this is inspired by wise commercial vision as well as municipal necessity, Nelson said. This is especially true for Long Beach, he added.

* * * *

YOUR CITY here happens to be in the direct line — the strategic vortex —of the greatest change in history. Your business and city government officials have the greatest challenge, the greatest opportunity and the greatest responsibility to help adjust and make the vast changes a reality.

"You and your city here are faced now with how you will adjust and handle the great things that are happening and will occur in your city."

In addition, the club sponsors more than 40 individual clubs and athletic teams, an annual blood drive and the Give Once (GO) Club, AiResearch emplyes' combined charity fund.

New Alpha Market to Open Tuesday in L.B.

NEW MARKET AT 7TH STREET AND NEBRASKA AVE.

Alpha Beta Acme Markets, Inc., has returned to Long Beach. With opening on Tuesday of a 21,000 sq. ft. supermarket at Seventh Street and Nebraska Avenue, the 115-store chain—which traces its origins back to the opening of a small grocery store in Pomona in 1910—resumes service to Long Beach customers after an absence of a little over a year.

First Long Beach Alpha Beta Market opened on Pacific Avenue in 1938. It was closed in 1950. A second store, at 2189 Lakewood Blvd., served the area for 20 years before being closed in early 1964.

• • • •

SINCE THAT TIME the nearest Alpha Beta store in this area has been the one at 6436 E. Spring St., Lakewood, which recently was remodeled.

Alpha Beta's Seventh Street supermarket, highlighted by new materials, new ideas and use of bright colors, offers such customer conveniences as a 72 foot self-service fresh meats section linked to a 20 foot frozen meats display case. Across from the meat department, fresh produce is featured on two 30 foot dry cases and a 76 foot refrigerated case. A complete line of frozen foods is carried in two 76 foot cases.

• • • •

A NOVEL FEATURE of the store is a 20 foot air curtain dairy case which keeps milk, butter, fruit juices and other dairy products in perfect condition by a curtain of low velocity, chilled air.

Don Bonebrake is supervisor of the new store. He grew up in the area. He attended Starr King Elementary School, and was graduated from Brethren High School, Paramount, in 1955.

His career with Alpha Beta began in 1956, when he went to work as a produce department clerk in a store in Anaheim.

Prior to being promoted to the store supervisor's position for the Long Beach supermarket opening, Bonebrake was assigned as a produce specialist.

New Alpha Market to Open Tuesday in L.B.

NEW MARKET AT 7TH STREET AND NEBRASKA AVE.

Alpha Beta Acme Markets, Inc., has returned to Long Beach, With opening on Tuesday of a 21,000 sq. ft. supermarket at Seventh Street and Nebraska Avenue, the 115-store chain—which traces its origins back to the opening of a small grocery store in Pomona in 1910—resumes service to Long Beach customers after an absence of a little over a year.

First Long Beach Alpha Beta Market opened on Pacific Avenue in 1938. It was closed in 1950. A second store, at 2189 Lakewood Blvd., served the area for 20 years before being closed in early 1964.

* * * *

SINCE THAT TIME the nearest Alpha Beta store in this area has been the one at 6436 E. Spring St., Lakewood, which recently was remodeled.

Alpha Beta's Seventh Street supermarket, highlighted by new materials, new ideas and use of bright colors, offers such customer conveniences as a 72 foot self-service fresh meats section linked to a 20 foot frozen meats display case. Across from the meat department, fresh produce is featured on two 30 foot dry cases and a 76 foot refrigerated case. A complete line of frozen foods is carried in two 76 foot cases.

* * * *

A NOVEL FEATURE of the store is a 20 foot air curtain dairy case which keeps milk, butter, fruit juices and other dairy products in perfect condition by a curtain of low velocity, chilled air.

Don Bonebrake is supervisor of the new store. He grew up in the area. He attended Starr King Elementary School, and was graduated from Brethren High School, Paramount, in 1955.

His career with Alpha Beta began in 1956, when he went to work as a produce department clerk in a store in Anaheim.

Prior to being promoted to the store supervisor's position for the Long Beach supermarket opening, Bonebrake was assigned as a produce specialist.

COMMUNITY CLUBHOUSE IS POOLSIDE
Costa Mesa's French Quarter residents have a large poolside clubhouse with card table setups provided. They also have playgrounds provided for kids.

Costa Mesa French Quarter Town Houses in Big Demand

One week after its grand opening, half the residences in Costa Mesa's French Quarter Town Houses have already been sold or reserved, this as a result of open house and pre-opening sales drives at the $1.5-million, 80-unit "common green" development, it is reported by Chuck Cox, vice-president of Henry C. Cox Co., the developers.

"Consequently, our grand opening, including visitor registration for a deluxe luggage set award, will be held again this weekend, and the 'complete package' sales program so instrumental in the success of our pre-opening drive, will continue to be offered," Cox declared.

The sales program was made possible by the fact the French Quarter, located off Harbor Blvd. north of Baker St., is Costa Mesa's first FHA-approved town house development.

• • • • •

"FRENCH QUARTER is the first development of its kind in this area built under the exacting FHA requirements, and qualifying for FHA insured loans of 5¼% with minimum down," Cox added. "So we are incorporating this low-cost financing in the 'complete package' sales program that makes ownership economically most attractive."

According to Cox, under this plan, a single monthly payment will cover principal and interest, mutual mortgage insurance, property taxes, and maintenance—including the big community pool, club house and recreation center, and all exterior maintenance and utilities.

• • • • •

"FOR THIS monthly payment—which can come to as little as $138.85 for a two-bedroom home—you get a grant deed and insured title, plus the 'complete package' of major appliances: A washer, dryer, refrigerator, dishwasher, and automatic garage door opener (all of which are normally extra-cost 'options'), as well as an electric built-in range and oven, carpets," Cox asserted.

Cox pointed out that the residences are spacious. Available in two, three, and four-bedroom models, with two or three baths, each residence has a 400 sq. ft. patio-garden—reputedly the largest individually-owned plot of land in a common green development in the Southland—and a double garage up to 500 sq. ft. in size.

Hawaii Business News Optimistic

Two recent announcements have substantially strengthened business optimism in Hawaii, according to the February Review of Business and Economic Conditions of the Bank of Hawaii.

The final night of the show, Sunday, Feb. 28, will see the awarding of The Lucerne, a two-bedroom, balanced power leisure home constructed by Lindal Homes Inc., a foremost builder of leisure homes. The home may be seen by Home-O-Rama visitors on the seaward side of the Arena. Anfinson said any adult may qualify to win the home merely by registering during the Home-O-Rama.

The Home-O-Rama will be open from 5 to 11 p.m. weeknights and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The group, noted nationwide for their singing and humor, were smash hits when they entertained Home-O-Rama crowds in 1962, Anfinson said.

The final night of the show, Sunday, Feb. 28, will see the awarding of The Lucerne, a two-bedroom, balanced power leisure home constructed by Lindal Homes Inc., a foremost builder of leisure homes. The home may be seen by Home-O-Rama visitors on the seaward side of the Arena, Anfinson said any adult may qualify to win the home merely by registering during the Home-O-Rama.

The Home-O-Rama will be open from 5 to 11 p.m. weeknights and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

HOME TO BE PRIZE

Construction is under way at the Long Beach Arena on The Lucerne, a $10,000 leisure home to be awarded during the five-day Long Beach Home-O-Rama which opens Wednesday. Examining plans are Tom McGowan (left), director of exhibits for Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Companies, and Ralph Dignan, vice president of Lindal Homes, which is constructing The Lucerne.

METROPOLITAN HOME LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

ATTRACTIVE SOL VISTA OFFERING
Visitors to Sol Vista California Home Fair's newest model home plaza are greeted by a striking sales pavilion. Surrounded by California native landscaping, a soothing reflection pool is dramatized by flame-lighted fountains.

Alco Pacific's Home Fair Display Appeals

A colorful home display is taking place in Huntington Beach where the Alco-Pacific Construction Co. is introducing their new California Home Fair. "Public response has been enthusiastic reports Baxter Caterson sales director. Better than 50% of the first unit has been sold within two weeks of the official opening."

The builders at Alco-Pacific point out over two years were spent developing the five model homes for the type of life Californians desire. "Relaxed living is the goal of people in the Southland," they added. Homes that make gardens and terraces, atriums and patios an integral part of the design provide the most efficient means of enjoying indoor/outdoor living.

• • • •

THE THREE, four and five-bedroom homes make especially good use of a family room with easy serving access to the kitchen. Sliding glass doors lead onto covered terraces and outdoor patios. Low overhanging roofs and centered atriums capture the sunlight yet give protection for California's long, sunny days.

Prices range from $29,550 to $35,200 including an exceptional list of premium features: Full attic insulation, weather-stripping, hand-split shake, shingle or colored rock roofs, concrete driveways, walks, porches and patios. In every home, California products have been used extensively.

The sales pavilion and model home plaza carry the originals. Inside the pavilion is an interesting product display with a telephone planned center and working kitchen in exact detail. Adjacent to the pavilion, a decorating studio staffed with professional consultants offer color and design advice to homebuyers.

Visitors may visit the sales pavilion and model home plaza daily at 16661 Beach Blvd. in Huntington Beach.

Garden Park Homes Are Ideally Located

IN GARDEN PARK ESTATE
Attractive used-brick ceiling-high fireplace is featured at Garden Park homes in Garden Grove.

Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove are located in the very center of California's famed garden spot, according to a spokesman for the builders, S & S Construction Co.

The garden spot offers close proximity to the beaches and yacht harbors, fine entertainment and tourist attractions such as Knott's Berry Farm and fabulous Disneyland — where international relations were slightly strained by Russia's Mr. Khrushchev who was upset when he wasn't allowed to visit.

Garden Park Estates offer three and four-bedroom homes in 34 exterior designs, eight floor plans, and one and two-story models.

• • • •

AMONG the features at Garden Park Estates are thermostatically-controlled forced-air heating, built-in gas ranges, hood and exhaust fan in matching colors, pullman lavatories in the baths, and a fireplace in living or family room.

Schools, churches and shopping areas are nearby, and two neighboring colleges, Long Beach State and U of California, at Irvine offer higher education.

Garden Park homes are priced from $21,700 to $28,400.

Visitors may reach Garden Park by taking Bellflower off-ramp from San Diego Freeway south to 7th Street, then left out 7th Street and Garden Grove Freeway to Knott Ave. and the models.

FHA Quality Control Lauded by Builder of Premier Homes

William Rousey, builder of Premier Homes in Huntington Beach, say that homebuyers have confidence in the quality of a home meeting FHA requirements. "Particularly in areas of a home which the buyer cannot easily see, FHA standards provide a basic quality control that benefits homeowners," he adds.

Builder Rousey emphasized that FHA requirements are strict and uncompromising. Each step of the construction is thoroughly inspected by an FHA inspector before the builder can go on with the next. Rousey said that these inspections by a "Federal agency that virtually represents the future buyer of the home ensure that the home meets the most exacting quality standards in the United States."

The Homes are priced from $23,400 with one loan and no second trust deeds. A one-year written warranty assures the Premier buyer of prompt professional attention to any work required.

"Custom extras" include atrium-type entries, roof guttering all around and a fully-finished "Premium Area" — a bonus room with plumbing roughed-in for a third bath or wet bar. The Premium Area can be used for extra bedrooms and a bath, at the option of the buyer.

PREMIER Homes are available in three and four bedroom models, with two baths. The FHA-guaranteed construction is one aspect of the "4 Ways Better" package at Premier. Kitchens, extra custom features and pricing are the additional three ways in which Premier is held to be "better."

Visitors take the San Diego Freeway to Bolsa Chica Road and drive south on Bolsa Chica to Warner Ave., then left on Warner to Springdale and Premier Homes.

NORWALK MANOR HOME
Sunlight streams into the cheerful, two-story manor homes in Norwalk Manor, Ray Watt's new $7,000,000 family condominium of 303 homes, on Bloomfield south of Imperial in Norwalk.

John Bollinger, who directed the sales of 600 Scottsdale Town Houses, has been named the R. A. Watt, Inc., Sales Manager of the Year for 1964, R. A. Watt announced.

Bollinger, a veteran member of the 70-man Watt sales staff, was responsible for the sales of more than $10,000,000.00 in condominium units as Scottsdale Townhouses, Los Angeles County's largest family condominium development, set new all-time sales records.

The Long Beach resident was presented an engraved plaque emblematic of the corporation's highest administrative sales honor as one of the highlights of the annual sales dinner meeting held recently.

• • • •

WATT SAID that the competition for the top citation was keener than ever before, as the company enjoyed its best ever sales year in 1964.

"Bollinger's leadership ability was shown many times during the 12-month period when over 500 condominium homes were sold, and the new condominium concept was being introduced for the first time in the Harbor area. His concern for the buyers was most evident, as over 35% of the sales came from referrals of satisfied residents," Watt said.

Bollinger presently is serving as director of sales for the new 303-family Norwalk Manor condominium, where more than 100 homes have been sold since the formal opening in September. Previously he was sales director for single family developments in La Mirada, Westminster and Covina. He lives with his wife at 1132 Glady's Ave. in Long Beach.

FLYING SQUADS of volunteers, as determined as jet fighters in action, will attack the nation's No. 1 killer, heart disease, this week as they go on all-out raid for funds for Long Beach Heart Association. With plane and flying paraphernalia for props, campaigners are (from left) Mmes. William G. Rhorer, Brewster Gray, president of Heart League; Robert Lintz, annual heart tea chairman, and Dave Becker, general heart campaign chairman.

SKY'S THE LIMIT

Heart Drive Takes Off This Week

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P-T Society Editor

There are expressions that imply genteel pleasantry—words like silver donation tea. Then there are words that conjure aggressive, needed action—words like "flying squads."

Occasionally they go together, hand in glove. This is true now as Heart Month comes to a conclusion. Dedicated volunteers of the Heart Association will use everything from smart socializing to door-to-door "flying squad" tactics to raise funds to fight heart disease.

The 14th Annual Heart Tea given by the Women's Heart League takes place Wednesday in the charming Spanish-style home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Barnett, 4045 Virginia Road. Socially smart? Yes. Smart business-wise? You bet.

NEXT SUNDAY the fund campaign reaches a peak with the door-to-door solicitation of funds. Under chairmanship of Mrs. H. C. Hartzel, over 2,000 volunteers will personally canvass residences of the area. Special squads will call on from 15 to 25 homes each.

Volunteers will leave an envelope at homes where there is no answer; these may be filled with a contribution and mailed to the Long Beach Heart Fund.

"In determining the size of your gift, remember you are giving for every heart you love; heart disease is a family problem. It affects young children, teen-agers, young adults, middle-aged breadwinners and senior citizens. So give generously," stated Mrs. Hartzell.

Returning to the Heart Tea, Mrs. Robert H. Lintz is chairman. Some 600 guests will enjoy the hospitality of the Barnetts and will reciprocate with voluntary silver offerings. Leading socialites and community leaders (so often they are one and the same) will tarry for refreshments at a table done in Spanish mood, with wrought iron candelabra flanked by graceful, abundant arrangements of apricot carnations.

Besides Mmes. Barnett and Lintz, Mrs. Brewster Gray, president of the Heart League, and members of the Heart Association board will greet guests.

Asked to assist at the tea table have been Mrs. Edwin Wade, wife of the mayor; Mrs. John Mansell, wife of the city manager; also Mmes. Lloyd Whaley, Ed Shaheen and George Taubman Jr., the latter three immediate past tea hostesses.

Others on the tea committee are Mmes. Wes Horton, William G. Rhorer, Walter Crawford, J. Roscoe Howell, Earl Lundhigh, Gus A. Walker, Francis J. Heusel, Harry Newton, Harvey Hartzell and Miss Beatrice L. Hughes — familiar names to a huge segment of Long Beach, because these are women prominent in the news . . . prominent because they never say no when asked to do a job for good of their city.

As important as the contribution of each of these however, is you contribution. Give from your heart FOR your heart.

Does Your Wife Look Like This?

If not, she's lagging behind the new TV image of the American housewife. Once the reigning wife of videoland was matter-of-fact and motherly. No more. The new image, ranging from chicly chipper to downright witchy, suggests there may be a lot more than stew cooking in the kitchen. What's caused the switch from homey to hep screen homemakers? Hollywood correspondent Dick Kleiner analyzed the new TV breed of housewives—asked them about their lives on screen and off. His findings? You can read them in a three-part series beginning on Page W-3.

Black and White Ball Breaks Out in Color

Decision to convert traditional Symphony Junior Black and White Ball into color led to a decision (the kind women like best) of another kind: "What to Wear?". Visiting Parisienne, Mrs. William Lebold, ball chairman, wears a Werle, muses over a Mignon with help of Mrs. Courtney Trostle. Colorful black tie affair premieres at 9 p.m. Saturday at Newporter Inn, Newport Beach, with dancing to Roger Bacon's Orchestra. Proceeds will support performances in Long Beach by Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Assisting Mrs. Lebold on ball committee are Mmes. Robert Porter, Carl Healy, Donald Ewing and Raymond Hill.

FLYING SQUADS of volunteers, as determined as jet fighters in action, will attack the nation's No. 1 killer, heart disease, this week as they go on all-out raid for funds for Long Beach Heart Association. With plane and flying paraphernalia for props, campaigners are (from left) Mmes. William G. Rhorer, Brewster Gray, president of Heart League; Robert Lintz, annual heart tea chairman, and Dave Becker, general heart campaign chairman.

Heart Drive Takes Off This Week

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P-T Society Editor

There are expressions that imply genteel pleasantry—words like silver donation tea. Then there are words that conjure aggressive, needed action—words like "flying squads."

Occasionally they go together, hand in glove. This is true now as Heart Month comes to a conclusion. Dedicated volunteers of the Heart Association will use everything from smart socializing to door-to-door "flying squad" tactics to raise funds to fight heart disease.

The 14th Annual Heart Tea given by the Women's Heart League takes place Wednesday in the charming Spanish-style home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Barnett, 4045 Virginia Road. Socially smart? Yes. Smart business-wise? You bet.

NEXT SUNDAY the fund campaign reaches a peak with the door-to-door solicitation of funds. Under chairmanship of Mrs. H. C. Hartzel, over 2,000 volunteers will personally canvass residences of the area. Special squads will call on from 15 to 25 homes each.

Volunteers will leave an envelope at homes where there is no answer; these may be filled with a contribution and mailed to the Long Beach Heart Fund.

"In determining the size of your gift, remember you are giving for every heart you love; heart disease is a family problem. It affects young children, teen-agers, young adults, middle aged breadwinners and senior citizens. So give generously," stated Mrs. Hartzell.

Returning to the Heart Tea, Mrs. Robert H. Lintz is chairman. Some 600 guests will enjoy the hospitality of the Barnetts and will reciprocate with voluntary silver offerings. Leading socialites and community leaders (so often they are one and the same) will tarry for refreshments at a table done in Spanish mood, with wrought iron candelabra flanked by graceful, abundant arrangements of apricot carnations.

Besides Mmes. Barnett and Lintz, Mrs. Brewster Gray, president of the Heart League, and members of the Heart Association board will greet guests.

Asked to assist at the tea table have been Mrs. Edwin Wade, wife of the mayor; Mrs. John Mansell, wife of the city manager; also Mmes. Lloyd Whaley, Ed Shaheen and George Taubman Jr., the latter three immediate past tea hostesses.

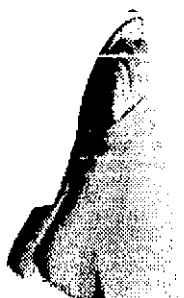

Others on the tea committee are Mmes. Wes Horton, William G. Rhorer, Walter Crawford, J. Roscoe Howell, Earl Lundhigh, Gus A. Walker, Francis J. Heusel, Harry Newton, Harvey Hartzell and Miss Beatrice L. Hughes — familiar names to a huge segment of Long Beach, because these are women prominent in the news . . . prominent because they never say no when asked to do a job for good of their city.

As important as the contribution of each of these however, is you contribution. Give from your heart FOR your heart.

Does Your Wife Look Like This?

If not, she's lagging behind the new TV image of the American housewife. Once the reigning wife of videoland was matter-of-fact and motherly. No more. The new image, ranging from chicly chipper to downright witchy, suggests there may be a lot more than stew cooking in the kitchen. What's caused the switch from homey to hep screen homemakers? Hollywood correspondent Dick Kleiner analyzed the new TV breed of housewives—asked them about their lives on screen and off. His findings? You can read them in a three-part series beginning on Page W-3.

Black and White Ball Breaks Out in Color

Decision to convert traditional Symphony Junior Black and White Ball into color led to a decision (the kind women like best) of another kind: "What to Wear?" Visiting Parisienne, Mrs. William Lebold, ball chairman, wears a Werle, muses over a Mignon with help of Mrs. Courtney Trostle. Colorful black tie affair premieres at 9 p.m. Saturday at Newporter Inn, Newport Beach, with dancing to Roger Baron's Orchestra. Proceeds will support performances in Long Beach by Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Assisting Mrs. Lebold on ball committee are Mmes. Robert Porter, Carl Healy, Donald Ewing and Raymond Hill.

Femmes Fill Freeways—Sig Alert!

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

MEN ON freeways this week—from big, burly truck drivers to business executive types, wheeling and dealing in air-conditioned comfort—looked, gasped and quickly maneuvered out of the way. What caused them to turn pale, skitter toward the nearest offramp? Hundreds of cars filled all freeways leading into Los Angeles and all were inhabited by bunches of smartly hatted, chatting women, like the foursome seen below, from left, Helen (Mrs. Perry) Rutherford, Ellen (Mrs. Harry) Landis at the wheel, and in the back, Gwenna (Mrs. Robert) Blackmore and Ina (Mrs. Willard) Harris. Like 1600 other Southern California women, they were headed for LA's Ambassador Hotel and Kappa Alpha Theta's swank bi-annual fashion benefit.

On the day freeways were filled with femininity.

It required both the hotel's Embassy Room and famed Cocoanut Grove to handle this chic volume of luncheon business.

Long Beach Kappa Theta Alumnae, lead by president Ellen Landis, was one of chapters sponsoring giant party. Among women, alums and guests present from here were Adra Kober and her mother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Paul Merrill and Elore (Mrs. Paul) Merrill Jr., Mrs. Kimball Walker, wife of the mayor of Bellflower, Mary Brooks, Carolyn Raney and her mother, Mrs. George Graffis, Jackie Hughes, Marcia Ellis, Ginny Hall, Kay Roggeveen.

Also (well, gee whiz, there were a lot) Dorothy Nagle, Margaret Whittemore, Dottie Grant, Bev Henderson and Joanne Dummit. Long Beach Children's Psychiatric Clinic will be among good causes to benefit from big fashion splurge featuring 72 ensembles from California designers.

NOT THAT I want to make a federal case out of this Theta soiree, but it was fun and among others talked to was Norma (Mrs. Frazer) Merritt. Norma told me something interesting. Daughter Marcia is a freshman at University of Utah. A Poly grad and promising ballet student (she studied for 13 years), she went to U of Utah because "it has the BEST," said Norma, "bar none, academic programs for dance majors" and has been richly endowed by the Ford Foundation for this program. U of U has its own ballet company—very top-notch.

GAY-HEARTED party last night at the desert ranch of Mara and Doug Graham and fizzes plus brunch today as the Grahams again entertain at a party at Eldorado Country Club, Palm Desert, in honor of Virginia and Roy McConkey of Shelton, Wash.

Mrs. McConkey is the former Virginia Bass, so well-known here and in Apple Valley. She and Roy have been vacationing at the Thunderbird near Palm Springs for the past six weeks.

IN THE CLASS of 1914 graduating from the Stout Institute, Wisconsin, were seven girls who vowed they would keep in touch with each other always by means of "round-robin" letters. For 51 years the "round-robins" have been making the rounds with letters exchanged at least six times a year. Now the five remaining vow-makers are having a California reunion—the first since that day in 1914. It is taking place in the home of Leta and Royce Donkle, where his mother, Marie, of Ft. Atkinson, Wis., is house-guesting for the winter.

Other Stout girls (that refers to their alma mater; heaven forbid letting that word sneak in as an adjective) are Mmes. Mary Mellen of Manitowac, Wis., Mary Eva Williams, San Diego, Mary Jakway, Alhambra, and Mildred Chambers of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. Chambers arrived from Massachusetts by plane, Mrs. Mellen arrived by train and the others took to Southern California freeways for trek.

Leta and Royce planned to get right out of the house and leave it to the girls. They're spending this weekend at a golf resort during grand reunion.

ADDING glamour to the Kahala Hilton on Oahu these days is Dolores (Mrs. Jack) Abramson, native of Long Beach we're proud to quickly point out. Dolores, whose husband is chief steward of the SS Lurline, has been appointed social director of the swank hostelry blueprinted by our famous local architects, Ed Killingsworth, Jules Brady and Waugh Smith (who was still with firm at designing now is in Hawaii). All told, it makes the whole thing a Long Beach success story.

L. B. success story all the way.

Dolores went to the Kahala after two years as social director of Hawaiian Village; before that was s.d. of the Lurline for two years.

SOME CALL it madness, but they think it's great. Off for Rancho La Puerta in Tecate, Baja, Calif., for a health kick this weekend (from Friday until next Tuesday) went Virginia and Eric Laddey, Louise Millspaugh, Diane and Raymond Hester. Rancho features a vegetarian diet (they lost me on that one), exercise, steam baths, massage treatments and nice, long up-hill and down-dale hikes and—puff, puff, ain't it great to get in shape?

FAR AS Mary Berry (left below) of Long Beach and Goldie Montgomery of Anaheim are concerned, it's the most sea-seasonal time of the year. The two are camera glimpsed in their stateroom on the SS President Roosevelt just before the ship's horn sounded out across San Francisco Bay and they and liner departed for cruise of the Orient.

Yokohama, Hong Kong, Tokyo—here they come.

WISHING that all their vacation days were still mananas are Velma and Gene Graven, who just returned to their home on Rivo Alto Canal after a tremendous hunting and fishing vacation in Mexico. They went after sailfish and marlin off Mazatlan where, say the Gravens, "the big ones are breaking all records." Although they took their camper down to haul guns, rods and reels, they stayed in comfort at Hotel de Cima in Mazatlan. Gene caught (and released) a 168-pound marlin but Velma, although she had a big one on the hook, didn't get it boatside.

Then they went to Los Mochis for hunting. They both bagged unbelievable numbers of duck, dove and speckled geese. These they froze, brought back in that handy camper for wonderful meals to come.

NOW SURROUNDED by real icicles, here's hoping June and Maury Donnelly, who jetted off for Orchard Lake, Mich., with their four children, are keeping warm by the fervor of the send-off close friends gave them prior to departure.

For instance, Dolores and Willis Kerr feted the long-time residents, now gone, at a great going-away cocktail and dinner party. Icicles on the door at Kerrs' Long Beach home were pure fake, of course, as were the other "deep freeze" decorations used inside to spoof and chill honorees. June and Maury and children—Mike, Joan, Steven and Jamie—went that-a-way because Dad was transferred to Michigan as executive research engineer for his firm, Bickers Company.

Among those toasting departees en route for the Sovereign State of Brrrr were Mary and Harry Cornwall, Janet and Ross Bigelow, Hellon and Marian Wilkerson, Elva and Wilford Martin, Jan and Jack Eipper, Mary and Bill Welch, Pat and Val Granz.

THE YOUNG INDIVIDUALISTS

Spring Style: in the 'Mod'

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

THE ENGLISH HAVE A WORD for it: "Mod" . . . and Buffums' will translate it for the teenage set and moms during informal modeling Monday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., in downtown store's Young California Shop . . . also during luncheon in Terrace Room. At left, Ruth Arterberry, Buffums' careerist, wears a short version of the British Mod with empire styling, lace sleeves.

LINDA SCOTT, another Buffums' careerist, models the long look in Mod styles, inspired by a new rush of Bright Young People in Britain who, weary of conforming with "what's in," went out—to thrift shops, yet—and put together some crazy mixed-up looks that have inspired designers on both sides of the ocean. To complete Mod mood, a baby doll cap—and white textured hose. Styles shown were created by Arpeja of California and will be shown, along with other Mod styles, at Buffums' show Monday.

"I WISH I HAD A FAMILY LIKE OTHER KIDS."

BUREAU ADOPTS EASIER RULES---

Orphans Increase; Mamas Wanted

By JUDY HAZLETT

"Mommy, mommy . . ."

A small child cries out in the night. Perhaps she needs the comforting sound of her mother's voice after a bad dream . . . a compassionate embrace if she's ill . . . or just a reassuring word to let her know she's not alone.

In another room, the questioning look of a little boy demands an answer from his 'daddy who knows everything'—"who is God," he asks.

But what of the child without a mother or father? Who will give him a mother's tender love or a father's 'first hand knowledge'?

EACH YEAR thousands of children are left without families for one reason or another. Must they continue through life without the joy of brothers and sisters and the security of a real home?

These lonely children deserve all that life can give . . . and the opportunity has never been better for you to take a youngster into your home through adoption.

More babies are available, the waiting period is much shorter, requirements and qualifications are more sensible.

Previously, adoptions required undue waiting; even after the preliminary study, a couple often waited as long as two years before the final papers were signed and they could take their new child home.

"Love of children and a happy marriage are now the principal requirements for adopting families," says Walter A. Heath, director of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions.

"Contrary to what many people believe, most adoptive families today are average families with average incomes, living in average homes and apartments in average neighborhoods."

IN EARLIER years, there were not enough babies available for adoption to meet the demands of Caucasian families wanting children. So, the youngsters were in a way 'rationed' — only two to a family and only to couples who could not have children of their own.

As a consequence, the notion has lingered with many people that adopting a child is a difficult, frustrating process — encumbered with red tape and rigid requirements, also that only the rich could afford to adopt.

New adoption procedures are now encouraging couples who already have children of their own to adopt . . . even the working mother is eligible if there is an adequate plan for child care.

THE LARGE increase in the number of children available for placement by adoption agencies in recent years brought about the situation in which, according to Mr. Heath, there are as many babies now available as families seeking to adopt. In fact, approximately 10 babies are placed for adoption each working day.

As a result, adoption has been simplified from initial application to placement of a child, cutting the waiting time to a few months. Many families receive a child even more quickly, particularly those who desire a boy. Currently, more boys are available than girls.

With more babies, there is no longer any limit to the number of children, either natural or adopted, that a family can have. Also, the inability of a couple to have children of their own is no longer a prerequisite.

The age limit within which couples are generally thought to be most desirable as parents for an adopted baby has been extended to 45 years. Even older applicants are considered individually.

Savings accounts or jobs with high pay are not required, but a family must be able to live within its income.

IN 1964, the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions placed 2,008 babies and older children in adoptive homes. This is double the number placed in 1961.

More parents with children already in the family are adopting now. Example: couples who want a boy because they have all girls. Also more families are adopting more than one child. Not long ago, a family asked for and received their 12th child from the bureau.

One of the most noteworthy trends in the adoption picture is the crossing of racial boundaries.

Babies of full or part Oriental, Mexican, Korean, Filipino, Hawaiian, American Indian and similar backgrounds are being adopted by families of European descent. Most of these families simply love children and feel that every child is deserving of parents, say bureau officials.

Another development has been the adoption by Caucasian families of children of racial mixtures that include Negro. In 1964, there were 10 Caucasian-Negro babies placed with Caucasian families.

THE COUNTY Bureau of Adoptions maintains five district offices — including the Long Beach Bureau, headed by Miss Jean Selden.

The bureau, located at 453 W. 14th St., started with five case workers. Now more than 30 workers and 20 supervisory and clerical personnel work arduously to meet the demands for adoption services.

Some children are placed in adoptive homes when only a few days old, but most are given temporary care in foster homes.

"The most important adoption qualifications," Mr. Heath emphasized, "are love of children, a happy marriage, reasonably good health and a good outlook on life."

How about you? One of these children may be waiting for YOU to make his young life complete.

What greater reward could you seek than to tuck a youngster into bed at the end of a busy day and to hear a small voice say:

"I love you, mommy and daddy."

New League for Adoption

The Parents Adoption League, a newly formed organization, will hold its first meeting on Wednesday in John Burroughs Elementary School Auditorium, 1260 E. 33rd St.

With Mrs. Jane Russell Waterfield, actress, as special guest, a panel discussion, "The Adopted Family: Its Joys and Challenges," is planned for 8 p.m.

The league was created to inform the public of changes and trends in adoption, current attitudes toward adoption and the joys and challenges of the adoptive family.

"I WISH I HAD A FAMILY LIKE OTHER KIDS."

BUREAU ADOPTS EASIER RULES---

Orphans Increase; Mamas Wanted

By JUDY HAZLETT

"Mommy, mommy . . ."

A small child cries out in the night. Perhaps she needs the comforting sound of her mother's voice after a bad dream . . . a compassionate embrace if she's ill . . . or just a reassuring word to let her know she's not alone.

In another room, the questioning look of a little boy demands an answer from his 'daddy who knows everything'—"who is God," he asks.

But what of the child without a mother or father? Who will give him a mother's tender love or a father's 'first hand knowledge'?

EACH YEAR thousands of children are left without families for one reason or another. Must they continue through life without the joy of brothers and sisters and the security of a real home?

These lonely children deserve all that life can give . . . and the opportunity has never been better for you to take a youngster into your home through adoption.

More babies are available, the waiting period is much shorter, requirements and qualifications are more sensible.

Previously, adoptions required undue waiting; even after the preliminary study, a couple often waited as long as two years before the final papers were signed and they could take their new child home.

"Love of children and a happy marriage are now the principal requirements for adopting families," says Walter A. Heath, director of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions.

"Contrary to what many people believe, most adoptive families today are average families with average incomes, living in average homes and apartments in average neighborhoods."

IN EARLIER years, there were not enough babies available for adoption to meet the demands of Caucasian families wanting children. So, the youngsters were in a way 'rationed' — only two to a family and only to couples who could not have children of their own.

As a consequence, the notion has lingered with many people that adopting a child is a difficult, frustrating process — encumbered with red tape and rigid requirements, also that only the rich could afford to adopt.

New adoption procedures are now encouraging couples who already have children of their own to adopt . . . even the working mother is eligible if there is an adequate plan for child care.

THE LARGE increase in the number of children available for placement by adoption agencies in recent years brought about the situation in which, according to Mr. Heath, there are as many babies now available as families seeking to adopt. In fact, approximately 10 babies are placed for adoption each working day.

As a result, adoption has been simplified from initial application to placement of a child, cutting the waiting time to a few months. Many families receive a child even more quickly, particularly those who desire a boy. Currently, more boys are available than girls.

With more babies, there is no longer any limit to the number of children, either natural or adopted, that a family can have. Also, the inability of a couple to have children of their own is no longer a prerequisite.

The age limit within which couples are generally thought to be most desirable as parents for an adopted baby has been extended to 45 years. Even older applicants are considered individually.

Savings accounts or jobs with high pay are not required, but a family must be able to live within its income.

IN 1964, the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions placed 2,008 babies and older children in adoptive homes. This is double the number placed in 1961.

More parents with children already in the family are adopting now. Example: couples who want a boy because they have all girls. Also more families are adopting more than one child. Not long ago, a family asked for and received their 12th child from the bureau.

One of the most noteworthy trends in the adoption picture is the crossing of racial boundaries.

Babies of full or part Oriental, Mexican, Korean, Filipino, Hawaiian, American Indian and similar backgrounds are being adopted by families of European descent. Most of these families simply love children and feel that every child is deserving of parents, say bureau officials.

Another development has been the adoption by Caucasian families of children of racial mixtures that include Negro. In 1964, there were 10 Caucasian-Negro babies placed with Caucasian families.

THE COUNTY Bureau of Adoptions maintains five district offices — including the Long Beach Bureau, headed by Miss Jean Selden.

The bureau, located at 453 W. 14th St., started with five case workers. Now more than 30 workers and 20 supervisory and clerical personnel work arduously to meet the demands for adoption services.

Some children are placed in adoptive homes when only a few days old, but most are given temporary care in foster homes.

"The most important adoption qualifications," Mr. Heath emphasized, "are love of children, a happy marriage, reasonably good health and a good outlook on life."

How about you? One of these children may be waiting for YOU to make his young life complete.

What greater reward could you seek than to tuck a youngster into bed at the end of a busy day and to hear a small voice say:

"I love you, mommy and daddy."

New League for Adoption

The Parents Adoption League, a newly formed organization, will hold its first meeting on Wednesday in John Burroughs Elementary School Auditorium, 1260 E. 33rd St.

With Mrs. Jane Russell Waterfield, actress, as special guest, a panel discussion, "The Adopted Family: Its Joys and Challenges," is planned for 8 p.m.

The league was created to inform the public of changes and trends in adoption, current attitudes toward adoption and the joys and challenges of the adoptive family.

CWCS Tells Awards

By ELISE EMERY

California Water Color Society introduced a new system of judging for its first National Membership Exhibition now on view at Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery, 4800 Hollywood Blvd.

Traditionally, CWCS exhibitions are chosen by five-man juries. This year, each entrant submitted a single painting to represent his point of view. One hundred and forty two paintings were submitted. Then each member of the five-man jury made a personal choice for an award and, as a group, the jury selected the top prize winner.

This award went to Glenn Bradshaw of Urbana, Ill., for his painting, "Rubble." Other winners are Betty Rhodes Brown of Los Angeles, Keith Crown of Los Angeles, Walter Hook of Missoula, Mont., Gerd Koch of Ojai and Robert E. Wood of Green Valley Lake.

The exhibit will hang through March 7. Hours are 1 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

* * * *

CEEJE Galleries, 968 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles, reports a brisk sale of paintings by Joan Maffei, whose one-man show will continue through March 6.

Mrs. Maffei took her master's degree in fine arts at UCLA, then studied for an elementary teaching credential at California State College, Long Beach. With her husband, Gerald, and children 3, 18 months and 3 months, she lives at 424 Opal Cove Way, Seal Beach, and continues her painting. She describes her work as "figurative."

In the fall, the family will move to Berkeley where Gerald, an industrial design engineer, will study at UC for a degree in architecture.

* * * *

MEMBERS of Lakewood Art Association will take a new look at fellow-members Thursday when they meet at 7:30 p.m. in Mayfair Park Clubhouse.

Each member will exhibit a self-portrait. First, second and third prizes will be given in various categories. Judging will be done by the audience in secret ballot vote.

Association officers have announced that in the future work by members will be on display in the corridors of Lakewood General and Bellflower General hospitals.

* * * *

TO COMMEMORATE the 75th anniversary of the death of Vincent Van Gogh, Marymount College will offer an illustrated lecture in color Thursday at 8 p.m. in the student-faculty center auditorium on the Palos Verdes Estates campus. There will be a small admission charge.

Entitled "Van Gogh Country Revisited," the lecture will be presented by George Manitzas Jr. as an updated and expanded version of his original program, "Van Gogh Country," first given at Marymount in 1961. Basically, it is a pictorial biography of the celebrated Dutch artist's 37 years told through his paintings and drawings in more than 200 illustrations.

UCLA 'Ferment' Show Is Impeccably Chosen

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Years of Ferment, the Birth of Twentieth Century Art" at UCLA through March 7, sets forth with richness and clarity the movements from 1886 to 1914. The exhibit is a splendid job, impeccably chosen, logically hung, presented with exquisite scholarship.

The exhibit of 105 works was gathered from institutions and individuals all over the country. It is broken down into "The Predecessors," 1886-1890 (Cezanne, Gauguin, Van Gogh, etc.). "Art Nouveau," "Romantic Symbolism," "Pont Aven and the Nabis," "Fauvism," "Origins of Cubism," "Cubism," "Transition to Expressionism," and "Expressionism."

* * * *

EACH PERIOD is illustrated by works of the great painters, in sufficient depth to be meaningful. By each work is a quotation, either from the artist or by a contemporary critic, which epitomizes the meaning of the work. Artists include Picasso, Braque, Gris, Matisse, etc.

A major work is Henry Rousseau's "The Jungle: Tiger Attacking a Buffalo" in the painstaking primitive style which suggests the mystery of a dream world. Another landmark, Picasso's "Les Demosilles d'Avignon," 1907, represented in reproduction and by a small original sketch, is shown with an exhaustive study of analytical cubism.

* * * *

THERE IS a wealth of Paul Klee and Kandinsky; the latter's first non-objective painting in 1905 is generally credited with instigating abstract expressionism, that most controversial style which ruled, absolute, through the '50s. In this show, the introspection and violence of German expressionism is thoroughly covered.

The exhibit was conceived by Dr. Henri Dorra of the UCLA art faculty. His historical essay, illustrated, comprises the catalogue.

* * * *

ITS DEFINITIVE scholarship is presented in a style which is lively and enthralling. He tells us the framework of the society, particularly the literary movements, which surrounded the artists. We are told of the differences in technique, color and composition each artist contributed as well as personal anecdotes.

For many, the rapid growth and proliferation of art during these years is vague and confusing. "Years of Ferment" should enable anyone to grasp what they were and their significance to our time. Viewing hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

On Stage

TO COMMEMORATE the 75th anniversary of the death of Vincent Van Gogh, Marymount College will offer an illustrated lecture in color Thursday at 8 p.m. in the student-faculty center auditorium on the Palos Verdes Estates campus. There will be a small admission charge.

Entitled "Van Gogh Country Revisited," the lecture will be presented by George Manitzas Jr. as an updated and expanded version of his original program, "Van Gogh Country," first given at Marymount in 1961. Basically, it is a pictorial biography of the celebrated Dutch artist's 37 years told through his paintings and drawings in more than 200 illustrations.

UCLA 'Ferment' Show Is Impeccably Chosen

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Years of Ferment, the Birth of Twentieth Century Art" at UCLA through March 7, sets forth with richness and clarity the movements from 1886 to 1914. The exhibit is a splendid job, impeccably chosen, logically hung, presented with exquisite scholarship.

The exhibit of 105 works was gathered from institutions and individuals all over the country. It is broken down into "The Predecessors," 1886-1890 (Cezanne, Gauguin, Van Gogh, etc.), "Art Nouveau," "Romantic Symbolism," "Pont Aven and the Nabis," "Fauvism," "Origins of Cubism," "Cubism," "Transition to Expressionism," and "Expressionism."

* * * *

EACH PERIOD is illustrated by works of the great painters, in sufficient depth to be meaningful. By each work is a quotation, either from the artist or by a contemporary critic, which epitomizes the meaning of the work. Artists include Picasso, Braque, Gris, Matisse, etc.

A major work is Henry Rousseau's "The Jungle: Tiger Attacking a Buffalo" in the painstaking primitive style which suggests the mystery of a dream world. Another landmark, Picasso's "Les Demosilles d'Avignon," 1907, represented in reproduction and by a small original sketch, is shown with an exhaustive study of analytical cubism.

* * * *

THERE IS a wealth of Paul Klee and Kandinsky; the latter's first non-objective painting in 1905 is generally credited with instigating abstract expressionism, that most controversial style which ruled, absolute, through the '50s. In this show, the introspection and violence of German expressionism is thoroughly covered.

The exhibit was conceived by Dr. Henri Dorra of the UCLA art faculty. His historical essay, illustrated, comprises the catalogue.

* * * *

ITS DEFINITIVE scholarship is presented in a style which is lively and enthralling. He tells us the framework of the society, particularly the literary movements, which surrounded the artists. We are told of the differences in technique, color and composition each artist contributed as well as personal anecdotes.

For many, the rapid growth and proliferation of art during these years is vague and confusing. "Years of Ferment" should enable anyone to grasp what they were and their significance to our time. Viewing hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

No more does the sweet and motherly image prevail among the electronic housewives . . .

Now There's Sex in Television's Kitchens

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD — Housewives of America, you may not realize it but when you watch Bewitched and make it one of the most popular television programs in the country, you are really patting yourselves on the back.

When you analyze it as Elizabeth Montgomery has done, the message of Bewitched is a simple and rather frightening one:

"Samantha can be anything she wants to be, do anything she wants to do, have anything she wants to have, go anywhere she wants to go. But what she really wants to do is be just an average American housewife and do for her man."

Thus, Bewitched is telling all you housewives that you are the chosen people. You have a niche that a witch would give her riches for.

And, actually, all these television family situation comedies preach pretty much the same philosophy. They do this by casting glamor gals as housewives.

A quick inventory of actresses who are playing ordinary American housewives this season reveals a stunning list—Miss Montgomery, Mary Tyler Moore, Abby Dalton, Connie Stevens, Beverly Garland, Joyce Bulifant, Patricia Barry and (not quite ordinary) Yvonne De Carlo and Carolyn Jones.

Very few communities offer such an array of beauty in the kitchen. So the message here is easy to interpret: housewifery is a glamorous trade and every girl should aspire to it.

Of course, television housewives have always been attractive; witness Jane Wyatt, Donna Reed and Marjorie Lord. But the image has been more of the wise, maternal one.

The new breed of helpmate undoubtedly has made these family comedy shows more popular with American male viewers. There is, for example, a far from small fraternity which eagerly looks forward to Wednesday evenings just to see if Mary Tyler Moore (as Dick Van Dyke's wife) is wearing a new pair of stretch slacks.

• • • •

ELIZABETH Montgomery thinks that she shares with the benevolent witch, Samantha, one vital trait—both enjoy doing things for their husbands.

This is first in a three-part series on Hollywood's "new image of the American housewife.

ELIZABETH as Samantha.

Miss Montgomery, no witch, is a very real girl. And, although she grew up the danghter of a successful actor, Robert Montgomery, her education in the domestic arts was not lacking. She says that her mother is a great cook, and so are an aunt and a cousin with whom she is close.

But her first cooking efforts, she remembers, were not crowned with success. She says she made a batch of fudge as a girl which was so bad she threw it away—"and the chickens got it and three of them died."

Now, however, she enjoys her few chances in the kitchen. (See her recipe, in box). Of course, during the working week, she does very little around the house. Her schedule—dawn to dusk at the studio—prevents it.

The Asher menage—she is Mrs. William Asher in private life — has a nurse for the six-month-old baby, and the very valuable Dorothy. Dorothy takes over the household during the day, cleaning and cooking and leaving a dinner which Elizabeth warms up when she comes home.

But on weekends, Elizabeth takes over. She cooks and cleans and cares for her son. She's a regular, average American housewife — on Saturday and Sunday.

So, while the run-of-the-dishwasher housewife may dream of being an actress, the actresses are finding it pays off to be housewives. That's show business today.

Elizabeth Montgomery's Baked Chicken

"You bake your chicken as you ordinarily do. Then, shortly before you serve it, take it out of the oven and baste it with a mixture of white wine, orange juice and tarragon. Put it back in the oven to brown as crisp as you like it."

Think! It Saves Time

A reader from Winnipeg asks, "What is the single most important bit of advice you would give an average player?"

The question is tough to answer, but I feel strongly that there is one bit of advice that every beginner, average player and expert would do well to follow. That is: "When you are declarer get in the habit of thinking about the whole hand before you play the first card from dummy."

Not only is this good advice but it also should speed up your play. If you don't think so, take a look at today's hand as a perfect example.

South lost no time playing the deuce of hearts from dummy. Maybe he had heard the cliche, "Second hand low." Perhaps he just was allergic to stopping for a couple of seconds. Anyway he played.

• • • •

THAT put him in his own hand with the queen and before leading to the second trick he stopped long enough to see that it was up to him to attack the club suit. He led the king of clubs and East won with the ace.

East led a second heart and South was in dummy with the ace. He led a second club and East showed out.

Now South paused for considerable time to try to find a way to make the hand. There wasn't any. The best he could do was to continue clubs and let West get a second club trick. Then West cashed three hearts and led a diamond to his partner so that South was set three tricks.

Had South just stopped to think when he should have, he would have won the first trick in dummy and led a low club. East would have had to play his ace and South would have made his contract with five clubs, two hearts and two spades. Also, he would have saved a lot of time. He would not have had to do any thinking later.

Think! It Saves Time

A reader from Winnipeg asks, "What is the single most important bit of advice you would give an average player?"

The question is tough to answer, but I feel strongly that there is one bit of advice that every beginner, average player and expert would do well to follow. That is: "When you are declarer get in the habit of thinking about the whole hand before you play the first card from dummy."

Not only is this good advice but it also should speed up your play. If you don't think so, take a look at today's hand as a perfect example.

South lost no time playing the deuce of hearts from dummy. Maybe he had heard the cliche, "Second hand low." Perhaps he just was allergic to stopping for a couple of seconds. Anyway he played.

* * * *

THAT put him in his own hand with the queen and before leading to the second trick he stopped long enough to see that it was up to him to attack the club suit. He led the king of clubs and East won with the ace.

East led a second heart and South was in dummy with the ace. He led a second club and East showed out.

Now South paused for considerable time to try to find a way to make the hand. There wasn't any. The best he could do was to continue clubs and let West get a second club trick. Then West cashed three hearts and led a diamond to his partner so that South was set three tricks.

Had South just stopped to think when he should have, he would have won the first trick in dummy and led a low club. East would have had to play his ace and South would have made his contract with five clubs, two hearts and two spades. Also, he would have saved a lot of time. He would not have had to do any thinking later.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

He Really 'Cashed In'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L.P-T Food Editor

George E. Carson

This is the story of a man who parlayed a course at the USC School of Pharmacy into a branch managership for the National Cash Register Co. It's been 38 years since today's Chef of the week, George E. Carson, started ringing those cash registers, so he apparently has no regrets. He's been Long Beach branch manager since 1954.

Time was when he might have become an oil man, also. His wanting to be a druggist started when he worked in a drug store while helping to defray his expenses through Poly High.

The 'oil man' nucleus was born when he worked for an oil company to defray the pharmaceutical course at USC. The latter two ventures had to be done in sequence, for, time-in-school, and time-in-the oil business couldn't be shared. He'd earn the money — go to school — then earn more money.

• • • • •

THE CASH REGISTER idea came into focus quite by accident. Carson has just returned from another semester at SC, following a second hitch in oil. He applied at the school's employment office for part-time work. National Cash Register's full-time offer simply outfumbled his former scheme of things, and he took it.

Since that time Carson has taken the grand tour: From Santa Monica to Santa Ana to San Bernardino, eventually to Phoenix, Ariz., where he remained as manager for four years. A branch managership in San Bernardino preceded appointment to his present position in Long Beach 10 years ago.

Carson first saw the light of day in Minneapolis, Minn. At the age of two his family moved to Fargo, N.D., then on to Spokane, Wash., before locating in Missoula, Mont. There he finished elementary school and one year of high. They came to Long Beach in 1918.

• • • • •

CARSON is a Rotarian, an Elk, a Mason, a member of the Shrine and holds membership in Virginia Country Club.

Wilson High claims among its graduates not only Mrs. Carson (Maurine), but their daughter, Linda, and son, Bob. Linda, also a graduate of Stevens College and now married, is on the staff of American Air Lines. Bob, a former Wilson letterman in golf, is attending the Arizona University of Tempe on a golf scholarship. Bob reached the Jr. National Golf tournament on two occasions, the quarter finals on one.

While Dad and son are considered to have much in common, Bob's golf fame is entirely his own. Carson loves the game, but is what is called in golf parlance, a "Hacker." Mrs. Carson took up golf in self defense and can hold her own in any game.

• • • • •

THE CARSONS love to travel, but recently their travels have been confined to the arm chair variety on colored TV. He isn't considered exactly the worst poker player—but one of the worst.

Our Chef's cooking has never been challenged. His recipe is for Beef Teriyaki.

BEEF TERIYAKI

1½ cups soy sauce
½ cup sugar
2 cloves garlic
½ tsp. meat tenderizer
¾ tsp. powdered ginger

Heat ingredients until sugar is dissolved, then set aside to cool. Purchase top round, or top sirloin of beef, 2½ to 3 inches thick. Marinate at least 24 hours, turning occasionally if not entirely covered.

Broil over charcoal — 20 min. on each side, if 2½ inches thick — 25 min. if 3 inches thick. If top round is used, more tenderizer may be added if necessary.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Let's Be Up-to-Date, Mom!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I'm sure if you were to see me, you would think I was someone from the 1890s. Although I am 15 years old, my parents make me dress like I was five.

My hair is in long braids, my dresses all have sashes and hang halfway between my knees and my shoes. And the shoes! I have ugly brown oxfords—and no hose.

The kids at school make fun of me and it's simply awful, especially since I'm a sophomore in high school. I did some babysitting and used the money to buy some nice clothes but I'm not allowed to wear them.

If my parents don't let me wear regular clothes soon, I'm going to run away. Can you help me convince them I'm too old to wear such clothes?—V.C.

DEAR V.C.:

I surely hope someone can convince your parents that you should be allowed to dress in a more up-to-date fashion. Although I don't wholly agree with some of the extreme modes of dress some high-school girls wear, I do believe there is a happy medium.

If you have a dean of girls at your school, perhaps she would talk to your mother. If your mother has friends among the mothers of some of your school chums, one of them might intercede for you. Or your minister's wife.

Whatever you do, don't "run away." I know how unhappy you must be and how difficult the situation is, but go all out to find someone who will talk to your mother and to whom she will listen.—M.M.

• • • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am almost 15 and have a sister who is 16. Last Sunday evening after our Youth Group meeting eight of us (four boys and four girls) decided to go to the hamburger stand for a Coke. We stopped at my house to ask if it was all right for my sister and me to go. The answer was: My sister could go but I couldn't.

What could have been wrong with my going, too? Mom and Dad said, "Wait till you are at least 15." They told my sister that when she was 14 and she was not allowed to date until she was 16. My parents are very nice and I love them, but don't you think they are being a little unfair?—CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED:

Your parents have the right idea in not allowing you to date until you are 15, but ordinarily I think going with a group to a hamburger stand and returning in a short time is something that might be allowed, provided it was still early evening.

I suspect your group was paired off, date-wise, and you probably wouldn't have returned after you had your snack. No doubt, your parents felt the same way. I doubt if they were unfair. They have rules and insist you abide by them. That's as it should be.

If you would be real honest about it, you would admit your little outing was like a date and that's not for you right now.

Don't be mad at me for saying what I think.—M.M.

SPREADING WORD that today marks beginning of week-long observance of Toastmistress Week are these exuberant exponents of what the club has to offer in the way of leadership and speech training are (from left) Mrs. Eugene Comer, Council 1 coordinator; Mrs. A. J. Storinsky, coordinator of Harbor-South Bay-Peninsula observance, and Mrs. Richard Chapman.

ITC CALLING!

See What We're About

By JOYCE KENT
L. P-T Club Editor

"ITC" will be a household word by the end of the week if enterprising and energetic members of Council One, International Toastmistress Clubs, have their way.

By official proclamations, banquets and window displays, they're spreading the word that today, through Saturday, is TOASTMISTRESS WEEK.

Clubs throughout the area are extending open invitations to women to come and learn that the organization is "designed with the women of today in mind, to afford her an opportunity for self-development through study of techniques of effective speaking and leadership." Mrs. Thomas Kaucic is chairman of the observance.

IN LONG BEACH, Ardis, Long Beach, Realette and Lakewood Clubs will host a "Progress Through Toastmistress" Banquet Wednesday evening at Edgewater Inn with Mayor Edwin Wade issuing the official proclamation.

Mrs. William Minnix, coordinator of activities for the week, invites interested women to stop in at Buffums' Downtown store throughout the week to visit the booth being manned by members.

Out Orange County way Monday evening, clubs in that area will honor "Toastmistresses in Action" with a banquet at Disneyland Hotel.

San Pedro, Wilmington and Sunliter Clubs have banded together for that area's banquet Friday evening at Hacienda Hotel, San Pedro. Dr. Kenneth Shanks, professor at California State College, Long Beach, will be principal speaker.

Begun in San Francisco in 1938, Toastmistress Clubs today criss-cross the nation and are to be found in such far off places as Subic Bay in the Philippines, Scotland, Australia, Thailand and Free China.

Presiding Officer at Banquet Is Mrs. Morris Shuff.

Coordinating Plans in L. B. is Mrs. William Minnix.

Lutefisk Dinner

Ulabrand Lodge, Sons of Norway, will host a lutefisk and meatball dinner from 4 to 8 p.m. Saturday at Ulabrad Hall, 1125 S. Gaffey St., San Pedro. The public is welcome.

DEAR ABBY

$5,000 From Wedlock

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower, 54, well-groomed, gray-haired, tall, slender, and some people say I'm handsome. I earn $15,000 a year and have no dependents or ties. I've had to run fast from many women, rich and prominent, and I don't say that to boast.

ABBY

I recently met an attractive widow about my age. She is cultured, refined and well-traveled. She has no dependents and we enjoy each other's company. I have reason to believe we could care for each other. She has an income of about $20,000 a year, but she has stated emphatically that she would never contribute to the support of any man. I cannot support her in her present style, but I would be willing to sign a pre-nuptial waiver to all rights of her estate. Would I be wrong to insist that if we married, our incomes should be joined for our mutual benefit? Don't you think this widow had better grab me quick or lose me fast?—A GENTLEMAN

DEAR GENTLEMAN: That's up to the lady. It is obvious that you are not out to take advantage of this woman, but she wasn't born yesterday, either. If she will marry you and continue to support herself (but not you), all that stands between you is her $5,000 edge. Waive that and you'll have made yourself a good deal.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who, when he gets mad at his wife, refuses to talk to her, refuses to sleep with her, refuses to come to the table and eat with his family, and refuses to get up at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning to go to church with his family even though his wife turned Catholic for him? If he has no respect for his own religion, how can a wife and children have respect for it? Last Sunday our eldest said she wasn't going to church because "Daddy wasn't going." I certainly didn't have any argument to give her, so I let her stay home. In fact, I stayed home, too. If I don't have a nervous breakdown over that man, it will be a miracle. What should I do?—HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

DEAR HIGH: Your husband needs a pacifier or a physician or maybe both. Such tantrums are not for grown-ups or the emotionally healthy. Ask your priest to guide him toward professional help.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I know you mean well when you advise childless couples to "look into" adoption. But I think you should urge such couples to find out definitely first whether they are infertile or not. At the present time it is estimated that almost half the couples who believe themselves to be infertile could, with the proper treatment, have children. However, the treatment for infertility is a highly specialized field, and should be left to the specialists who are up to date on the newest techniques. Sincerely, ONE WHO HAS BEEN HELPED

DEAR ONE: Thank you for bringing this little-known fact to my attention. The names of fertility specialists are available through THE PLANNED PARENTHOOD FEDERATION, 515 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 22, N.Y.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of olay is recommended by beauty care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

SPREADING WORD that today marks beginning of week-long observance of Toastmistress Week are these exuberant exponents of what the club has to offer in the way of leadership and speech training are (from left) Mrs. Eugene Comer, Council 1 coordinator; Mrs. A. J. Storinsky, coordinator of Harbor-South Bay-Peninsula observance, and Mrs. Richard Chapman.

ITC CALLING!

See What We're About

By JOYCE KENT
I. P-T Club Editor

"ITC" will be a household word by the end of the week if enterprising and energetic members of Council One, International Toastmistress Clubs, have their way.

By official proclamations, banquets and window displays, they're spreading the word that today, through Saturday, is TOASTMISTRESS WEEK.

Clubs throughout the area are extending open invitations to women to come and learn that the organization is "designed with the women of today in mind, to afford her an opportunity for self development through study of techniques of effective speaking and leadership." Mrs. Thomas Kaucic is chairman of the observance.

IN LONG BEACH, Ardis, Long Beach, Realette and Lakewood Clubs will host a "Progress Through Toastmistress" Banquet Wednesday evening at Edgewater Inn with Mayor Edwin Wade issuing the official proclamation.

Mrs. William Minnix, coordinator of activities for the week, invites interested women to stop in at Buffums' Downtown store throughout the week to visit the booth being manned by members.

Out Orange County way Monday evening, clubs in that area will honor "Toastmistresses in Action" with a banquet at Disneyland Hotel.

San Pedro, Wilmington and Sunliter Clubs have banded together for that area's banquet Friday evening at Hacienda Hotel, San Pedro. Dr. Kenneth Shanks, professor at California State College, Long Beach, will be principal speaker.

Begun in San Francisco in 1938, Toastmistress Clubs today criss-cross the nation and are to be found in such far off places as Subic Bay in the Philippines, Scotland, Australia, Thailand and Free China.

Presiding Officer at Banquet is Mrs. Morris Shuff.

Coordinating Plans in L. B. is Mrs. William Minnix.

Lutefisk Dinner

Ulabrand Lodge, Sons of Norway, will host a lutefisk and meatball dinner from 4 to 8 p.m. Saturday at Ulabrad Hall, 1125 S. Gaffey St., San Pedro. The public is welcome.

DEAR ABBY

$5,000 From Wedlock

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower, 54, well-groomed, gray-haired, tall, slender, and some people say I'm handsome. I earn $15,000 a year and have no dependents or ties. I've had to run fast from many women, rich and prominent, and I don't say that to boast.

ABBY

I recently met an attractive widow about my age. She is cultured, refined and well-traveled. She has no dependents and we enjoy each other's company. I have reason to believe we could care for each other. She has an income of about $20,000 a year, but she has stated emphatically that she would never contribute to the support of any man. I cannot support her in her present style, but I would be willing to sign a pre-nuptial waiver to all rights of her estate. Would I be wrong to insist that if we married, our incomes should be joined for our mutual benefit? Don't you think this widow had better grab me quick or lose me fast?—A GENTLEMAN

DEAR GENTLEMAN: That's up to the lady. It is obvious that you are not out to take advantage of this woman, but she wasn't born yesterday, either. If she will marry you and continue to support herself (but not you), all that stands between you is her $5,000 edge. Waive that and you'll have made yourself a good deal.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who, when he gets mad at his wife, refuses to talk to her, refuses to sleep with her, refuses to come to the table and eat with his family, and refuses to get up at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning to go to church with his family even though his wife turned Catholic for him? If he has no respect for his own religion, how can a wife and children have respect for it? Last Sunday our eldest said she wasn't going to church because "Daddy wasn't going." I certainly didn't have any argument to give her, so I let her stay home. In fact, I stayed home, too. If I don't have a nervous breakdown over that man, it will be a miracle. What should I do?—HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

DEAR HIGH: Your husband needs a pacifier or a physician or maybe both. Such tantrums are not for grown-ups or the emotionally healthy. Ask your priest to guide him toward professional help.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I know you mean well when you advise childless couples to "look into" adoption. But I think you should urge such couples to find out definitely first whether they are infertile or not. At the present time it is estimated that almost half the couples who believe themselves to be infertile could, with the proper treatment, have children. However, the treatment for infertility is a highly specialized field, and should be left to the specialists who are up to date on the newest techniques. Sincerely, ONE WHO HAS BEEN HELPED

DEAR ONE: Thank you for bringing this little-known fact to my attention. The names of fertility specialists are available through THE PLANNED PARENTHOOD FEDERATION, 515 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 22, N.Y.

IT'S THE YEAR OF THE ALPS

Switzerland Figures Big in Europe Travel Planning

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Because 1965 has been officially proclaimed the Year of the Alps in Switzerland, this mountain fairyland will rank high on the itineraries of Europe-bound Americans during the spring, summer and fall months.

And while the tiny federal republic boasts scores of attractions, ranging from the pleasant to the spectacular, what promises to be the year's most notable event will be the reenactment of the first successful conquest of the Matterhorn July 13-17 in Zermatt.

An Englishman named Edward Whymper gained renown when he scaled the world-famous mountain in July, 1865. At Zermatt, climbing celebrities from all over the world will reenact Whymper's feat of 100 years ago.

• • • •

ST. MORITZ and Davos also are arranging centennials as winter sports centers.

In addition, many events have been scheduled to attract people to the mountains. Among the special events will be music festivals, folkloristic programs, hiking and mountain climbing with the aim of "discovering" the Alps as a healthful and tranquil refuge from the pressures of every-day life.

The sound of music will echo in the mountains throughout the year. Many of the country's most important music festivals will take place in alpine settings such as the Engadine Valley, Lucerne, Braunwald, Engelberg, Meiringen, Zermatt and Lugano. Leading orchestras and soloists perform.

• • • •

A FAMILIAR sight in the Swiss Alps this year will be the large numbers of visitors participating in scheduled hikes. In May, mountain marches will be held from Andermatt to Chateau-d'Oex as part of the special ceremonies of the Mountaineering School of Rosenlaui.

Another Year of the Alps highlight is the Great World Theater which is performed every five years in Einsiedeln. Performances of the morality play, written by the Spanish author Don Pedro Calderon in 1675, will take place on the steps and balustrades of the Benedictine Monastery. The drama lasts for two hours and has a cast of 600 Einsiedeln residents.

Other scheduled events include the 49th Swiss Industries Fair at Basel, April 24-May 4; Sechselaeuten/Zurich Spring Festival at Zurich, April 25-26; International Television Symposium, Montreux, May 24-28; International June Festival at Lausanne, June; International June Festival at Zurich; and the Swiss Fair of Art and Antiques, 10 days in October in Berne.

• • • •

STILL ANOTHER traditional folk festival—the Onion Market—will explode in color and pageantry Nov. 22 in Berne.

The Swiss National Tourist Office (10 W. 49th St., New York City 10020) calls attention to a group of 12 special itineraries, called the Unique World of Switzerland, which will cover almost any preference a visitor might have. Instead of wandering through the country seeing landmarks at random, the traveler can get the most of what he likes best by taking one or more of these suggested trips:

"The Enchanting Alps," "Historic Inns and Castles," "Medieval and Ancient Shrines," "Gardens of Switzerland," "The Golden Pass," "The Heart of Switzerland," "Scenic Switzerland," "Switzerland — Off Beat," "Art and History," "Heidi's Fairyland," "Switzerland — Four Languages, Four Cultures," and "A Trip for Gourmets." The tours vary from seven to 14 days.

THE FIRST CONQUEST of the Matterhorn will be re-enacted in July as a part of Switzerland's Year of the Alps celebration.

Ireland Attracts

Commenting on travel trends, the American Society of Travel Agents reports that U.S. visitors to Ireland in the first five months of 1964 rose 43% over the corresponding period of 1963.

Around the World With Delaplane

"My family is giving me a trip to Mexico for graduation and what I want is not the places I will find in the guide book but name me five neat, swinging places or things to do."

LUNCH IN THE old Conquistador quarter at Hostaria del Santo Domingo—(Cortes's Indian girl friend used to live in that palace across the street). Dinner at the Rivoli. And ask the violinist to play "Caminante de Mayab." (Costs you, but it's the best restaurant in Mexico City.) The bull fights—but only if they are held in the huge Plaza Mexico. The crowd's the show.

And for some small pleasures you'll remember: The fresh oysters with lime juice and hot sauce, served on the street at Mazatlan. The hot, garlicked peanuts under the arches by the plaza in Oaxaca. The great main plaza of Mexico lighted at night from the roof garden restaurant of the Hotel Majestic. Hot chocolate beaten to a froth as they did it for Montezuma—in any Mexican market place. But go before 6 in the morning. That's when there's action.

"We have thought of a camping trip in Europe (to save money). Is it possible?"

ALL EUROPE camps. (All Government tourist offices have lists of camp sites. And there are hundreds of privately owned camp sites where you pay a small fee.)

Most of the camping I've seen is pretty lush—not the back-to-nature camping of America. The sites are barbered. Equipment would fit a modern kitchen. And camper clothing is as elegant as Caribbean cruise outfits.

The Michelin guide people put out a guide for France called "Camping." Though I've only seen it sold in France. The word "camping" seems to be pretty international. And that's the sign to look for along the roads.

As to cost. I've never done this myself. But I have a letter today: "My husband and I have recently returned from a camping trip in Europe that lasted four months. Our expenses averaged $8 a day. Included camping fees, a hot shower every night, all meals except breakfast (which we cooked at the camp site), museum fees, presents, tours of castles etc. It did not include gasoline..."

"We will be in England for several weeks this summer and would like to see the countryside but not on a guided tour..."

YOU SHOULD try a pub tour of the south—the best—of England. This one is a special: Your own rent car. On your own. Reservations are made for you at six old and famous coaching inns. Seven days, six nights and 700 miles. The whole thing—meals, cars and rooms—run $90 per person for two, $75 per person for a party of four.

Where do we eat? That's always a tough question when you're traveling. Californians Gad Most

A bus company executive from Chicago reveals that Californians probably are the nation's biggest pleasure travelers.

"They have long indicated a strong interest in pleasure travel and in seeing the U.S.A. up close, and in so doing have set the pace for the rest of the country," said James E. Hawthorne, systemwide vice president of marketing for Greyhound Lines, transportation subsidiary company of The Greyhound Corporation.

In the Southland for meetings with top marketing personnel of the bus company's Western Division, Hawthorne said Californians are the biggest users anywhere in the nation of escorted bus tours—"even those 40-60 days long." Independent tours likewise are growing. An independent tour is a trip with all details planned, but instead of going with a group, as on an escorted tour, a traveler rides regularly scheduled buses to his destinations. Stopovers may be arranged anywhere along the line.

There are some real reasons why both types of tours are on the rise, he said: More retired persons and others have more leisure time and money to spend on pleasure travel, and companies such as his are making it easier for persons to travel comfortably.

All of which, said Hawthorne, portends well for his firm, whose studies show that after people have taken care of their basic necessities, they want to travel—and do. Nine out of 10 pay their own way, so they're looking for economy.

Camellias on Display

Camellias hold the spotlight for gadders next weekend.

For the 21st year Temple City holds its Camellia Festival Friday through Sunday. More than 4,500 children and an array of floats decorated with fresh camellias make up a parade at 10 a. m. Saturday.

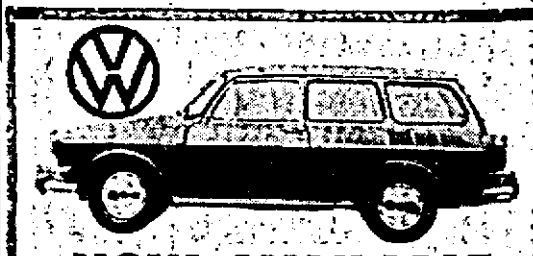

Descanso Gardens, 1418 Descanso Dr., La Canada, will show off its flowers—more than 100,000 trees and bushes, plus hundreds of cut flowers—Saturday and Sunday. Descanso Gardens has the world's largest camellia planting.

If you'd like to drive to the desert, the town of Imperial holds its Midwinter Fair Friday through March 7. An International Salad Tossing Contest honors the valley's big lettuce crop. There will be an RCA rodeo next Saturday and Sunday and car races March 6-7.

Camellia Festival

Sacramento will hold its 11th annual Camellia Festival March 5-11, a highlight of which will be the 41st annual Camellia Show, oldest in the nation. Also on the program will be a Camellia ball, symphony concert, ballet, folk dance pageant and parade.

IT'S THE YEAR OF THE ALPS

Switzerland Figures Big in Europe Travel Planning

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Because 1965 has been officially proclaimed the Year of the Alps in Switzerland, this mountain fairyland will rank high on the itineraries of Europe-bound Americans during the spring, summer and fall months.

And while the tiny federal republic boasts scores of attractions, ranging from the pleasant to the spectacular, what promises to be the year's most notable event will be the reenactment of the first successful conquest of the Matterhorn July 13-17 in Zermatt.

An Englishman named Edward Whymper gained renown when he scaled the world-famous mountain in July, 1865. At Zermatt, climbing celebrities from all over the world will reenact Whymper's feat of 100 years ago.

* * * *

ST. MORITZ and Davos also are arranging centennials as winter sports centers.

In addition, many events have been scheduled to attract people to the mountains. Among the special events will be music festivals, folkloristic programs, hiking and mountain climbing with the aim of "discovering" the Alps as a healthful and tranquil refuge from the pressures of every-day life.

The sound of music will echo in the mountains throughout the year. Many of the country's most important music festivals will take place in alpine settings such as the Engadine Valley, Lucerne, Braunwald, Engelberg, Meiringen, Zermatt and Lugano. Leading orchestras and soloists perform.

* * * *

A FAMILIAR sight in the Swiss Alps this year will be the large numbers of visitors participating in scheduled hikes. In May, mountain marches will be held from Andermatt to Chateau-d'Oex as part of the special ceremonies of the Mountaineering School of Rosenlaui.

Another Year of the Alps highlight is the Great World Theater which is performed every five years in Einsiedeln. Performances of the morality play, written by the Spanish author Don Pedro Calderon in 1675, will take place on the steps and balustrades of the Benedictine Monastery. The drama lasts for two hours and has a cast of 600 Einsiedeln residents.

Other scheduled events include the 49th Swiss Industries Fair at Basel, April 24-May 4; Seehselaeuten/Zurich Spring Festival at Zurich, April 25-26; International Television Symposium, Montreux, May 24-28; International June Festival at Lausanne, June; International June Festival at Zurich; and the Swiss Fair of Art and Antiques, 10 days in October in Berne.

* * * *

STILL ANOTHER traditional folk festival—the Onion Market—will explode in color and pageantry Nov. 22 in Berne.

The Swiss National Tourist Office (10 W. 49th St., New York City 10020) calls attention to a group of 12 special itineraries, called the Unique World of Switzerland, which will cover almost any preference a visitor might have. Instead of wandering through the country seeing landmarks at random, the traveler can get the most of what he likes best by taking one or more of these suggested trips:

"The Enchanting Alps," "Historic Inns and Castles," "Medieval and Ancient Shrines," "Gardens of Switzerland," "The Golden Pass," "The Heart of Switzerland," "Scenic Switzerland," "Switzerland — Off Beat," "Art and History," "Heidi's Fairyland," "Switzerland — Four Languages, Four Cultures," and "A Trip for Gourmets." The tours vary from seven to 14 days.

THE FIRST CONQUEST of the Matterhorn will be re-enacted in July as a part of Switzerland's Year of the Alps celebration.

Ireland Attracts

Commenting on travel trends, the American Society of Travel Agents reports that U.S. visitors to Ireland in the first five months of 1964 rose 43% over the corresponding period of 1963.

Around the World With Delaplane

"My family is giving me a trip to Mexico for graduation and what I want is not the places I will find in the guide book but name me five neat, swinging places or things to do."

LUNCH IN THE old Conquistador quarter at Hosteria del Santo Domingo—(Cortes's Indian girl friend used to live in that palace across the street). Dinner at the Rivoli. And ask the violinist to play "Caminante de Mayab." (Costs you, but it's the best restaurant in Mexico City.) The bull fights—but only if they are held in the huge Plaza Mexico. The crowd's the show.

And for some small pleasures you'll remember: The fresh oysters with lime juice and hot sauce, served on the street at Mazatlan. The hot, garlicked peanuts under the arches by the plaza in Oaxaca. The great main plaza of Mexico lighted at night from the roof garden restaurant of the Hotel Majestic. Hot chocolate beaten to a froth as they did it for Montezuma—in any Mexican market place. But go before 6 in the morning. That's when there's action.

* * * *

"We have thought of a camping trip in Europe (to save money). Is it possible?"

ALL EUROPE camps. (All Government tourist offices have lists of camp sites. And there are hundreds of privately owned camp sites where you pay a small fee.)

Most of the camping I've seen is pretty lush—not the back-to-nature camping of America. The sites are barbered. Equipment would fit a modern kitchen. And camper clothing is as elegant as Caribbean cruise outfits.

The Michelin guide people put out a guide for France called "Camping." Though I've only seen it sold in France. The word "camping" seems to be pretty international. And that's the sign to look for along the roads.

As to cost. I've never done this myself. But I have a letter today: "My husband and I have recently returned from a camping trip in Europe that lasted four months. Our expenses averaged $8 a day. Included camping fees, a hot shower every night, all meals except breakfast (which we cooked at the camp site), museum fees, presents, tours of castles etc. It did not include gasoline. . . ."

"We will be in England for several weeks this summer and would like to see the countryside but not on a guided tour. . . ."

YOU SHOULD try a pub tour of the south—the best—of England. This one is a special: Your own rent car. On your own. Reservations are made for you at six old and famous coaching inns. Seven days, six nights and 700 miles. The whole thing—meals, cars and rooms—run $90 per person for two, $75 per person for a party of four.

Where do we eat? That's always a tough question when you're traveling. Californians Gad Most

A bus company executive from Chicago reveals that Californians probably are the nation's biggest pleasure travelers.

"They have long indicated a strong interest in pleasure travel and in seeing the U.S.A. up close, and in so doing have set the pace for the rest of the country," said James E. Hawthorne, systemwide vice president of marketing for Greyhound Lines, transportation subsidiary company of The Greyhound Corporation.

In the Southland for meetings with top marketing personnel of the bus company's Western Division, Hawthorne said Californians are the biggest users anywhere in the nation of escorted bus tours—"even those 40-60 days long." Independent tours likewise are growing. An independent tour is a trip with all details planned, but instead of going with a group, as on an escorted tour, a traveler rides regularly scheduled buses to his destinations. Stopovers may be arranged anywhere along the line.

There are some real reasons why both types of tours are on the rise, he said: More retired persons and others have more leisure time and money to spend on pleasure travel, and companies such as his are making it easier for persons to travel comfortably.

All of which, said Hawthorne, portends well for his firm, whose studies show that after people have taken care of their basic necessities, they want to travel—and do. Nine out of 10 pay their own way, so they're looking for economy.

Camellias on Display

Camellias hold the spotlight for gadders next weekend.

For the 21st year Temple City holds its Camellia Festival Friday through Sunday. More than 4,500 children and an array of floats decorated with fresh camellias make up a parade at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Descanso Gardens, 1418 Descanso Dr., La Canada, will show off its flowers—more than 100,000 trees and bushes, plus hundreds of cut flowers—Saturday and Sunday. Descanso Gardens has the world's largest camellia planting.

If you'd like to drive to the desert, the town of Imperial holds its Midwinter Fair Friday through March 7. An International Salad Tossing Contest honors the valley's big lettuce crop. There will be an RCA rodeo next Saturday and Sunday and car races March 6-7.

Camellia Festival

Sacramento will hold its 11th annual Camellia Festival March 5-11, a highlight of which will be the 41st annual Camellia Show, oldest in the nation. Also on the program will be a Camellia ball, symphony concert, ballet, folk dance pageant and parade.

ORDEAL OF THE REVOLUTION

Washington at Valley Forge

By RALPH HINMAN JR.

Washington and his Prussian aide-de-camp, Baron von Steuben, inspect ragged troops of the Revolutionary Army at Valley Forge.

LIKE soldiers of any army in any time or place those ragged Regulars of the Continental Line achingly yearned for warm winter quarters.

After a year's bitter campaigning, of futile marching and counter-marching through Pennsylvania's dusty summer and frosty autumn, all they could think of was good hot chow, light duty, a drop of whisky and the pleasing sight of a woman or two.

Rumors flew thick as last summer's dust while the 13 brigades of Gen. George Washington's army evacuated Philadelphia a hop-skip-and-a-jump ahead of Gen. Sir William Howe's Britishers.

"We're a-goin' into winter quarters at Allentown" —or Reading or Lancaster, a rear rank doggie confided to his buddy. "I know 'cause I got a third cousin dog-robbin' for Jin'ral . . ."

AS SO OFTEN the case —even today—the rumors were false.

Unconsciously perhaps, Washington was preparing places in Valhalla for his men. Instead of picking the good furlough towns he ordered, in December 1777, the main force of the skeleton-like United States Army to a place called Valley Forge.

Why not make the troops happy by bivouacing along a loose line linking three good leave towns?

Washington knew his main task throughout the winter would be to protect the rich countryside near the captured metropolis of Philadelphia—while keeping himself free of the enemy's always dangerous grasp. No army in that pre-mechanical day could camp more than a few miles from its objective and properly do its duty.

BESIDES, the Virginia-born gentleman may have reasoned, if the army descends upon the hinterland towns those refugees now streaming outward probably would be deprived of what little food and shelter was available.

On Dec. 17, 1777, his general order was issued to a retreating army: March to the junction of the Schuylkill River and Valley Creek; build cabins there in which to live dry and warm through the cold months. Build a place that will be "compact against surprise."

Thirteen hungry brigades hit the road, 11,500 effective soldiers marching westward in retreat from Philadelphia. Remembering while trudging through bitter cold how 19,530 well-fed Britons lay behind them in warm, snug houses. Enough to make even a halfway self-respecting army mutinous!

Finally the marching troops arrived at Valley Forge, once a pleasant little country town, now only rubble and ash. The British had been there and gone, either taking or destroying with the hamlet the blacksmith's gear that had given it a name.

FROM A POSITION of slouching attention these Regulars - in - name - only counted off in military style dating back to the earliest army: "One - two - three-four . . ."—until they were formed into squads of 12. Shovels and axes were issued, hut-building work began. Timber was abundant.

An architectural pattern was to be set there, one which would guide successive commanders and soldiers planning winter camps for later seasons. Cabins were 16x14 feet with walls 6½ feet high.

Rammed clay plugged gaps between crudely chopped logs, saplings covered with straw were fashioned into roofs. Let drizzle fall or snow thaw and those makeshift roofs leaked like putrescent sieves.

Split oak slabs formed doors, fastened to the door frame in most cases by rusty iron hinges or mildewed leather thongs. Lucky soldiers were able to scrounge oiled paper for windows; less fortunate brethren tacked up scraps of whatever was available.

SOME FEW CABINS — the fancy ones—the type of barracks called "Kings' Row" in World War II—displayed real stone chimneys. But the boys down in "Pneumonia Gulch," or whatever they labeled it during the Revolution, could do no better than wooden chimneys lightly fireproofed with clay.

Officers' cabins were equally bad. Until a man reached regimental command or a high staff position, he shared quarters with several others of like state. Even Washington himself lived in a drafty canvas tent until weeks after his arrival at Valley Forge.

Two days before Christmas 1777, a field report showed 2,898 men unfit for active duty because they were "barefoot and otherwise naked." Shirts and breeches were in rags, shoes long since worn out or eaten. Only because this army was adept at "moonlight requisitioning" did it eat yule dinner.

MUTTON AND GROG were unearthed from the surrounding countryside — and the troops more or less ate well that Christmas Day. After nightfall, though, hundreds of them huddled miserably about tiny guard fires vainly trying to keep warm "instead of taking comfortable rest in a natural and common position," a report stated.

January 1778—rags were ragged, patches patched. Underfoot a mixture of snow, mud and ice often was colored blood-red from feet inadequately covered by strips of blanket or broken rawhide sandals.

If formal Saturday morning inspections were held that month, company commanders found frostbitten feet turning black-and-blue. Obviously this army was little afflicted with trenchfoot, a malady striking soldiers in later wars; without sound and unbroken shoes the disease does not develop.

Frozen potatoes formed the dietary staple supplemented by bread husks and mouldy meat.

WHAT LITTLE clothing was available to supply sergeants came either from neighborhood patriots or actually was sewn together in camp. Buddies of a man pooled their caps, shirts, breeches and foot wrappings to give him a measure of weather protection.

By mid-winter Valley Forge was rotten with illness. Each brigade had erected two hospital cabins —that became completely inadequate when upper respiratory infections circulated epidemic-fashion. Fear of smallpox compounded things, bringing about a series of inoculations. (Modern smallpox therapy then was 20 years in the future.)

Suspected smallpox sufferers were dosed with a medicine made up of calomel, jalap, niter elixir, vitriol, Peruvian bark and Virginia snakeroot. Invalid fare in the tiny hospitals was nothing more nor less than Indian meal and rice.

The worst cases were worsened by 50-horsedrawn miles over corduroy roads to the so-called "General Hospital of the Continental Army" at the Moravian community of Bethlehem.

BY ALL RIGHTS in February the troops should have gone over the hill—things were that tough. But in three hellish months at Valley Forge no general disobedience to orders took place.

Discipline was maintained —but military courtesy as generations of latter-day U.S. soldiers would know it —was missing. Drills and ceremonies in snow and rain were impossible—even if the men had been physically capable of squads-left-and-right-ing. Instead of drilling the half-sick soldiers spent their daylight hours mould-

Living Room Gallery

Begun as relief for bareness of a wall, a mat now provides display for family art, like Greg Simpson's ink drawings of his cat, Puss-'N-Boots.

By WILMA SIMPSON

IF YOU have children and live in a house with at least one bare wall, you have room in your life for your own little gallery—a decorative focus of interest and a conversation piece for family and guests alike.

Ours began as a wall hanging intended to serve as a bareness cover-up. Prominently displayed in the living room, it is, essentially, a large mat on which we have fastened the children's art, prints of famous artists' work, clipped from magazines; dry leaf arrangements, and collections of sea shells. At Christmas time one year our most beautiful cards were displayed. Another year the children's snowflake designs cut from foil made an appropriate decoration. Each child has had his own exclusive "show" hung in our "gallery."

That mat is 7 feet long and 15 inches wide. It is made of bristol board covered in burlap which is dyed to match the sofa above which it hangs.

WE ARE a family of artists neither by present inclination nor inherited talent, and have never intended that our gallery be fit for the Metropoliton or any of her "sisterhood." What our hanging does is to lend dignity to, and appreciation for, the honest efforts and experiments of our family. It serves as a steady challenge to us all to think of new and different displays.

Once when we invited friends to see our colored slides made on a vacation trip, our gallery featured maps and colorful brochures gleaned from our travels.

Most importantly, more than any other feature in our home, our gallery speaks of us! For better or for worse, it says, "a particular (perhaps, peculiar!) group of individuals lives here." Your gallery can say the same for you!

Living Room Gallery

Begun as relief for bareness of a wall, a mat now provides display for family art, like Greg Simpson's ink drawings of his cat, Puss-'N-Boots.

By WILMA SIMPSON

IF YOU have children and live in a house with at least one bare wall, you have room in your life for your own little gallery—a decorative focus of interest and a conversation piece for family and guests alike.

Ours began as a wall hanging intended to serve as a bareness cover-up. Prominently displayed in the living room, it is, essentially, a large mat on which we have fastened the children's art, prints of famous artists' work, clipped from magazines; dry leaf arrangements, and collections of sea shells. At Christmas time one year our most beautiful cards were displayed. Another year the children's snowflake designs cut from foil made an appropriate decoration. Each child has had his own exclusive "show" hung in our "gallery."

That mat is 7 feet long and 15 inches wide. It is made of bristol board covered in burlap which is dyed to match the sofa above which it hangs.

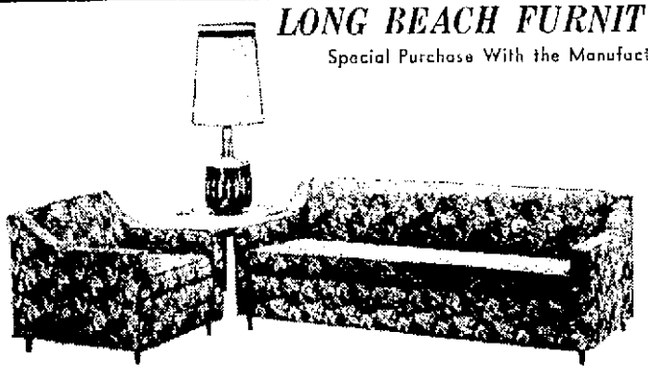

WE ARE a family of artists neither by present inclination nor inherited talent, and have never intended that our gallery be fit for the Metropolitan or any of her "sisterhood." What our hanging does is to lend dignity to, and appreciation for, the honest efforts and experiments of our family. It serves as a steady challenge to us all to think of new and different displays.

Once when we invited friends to see our colored slides made on a vacation trip, our gallery featured maps and colorful brochures gleaned from our travels.

Most importantly, more than any other feature in our home, our gallery speaks of us! For better or for worse, it says, "a particular (perhaps, peculiar!) group of individuals lives here." Your gallery can say the same for you!

It's a Short Cut to Spring

SOME 200 hairstylists from Hither and Yonsville are cutting more than a few new capers at the Lafayette Hotel today and tomorrow.

Armed with scissors, rollers, clips, curlers and everything else to make a hair-do do right, they're here from all over the United States and Canada to attend the 22nd annual Trade and Hairstyling Show sponsored by the Long Beach Hairdressers' Guild.

They'll sharpen up on techniques, brush up on new products and trends, also vie for wave notices, trophies and $500 in cash prizes when they "split hairs" in a series of staged competitions.

AND THE EXPERTS say it IS a hair-splitting season —not in condition (hair is healthier, shinier and straighter than ever), but in the versatility of cut.

Not by magic, but by pure artistry, they'll prove that short or medium-length tresses can easily make the transition from tennis court to afternoon cocktail party to formal evening affairs . . . and without benefit of hair pieces.

"The coming shape is the closer-to-the head cap coif, either smooth or curly," says Stephen Johns, vice president of the Guild. "Most styles are shorter than chin level . . . little caps of curls or the combination of straight-and-curly styles shaped to follow the curving line of the head.

"For evening, big, loppy curls or swirls are combined with straight hair for a dramatic contrast to give convertible day-to-evening versatility."

GUEST ARTIST for the Guild's two-day show will be Sallie Ponce of San Mateo, owner of the Ponce College of Beauty chain (one is located here) and winner of every major hairstyling award in this country and Europe, including a place on the U.S. Olympic Hairstyling team recently in Basel, Switzerland.

Shortly after the 12 noon opening of today's session, Miss Ponce will demonstrate some of the hairstyles she created in Europe, some shop styles and American-style show fantasy coifs.

Sunday's session also will include the women's contest (3:30 p.m.), the men's contest (7 p.m.) and a hair color parade. Monday there will be a team contest, refresher sessions and finals for the 16 winners in the men's and women's competitions. The coveted best-stylist award with its accompanying $500 prize will be presented as grand finale at 9:30 p.m.

Local stylist Roy Mercer is chairman of the show. President of the Guild is Kenny Kane.

Cycling Pedals to Its Biggest Boom

No Tandem!

Carrying riders is one of the major causes of bicycle accidents, motor officer Keith Day tells Robin Scott and Preston Fletcher. In fact, it is one of six causes from which two-thirds of all bike mishaps occur. The other causes:

—Riding into the street from between parked cars and out of driveways.

—Weaving in and out of traffic.

—Ignoring traffic signs and signals.

—Speeding and taking unnecessary and foolish chances.

—Failing to know safety rules and to obey the law.

By LOU JOBST

BICYCLING, long considered the business of children and health fans, is pedaling toward its biggest boom since the invention of the horseless carriage.

There are today an estimated 55 million bicycle riders in the U. S. and the number of cycling enthusiasts, ranging from toddlers to snow-thatched senior citizens, is growing in leaps and bounds.

Southern California—with some 5 to 6 million bicycles (4 million in Los Angeles County alone)—is a real hot bed of the cycling renaissance in America.

THE REGION'S widely varied geography and year-round temperate climate encourages this out-of-doors sport, while the fantastic numbers of autos, still the chief nemesis of the bicycle, tends to put the damper on large-scale wheeling.

The Southland has something for just about everyone, ranging from the sidewalk cyclist to the marathon rider.

For the serious cyclist there are scores of racing cycle clubs and dozens of bike events, including the Long Beach Bicycle Competition, a typical community event staged each fall and run last month by 250 competitors, ranging from pre-schoolers on trikes to octagenarians. A crowd of 10,000 persons looked on.

THE AVERAGE competitive cyclist or road rider may have $250 to $350 tied up in bikes and equipment. This includes such specialized parts as multiple chain cogs for a dozen different speeds, tubular aluminum alloy frames, easy snap-on-and-off wheels for speedy tire changes, toe clips and specially designed, 90-pound pressure tires.

There are growing numbers of family cycling grouns (mom and dad riding tandem with children in baskets) being seen on the highways during holidays and weekends.

And almost every neighborhood has its quota of "Scorpions," the cut-down "hot rod" bicycles that have become the latest youthful fad.

THE "HOT ROD" is a bicycle with undersized wheels and a riser or gooseneck that elevates the handlebars six to 18 inches.

Safety experts frown on the "hot rods," especially the homemade variety, as dangerous.

While the greater distances and two cars in virtually every garage in Southern California cuts down on the number of commuter bicycle riders (the growing thing in big eastern urban areas), there are more collegians pedaling to and from school and around campus on bikes and more housewives seen coasting into supermarket lots these days.

Demands are growing for places to take the skyrocketing number of two-wheelers.

COUNTY Supervisor Kenneth Hahn has called for construction of bike paths and trails along the ocean front and in the larger county parks.

"It would also be inexpensive to provide bike trails in some of our huge regional parks," said Hahn. Hahn also thinks the "bicycler" should be allowed to use the county's vast flood control network.

Long distance bike rides are growing in popularity.

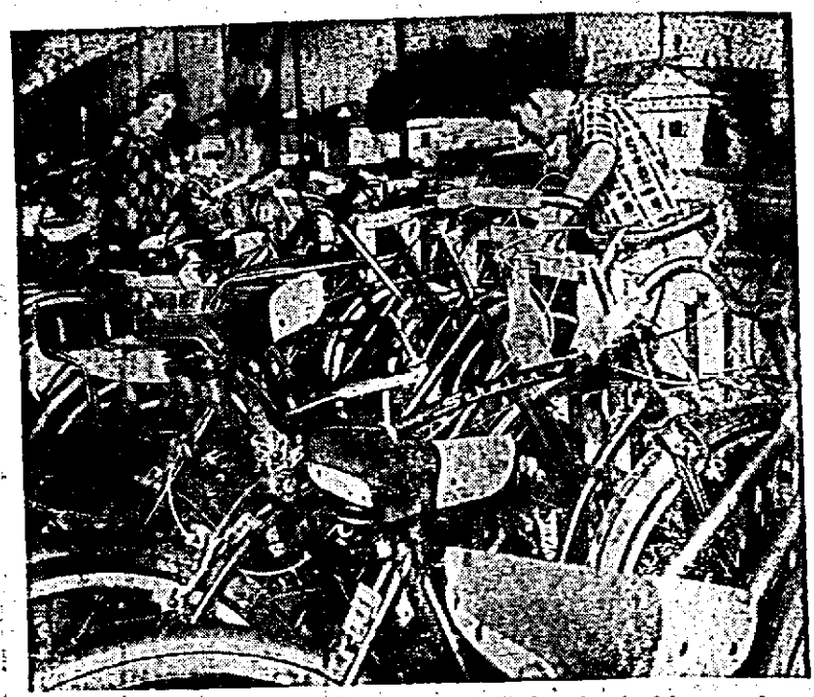

"You'd be amazed at the number of persons, especially during the summer, who take bike trips of more than 100 miles," says one bike association leader.

AMONG THE more sensational trips was a 3,600-mile trek last fall to the New York World's Fair by 45-year-old Los Angeles bookseller Adrian W. Cannon and his three sons. Two teenagers from the Norwalk area made the same trip about the same time in 37 days.

Typical of vacationing cyclists are teen-agers Ronald Rivera and Michael Walls of Los Angeles who, last year, took a 1,000-mile, three-week tour of the state.

King of the Southland bicyclists must be 32-year-old Franz Berghammer of Orange County who pedals at least 50 miles on weekdays and 100 miles on Sunday.

In these days of the bicycle boom, trying to find one's wheel in massed ranks at school is difficult, as Preston Fletcher and Robin Scott show.

Rebecca Hanna boards 1870 bicycle, aided by Mary Beth Hanna. Getting aboard is one thing and staying up there is another.

Melanie Had a Little Blanket

Melanie had a little blanket, its fleece was white as snow, and everywhere that Melanie went.... Well, you know the rest....

Little Melanie Sanders, a 3-year-old Costa Mesa belle, went to the mountains recently. She took along a couple of burros to carry her food and shelter, her daddy to carry her and, of course, her blanket.

As the pictures show, she might have not had her daddy or the burros around all the time but her blanket was always with her.

The trip was a two-week, 50-mile trek along the John Muir Trail in the High Sierra of the Yosemite National Park.

Melanie bore up very well. Her daddy and the burros got pretty tired. The blanket? Well, it got pretty dirty. But that didn't dampen Melanie's affection for it. Not one bit.

"In this country a girl needs a blanket."

"Traveling is easy with blanket underhand."

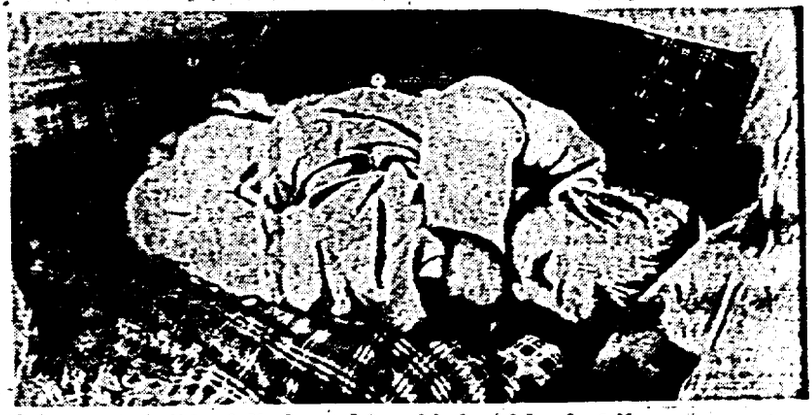

"That fire feels almost as good as my blanket."

"Who turned the sleeping bag around?"

"Even a wet blanket is better than no blanket at all."

"A girl's best friend is her blanket."

Viet Girls Join Guerrillas

By HOYT McAFEE

AS THE LONG, grinding war in Viet Nam swings from a stalemate to stepped-up air and land operations, girl guerrillas have responded to the call to arms. They are well trained, patriotic and adventurous of spirit, and capable of taking part in jungle warfare.

Very little publicity has come out on their quiet behind-the-scenes activity. One account did mention that male Vietnamese soldiers greeted their initial appearance in army auxiliary uniforms with "light mockery and teasing gestures."

But, this reporter has ascertained, at least two excellent sources admire the patriotism, spunk, and capabilities of the girl guerrillas—strongman Lt. Gen. Khanh and South Viet Nam Air Marshal Cao Ky. Further, in the days ahead these fiery-spirited young women are slated for jungle combat roles in their country's struggle against the Communist North.

Six years ago two of them came to the United States to attend college near El Paso. For something like six months they went to the bullfights each Sunday in Juarez, with American friends. That was where I first met them and learned much about their country during pleasant conversations with them.

AT A LATER date they decided to return home to Saigon and join a "bold and revolutionary new movement." Translated that meant the young women's army auxiliary corps in South Viet Nam.

In recent weeks, via an exchange of detailed correspondence with the two former girl students, I've managed to piece together a close-up word-picture of their training and military life. Right off they acquainted me with their first big hurdle, which was to convince the ruling political and military leaders in South Viet Nam that "we could be useful, on a fighting front, in warfare." They assured me further: "We had to overcome religious objections at every turn. Also, just plain prejudice against South Viet Namese women doing what only men are supposed to do.

"We mean by that, training to be watchers, spies, couriers, front-line communications' specialists, and how to bear arms in the combat zone. This may surprise you, our reporter friend—but most Vietnamese men think women should stay in the home.

"YOU KNOW, the same kind of deal we saw Mexican men give their wives and sweethearts in Juarez and other towns. Well, many of our young Vietnamese women stood that guff for a long time and kept in the background.

"Then they rebelled! As you're aware, we joined them and asserted our independent spirit and right to be of service to our country."

Fortunately, from the young Vietnamese women's point of view, several forward-looking, free-thinking, and powerful men in Saigon sympathized with their thinking and aspirations. More Important, they backed a plan to create the young women's auxiliary corps (for South Viet Nam).

In the beginning, my two informants made clear, they were trained to perform behind-the-fighting-line assignments. Tasks which called for them to serve as watchers from field lookout points, man telephone lines, serve as stretcher-bearers, and pull guard duty at staging areas.

"BUT TWO of our units learned to fire rifles and pistols and wield bayonets," they added. "It was what American GIs would call rugged training. We looked upon it as a challenge. Most of us wanted to be prepared to fight, up front, if there was a need for it.

"In the group with which we trained near Saigon, only three girls found the going too rough for them. They fell out and returned to duty in a military office."

My two South Vietnamese friends show little interest in political personalities. But they're both "high" on their country's two most dynamic personalities of the moment—Lt. Gen. Nyuyen Khanh and Air Marshal Cao Ky. These two, they report, would like to bring the South Vietnamese people "broadly the same kind of free, democratic government you Americans enjoy."

They reminded me, at the same time, of the different customs, manners, personality traits, and behavior patterns of South Vietnamese people. "But as we often remarked in our talks with you, our people are a bunch of fierce individualists."

Which accounts for the fact that some of them go in for melodramatic gestures to express their displeasure and defiance: and to try to win support for a particular cause. That's why numbers of Buddhist monks have soaked their saffron robes in gasoline and turned themselves into human torches. They thought their sacrifices would force the ruling powers to switch gears and support a policy championed by the Buddhists.

Girls of South Viet Nam, such as this one, have joined guerrillas to fight Communists.

THESE TWO intelligent and public-spirited South Vietnamese girls admit, regretfully, that it takes "the biggest kind of crisis" to rally their people to one cause, one objective, and all-out, united action against the Communist North.

"They have to feel that their country is about to be overwhelmed and despoiled by the North Vietnamese. Up till now, we must sadly tell you, too many of our people have thought of the conflict as a political and propaganda war—not a war of survival for their way of life."

On the other hand, they inform me, a progressive new step was taken three months ago. Lt. Gen. Khanh, the country's No. 1 strongman, quietly ordered rigorous training for a girl guerrilla unit. Although the competition was fierce, my two friends finally qualified.

Since then, as they sum up, "we've had a real taste of training in jungle warfare. Maybe this may sound bloodthirsty to some, but we've been taught how to crawl through mud and slime. How to sneak up behind an enemy and cut his throat. How to camouflage ourselves in a treetop and serve as snipers."

AS MIGHT BE expected, this strenuous training program toughened them up considerably, physically. But it was the only way for them to prepare to be of genuine service to their country in a guerrilla campaign. And no matter how much the war spreads in Viet Nam, a considerable amount of fighting will still be done in guerrilla fashion—especially in the jungle areas.

Now Viet Nam's girl guerrillas are being called upon to put their training to the test. Rampaging Viet Cong (enemy) guerrillas already have struck several devastating blows. For example, their recent daredevil raid on Holloway Air Field, near Pleiku, in which they killed 8 Americans and wounded 128 others.

WOMEN IN WARFARE

Viet Girls Join Guerrillas

By HOYT McAFEE

AS THE LONG, grinding war in Viet Nam swings from a stalemate to stepped-up air and land operations, girl guerrillas have responded to the call to arms. They are well trained, patriotic and adventurous of spirit, and capable of taking part in jungle warfare.

Very little publicity has come out on their quiet behind-the-scenes activity. One account did mention that male Vietnamese soldiers greeted their initial appearance in army auxiliary uniforms with "light mockery and teasing gestures."

But, this reporter has ascertained, at least two excellent sources admire the patriotism, spunk, and capabilities of the girl guerrillas—strongman Lt. Gen. Khanh and South Viet Nam Air Marshal Cao Ky. Further, in the days ahead these fiery-spirited young women are slated for jungle combat roles in their country's struggle against the Communist North.

Girls of South Viet Nam, such as this one, have joined guerrillas to fight Communists.

Six years ago two of them came to the United States to attend college near El Paso. For something like six months they went to the bullfights each Sunday in Juarez, with American friends. That was where I first met them and learned much about their country during pleasant conversations with them.

AT A LATER date they decided to return home to Saigon and join a "bold and revolutionary new movement." Translated that meant the young women's army auxiliary corps in South Viet Nam.

WILLBANKS CARPETING DRAPERIES

Another view of the new family room, carpeted and comfortably appointed.

THE CONTEMPORARY dining room set has a Spanish feeling. The table is rich, oiled walnut. Chairs are upholstered in peacock blue with green. A glittering Venetian chandelier hangs above the table.

The dinette is located on the other side of the center kitchen. The table is a glass oval with white wrought iron trim. Chairs are white wrought iron. Steps up to the bedroom and down to the den lead from this room.

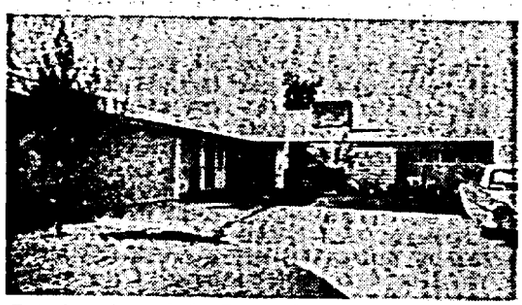

Stairways are carpeted in avocado and the light iron railing is the same color in a pale shade. Gold is the color accent in the master bedroom. Drapes and spread are gold as is the carpeting. The headboard is hand carved and a French phone is near the bed. Hanging lamps are in front of the antique mirror. A dressing room area leads to the new master bath. Deluxe features include solid walnut cabinets and fine lamps. A shooting star chandelier lights the stairway to the suite.

THE SUNKEN DEN is carpeted in avocado. Palo Verde stone is used on the fireplace and the wall nearby is paneled in walnut. Occasional chairs are upholstered in shades of orchid and the sofa is light beige.

The room belonging to Jimmy, age five, has the bright color accent of an orange bed spread. Above the bed is an array of auto pictures.

Six-year-old JoNel has a yellow and brown room. Her spread is quilted gold-yellow with a brown print duster. The cornice above the tiered curtains matches the duster. Dressing table and chests of drawers are dainty white.

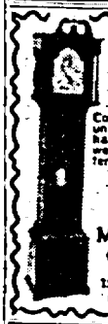

LORI, aged 9, Gina, 8, share what used to be the large master bedroom with its own private bath. The walls of the room are pale green. Drapes are various shades of blue with royal predominating. Mrs. Dayen made a cornice which hangs above the twin beds to match the drapes. The beds are on a single brass headboard and covered with a large white spread.

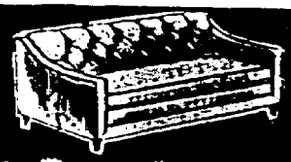

Exterior view of the Dayen home in Los Alamitos.

Another view of the new family room, carpeted and comfortably appointed.

THE CONTEMPORARY dining room set has a Spanish feeling. The table is rich, oiled walnut. Chairs are upholstered in peacock blue with green. A glittering Venetian chandelier hangs above the table.

The dinette is located on the other side of the center kitchen. The table is a glass oval with white wrought iron trim. Chairs are white wrought iron. Steps up to the bedroom and down to the den lead from this room.

Stairways are carpeted in avocado and the light iron railing is the same color in a pale shade. Gold is the color accent in the master bedroom. Drapes and spread are gold as is the carpeting. The headboard is hand carved and a French phone is near the bed. Hanging lamps are in front of the antique mirror. A dressing room area leads to the new master bath. Deluxe features include solid walnut cabinets and fine lamps. A shooting star chandelier lights the stairway to the suite.

THE SUNKEN DEN is carpeted in avocado. Palo Verde stone is used on the fireplace and the wall nearby is paneled in walnut. Occasional chairs are upholstered in shades of orchid and the sofa is light beige.

The room belonging to Jimmy, age five, has the bright color accent of an orange bed spread. Above the bed is an array of auto pictures.

Six-year-old JoNel has a yellow and brown room. Her spread is quilted gold-yellow with a brown print duster. The cornice above the tiered curtains matches the duster. Dressing table and chests of drawers are dainty white.

LORI, aged 9, Gina, 8, share what used to be the large master bedroom with its own private bath. The walls of the room are pale green. Drapes are various shades of blue with royal predominating. Mrs. Dayen made a cornice which hangs above the twin beds to match the drapes. The beds are on a single brass headboard and covered with a large white spread.

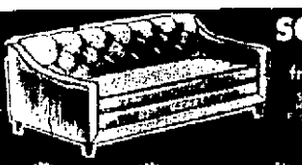

Exterior view of the Dayen home in Los Alamitos.

No-Bake Pie Is Special

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IF YOU are planning a dinner party real soon, try making a dessert that's delicious, elegant and easy. Chocolate Apricot Pie, with a crust of crumbled chocolate cream-filled cookies and an attractive scalloped border of whole cookies, is a dream dessert. No baking is needed for this pie shell and its fluffy filling of apricot nectar and a hint of mace.

No-Bake Chocolate Apricot Pie

- 28 Hydrox Cookies
- 6 tblesp. melted butter or margarine
- 1 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- ½ cup sugar
- ⅛ tsp. mace
- 1 can apricot nectar, 5½ oz.
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1/16 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. grated lemon rind
- ¼ cup sugar

With rolling pin, crush 16 cookies between waxed paper into fine crumbs; blend in melted butter or margarine. Press mixture evenly over bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Place remaining cookies around sides to form scalloped edge. Refrigerate. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water to soften. Mix ½ cup sugar with mace and apricot nectar. Beat egg yolks with salt until pale in color; stir in apricot mixture. Place mixture in top of double boiler and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture coats a metal spoon; remove from heat. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved; add lemon rind. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, until consistency of unbeaten egg whites, but do not allow to set. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks; add ¼ cup sugar gradually and continue to beat until the peaks are quite stiff. Fold gently into thickened apricot mixture. Pour into crumb shell and chill until set. Yield: 6 servings. (For a swirled top: Place container of egg whites and apricot mixture in bowl of ice cubes. Stir gently until almost set. Pour into shell and swirl top with knife or spoon. Refrigerate.)

One could almost say, "How elegant can you get?" with this no-bake, taste-treat pie!

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give brief data on MANCHESTER—J.M., L.M., Long Beach; F.S., Torrance.

MANCHESTER family ancestors were formerly citizens of the English city of Manchester in Lancashire. This city was originally called Man-Ceaster, a coupling of the ancient Celtic term "man" meaning "place," with the Latin-Saxon "ceaster" for "army camp." Records of Freeman of York dated 1325 list John de Manchestre, a remote forefather. The Manchester shield is covered with T-shaped pieces of fur, colored silver and black in a checkered pattern. A diagonal red stripe crosses this background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you inform us on MUHLIG. —S. M., Norwalk.

S. M.: MUHLIG had its inception in German-speaking Switzerland. Mulig is a Swiss dialectical form of the archaic German warrior title "Modo-Wald," meaning "spirited ruler." No amorial shield is accessible for Muhlig.

"DEAR MISS RULE: Please identify ROSZELL. —G. R., A. R., Long Beach.

G. A., A. R.: ROSZELL originated in medieval Germany as "Hrodo-zel," deciphered as "young and famous one." Despite the fame accorded to this family's ancestor, the Roszell shield is not in available records.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on McNAY, McNEY, NAY?—M. M., Lakewood; B. E., H. M., Long Beach.

M. M., B. E.: McNAY is both Scottish and Irish and background. McNey and Nay are spelling variations. The Gaelic source "Mac Neidhe" described "son of the champion." This clan were from Connaught, Ireland, and Argyl, Scotland.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on GAROUTTE?—E. G., Westminster.

E., G.: GAROUTTE had its source in the French occupational term "Garouet." This medieval cognomen described "young cultivater of daphne shrubs," a plant used for medicinal properties. The Garrouet shield from Brittany, granted to ancestors of the Garoutte

Time's Journal

By Helen Gillum

NOTHING could be a more startling reminder of time's swift flight than an old calendar, like the one dated 1898, owned by Mrs. Walter Bonitta of 12036 E. 208th St., Lakewood. But, if it is any consolation to the harried human being of today, who, for one reason or another, sometimes wishes that he could stop the clock, this 67-year-old memento of yesteryear also reminds us that those "good old days" often extrolled by Grandpa and Grandma, have actually been replaced by better ones. For who, after all, wants to journey to Marineland or the new Music Center behind the flicking tail of a complacent dapple-gray? Or drag out the washboard and big zinc tubs each Monday morning?

Reminder of long past "good old days" is page (above) from a calendar of 1898, now a collector's item and in possession of a Lakewood resident.

The 6x9-inch calendar and collectors' item is an interesting study of calendar styles and formats used around the turn of the century. Instead of the horizontal pattern of today's calendars, the days of the week go up and down on this one. And, in contrast to the abstract designs and photographic displays featured on modern calendar leaves, this one carries pretty pastel landscapes and flowers and prim little verses on each page. Each picture appropriately depicts a month of the year, and is fittingly illustrated with selections from the works of leading poets of the 1800s, such as Longfellow, Whittier, and Wordsworth.

CALENDARS date back to earliest Egyptian times. Just as today, those calendars had 365 days in each year, consisting of twelve 30-day months, plus five feast days. The early Babylonians, Greeks and Romans also had calendars of various forms, but the one introduced in 1477 A.D. by Pope Gregory was the one accepted by the Christian world, and, except for a few minor changes, is in most common use today.

Mrs. Bonitta obtained the calendar from her mother, who received it from a friend in 1898. But if there still be anyone who, after the start of an exciting new year, would cry, "Pause, O Time in thy merciless flight!", he can ponder on this quaintly comforting verse by Montgomery on the February leaf of Mrs. Bonitta's calendar:

"Ah, why, unfeeling Winter! why
Still flags the torpid wing?
Fly, melancholy season, fly
And yield the year to Spring!"

A Sudden Burst of Spring

Cheery atmosphere for the home is expressed in this spring flower arrangement, one that the 11,500 florists across the country can "send by wire" to friends, relatives around world.

SPRING, by the calendar, is yet far off, but spring in an arrangement of bright flowers—spring flowers, no less—can cheer your home or be sent winging over the wires to friends and relatives across the nation or in foreign lands. Your nearest florist is the source of this floral gaiety.

Day dull outside? Enjoy the warmth indoors by sipping a hot orange-lemon drink. An album of songs about warm weather can chase away the whistle of blustery winds. And by putting bread crumbs on the window sill, you can have your own springtime bird choir.

Even on the dreariest days, gay yellow place mats on the breakfast table can help everyone get off to a bright start. An evening spent viewing slides with friends you haven't seen since last spring can revive memories of pleasant adventures.

Fresh spring flowers—tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, iris—are also available for immediate relief from Jack Frost and Jupiter Pluvius. Grown in greenhouses, these brilliantly colored blossoms can now be obtained from florists either as cut flowers, already arranged, or in pots.

Families can toast marshmallows in the fireplace and look at a sunburst of daffodils, tulips and iris at the same time. An imaginative hostess can delight guests with a special centerpiece of vibrant red tulips, soft lavender iris, and bright yellow daffodils.

Creating lovely floral accents for the home is both easy and inexpensive. And there is no need to wait for an "occasion"—Spring posies add that extra touch to make any day just a little nicer. A pot of hyacinths on the kitchen table or window sill can remind homemakers of spring's fragrance all day long.

As accents for tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, and iris, you can use sprigs of pussywillow, heather, forsythia, or early flowering fruit branches. Add to these a container (anything which will hold two or three inches of water), a pin holder, water, and a bit of ingenuity. The result—Spring now!

And since these blossoms are available from florists across the country—around the world in fact—your florist can send a happy greeting from you to friends and relatives.

Why not turn the calendar ahead with a bright array of fresh spring flowers? After all, spring is as near as the local florist.

Floral Designs Simple

IT'S EASY to use Spring flowers to create a pleasing floral design by combining a sense of harmony (proportion, balance, contrast of color, texture and form) with a few simple steps.

Here are some suggestions to take the sting out of February and March by arranging the tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and iris that are already available at local florists.

1. Assemble materials, including a container, sharp knife, pin holder or chicken wire, and clay.

2. Purchase tightly budded fresh flowers from your florist.

3. Cut stems at an angle with a sharp knife (scissors pinch the stems, preventing absorption of moisture), wrap tightly in wax paper, and place in a bowl of water until you begin arranging.

4. Anchor pin holder in dry container with clay.

5. Taller flowers should be in back or, in the case of a centerpiece, in the middle. For the latter, try to balance the blooms for a pleasing effect from all sides.

6. For a low dish arrangement, iris and daffodils can do well with an inch or two of moisture; however, full bouquets (especially containing tulips) need more water.

7. Every few days add fresh tap water that is not too cold. There is no need to change the water unless it becomes discolored.

8. Keep bulb flowers away from heat and sunlight. If the arrangement is displayed in a warm area, shift it to a cool place each night.

9. Sit back and enjoy your Spring flowers.

Enjoy a Pot of Flowers

Pots of blushing Spring flowers in mid-winter are beautiful reminders that warm weather is "just around the corner."

Clusters of bell-shaped blossoms on a single hyacinth stem send a fragrant message of Spring throughout the house. Tall, slender tulips and daffodils nod their heads, as if saying, "Soon you'll hear the robin's song."

Spring flowers in pots, now in abundant supply at florists, nurseries, and garden centers, are an inexpensive way of bidding an early "Hello" to Spring. Tulips, daffodils and hyacinths should be purchased tightly budded for longer enjoyment. When kept in a cool area, away from sunshine and heat, and watered frequently, potted Spring flowers will last for many days.

FOOD LOCKER DELICACY

Fireflies of the Deep

By Aubrey B. Haines

One of the ocean's strangest animals — the squid—is becoming popular on American dinner tables. Southland fishermen and Terminal Island canneries rejoice at this, for Los Angeles is one of the largest squid ports in the nation.

Millions of tons of common squid — six to eight-inch wiggly, torpedo-shaped mollusks—are caught in Southland waters annually. For years the only market has been the Philippines, where squid are a favorite food, or where they have been used as bait by fishermen.

Recently Terminal Island canneries have begun packaging squid and introducing them as a frozen food in markets from coast to coast. "Squid have a long way to go before they become a major sea food," says Andrew F. Bonacich of Star-Kist Foods, "but they have a great potential." In 1963, 11.5 million pounds of squid were taken off California shores.

The squid's becoming a U. S. food source.

MORE luminous than fireflies, squid can change color. Found in every sea, they live at all depths down to a mile or more. The 350 known species range from midgets that can perch on the top of a finger to giant squid, which live in the deepest waters and grow to 100 feet and longer.

At times "living oceans" of squid appear in local waters—100 square miles and more of the solid sea animals churning the sea. In 1858 the Dutch ship Vriendentrouw sailed for two hours through a sea of dead squid, which covered the surface of the ocean as far as one could see. During the 1940 Michael Lerner American Museum of Natural History expedition to Chile and Peru, fishermen found that the strongest steel wire they could obtain was often bitten in two by the large Humboldt current squid.

Real terrors of the deep, the giant squid are the largest of all invertebrates. The biggest squid ever landed in Southern California waters have been 17 feet long. Harpooned whales have been found severely scarred by huge suction cups of giant squid. Squid beaks have been found inside stomachs of some whales.

SQUID HAVE 10 tentacles, two of which are twice as long as the other eight. They have well-developed eyes and are the fastest of all sea organisms as they propel in jet-like fashion by drawing water in through openings of their heads and expelling water through a small tube.

The common American squid zig-zags slowly toward its prey. When within striking distance it turns toward the intended victim and shoots forward like an arrow. The arms spread out, and the tentacles shoot out and clasp the prey, which is drawn back and grasped by the waiting arms. Squid are not always successful. If a fish repeatedly escapes, they give up the chase.

Southland fishermen welcome the growing popularity of common squid in cities such as New York, Chicago and Cleveland. Squid boats go out on dark nights, spray powerful lights on inky sea, and attract tons of the small mollusks to the surface. There they are scooped onto decks for commercial use or into tanks to be used as live bait for sports fishermen.

Toy Tank Playhouse

There's fun aplenty in a toy tank playhouse; and good exercise climbing in and out, too.

By Bill Meyerriecks

SKETCHBOOK IN past projects has offered to parents working plans on playhouses for children. One was the "treeless treehouse," another was the conventional doll house that could be prefabricated. These are popular plans. This week's design plan takes an entirely different slant on the clubhouse idea. It is something to stir the imagination of the five-to-eight-year-old boy. Imagine him having his own playhouse in the form of an army tank!

With things military being such popular toys these days, the tank fits right in with their play. This particular plan, S-201, is no small project, though. Dad can plan on using two sheets of exterior plywood and two sheets of tempered hardboard for the skin and framing of the tank's body. Other one-inch lumber is needed for the interior framing and exterior moulding. Scrap lumber around the garage can be utilized as well.

THE FINISHED product, though, is dramatic as well as fun for the boys. The 4-foot square area that can be used as a meeting place holds three or four little boys. And the tank can be made to move by installing wheels as seen in the illustration. The particulars on this are found in the Sketchbook plan.

Another big plus to make the tank real as possible is the revolving turret. It actually can be made to spin around at an imaginary enemy force. Two trap doors form the floor inside the tank. They open up so that the boys can "walk" the tank into action when they want. All in all, the toy tank will really stir the youngsters' imagination. Not only that, it is an excellent exercise climber for them.

To order Sketchbook Design S-201, send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Mosaic You Can Make

By Steve Ellingson

MOSAICS are one of the oldest forms of art. Their history dates back to the rites of the Hebrew ancients in the Temple of Solomon. In those days the high priest wore a breast plate divided into 12 squares. In each square was a different colored jewel to represent one of the tribes of Israel. The breast plate was said to have been first worn by Moses, hence the word "mosaic" has come to us.

Tulip design mosaic, shown here with Janet Blair, may be made at home for table or wall hanging.

In our modern age, mosaics enjoy a striking revival as a decorative architectural medium and popular craft.

Any inexperienced amateur can master mosaics with professional results. Here's what you do, first trace a full size pattern on a circular piece of plywood and glue the mosaic tile right over the tracings. The pattern shows where to put the different colors, along with complete details. Then install do-it-yourself type table legs which are sold in stores. If it's to be used on the wall, fasten hangers on the back as you would in hanging a picture. You may complete the project right in your living room. The cost is slight.

To obtain the full size pattern No. 210 for making the tulip design mosaic table pictured, send $1 by check, currency or money order to Steve Ellingson, Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

WHY CHILDREN LEARN MUSIC BETTER ON A HAMMOND ORGAN

Children are born with a sense of rhythm, an instinctive response to melody. Music lessons can be as natural for a child as learning to talk. Read how a Hammond Organ fosters this natural process and gently disciplines his musical instincts.

When a child presses a certain key on a Hammond Organ he hears a certain note. When he releases it, the sound stops. Simple, natural, cause and effect.

Whenever he presses that key, he hears the same note. Natural, predictable, reassuring to a child. He quickly learns this relationship, but, more important, he understands it because it is natural and satisfies a child's strong sense of logic. But the genius of a Hammond goes beyond its logic. The instrument satisfies him with its rich, mellow tone.

What he plays sounds important, and when he sounds good, he knows he's making progress.

A Hammond Organ introduces him to many instrumental voices . . . teaches him how to identify brasses, strings, woodwinds, and he goes quickly from identification into a growing ability to blend them into magnificent orchestral effects.

No other organ gives him such a variety of tones. No other organ allows him to manipulate them as easily. In addition, a Hammond Organ gives him rich echo effects, brilliant percussion accents, subtle vibrato expressions . . . more total music than he can explore in a lifetime.

We provide excellent lesson programs for children. Patient and knowledgeable teachers will instruct your child individually. We have plans for teaching children and parents together. Nurturing your child's instinct for music is the most natural thing in the world. You'll give him more music, more understanding, more lifelong satisfaction, if you start him on the natural instrument—a Hammond Organ.

Elizabeth Knott and Dean Davisson try to figure out the keyboard of this strange musical instrument which is unnamed.

What Is It?

By Bob Loeffelbein

ELIZABETH KNOTT can play it, even if she can't name it!

It's a sample of early Americana, but just how early no one seems to know, because no one even knows what it is.

"It," in this case, gives the appearance of a small piano keyboard allied with a miniature xylophone turned on its side. It is played like a piano, though it has a shorter musical range.

The "piano simile" is displayed among early American musical instruments at the Miniatures Building of Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park. A sign on the instrument proclaims it as an "unknown."

EXAMINATION of records of acquisitions has failed to reveal where the instrument came from, and examination of the instrument itself presents no company name or identifying marks for tracing.

In a further attempt to establish the instrument's name and history, pictures have been sent to the administrator of UCLA's Institute of Ethnomusicology, a department of the university dealing with foreign and exotic music, as well as early American.

Elizabeth Knott and Dean Davisson try to figure out the keyboard of this strange musical instrument which is unnamed.

What Is It?

By Bob Loeffelbein

ELIZABETH KNOTT can play it, even if she can't name it!

It's a sample of early Americana, but just how early no one seems to know, because no one even knows what it is.

"It," in this case, gives the appearance of a small piano keyboard allied with a miniature xylophone turned on its side. It is played like a piano, though it has a shorter musical range.

The "piano simile" is displayed among early American musical instruments at the Miniatures Building of Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park. A sign on the instrument proclaims it as an "unknown."

EXAMINATION of records of acquisitions has failed to reveal where the instrument came from, and examination of the instrument itself presents no company name or identifying marks for tracing.

In a further attempt to establish the instrument's name and history, pictures have been sent to the administrator of UCLA's Institute of Ethnomusicology, a department of the university dealing with foreign and exotic music, as well as early American.

Beatty Faces the Big Cats

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

HAVE you ever yearned to stick your head in a lion's mouth—just for kicks, of course? Clyde Beatty advises against obeying that impulse and he should know since he is rated as America's best known animal trainer. Legions of circus fans who love the smell of sawdust, the blare of the circus band will thrill at life under the big top as revealed by Clyde Beatty in "FACING THE BIG CATS" (Doubleday, $5.95.)

Illustrating the 342 page volume are 48 photographs of Beatty in action with his dangerous charges. Collaborating with Beatty in writing the book is Edward Anthony, who also collaborated with Beatty on "The Big Cage" and with Frank Buck on "Bring 'em Back Alive" and "Wild Cargo."

Beatty reveals that in 40 years he has trained 1,000 lions, 1,000 tigers, a lesser assortment of leopards, jaguars and pumas he has traveled 1,000,000 miles and given 30,000 performances.

Beatty started as a cage boy in an American circus with the British sounding name Great London Circus. "Although I was not aware of it at the time, what I learned in handling bears was to prove an important factor in my subsequent success as a big cat trainer," he states. All the big cat trainers started with smaller animals, including Louis Roth, Beatty's original mentor.

Throughout his long and dangerous career, Clyde Beatty has had many brush with death. He recounts harrowing incidents of fires, electrical storms, floods and mechanical and human errors that nearly cost his life. For instance, there was the time in Marion, Ind. when Pharaoh, a magnificent lion weighing almost 700 pounds escaped and roamed loose in the audience. In recounting this scene, Beatty mentions that Eddie Dullum, chief clown, was on the scene. Eddie Dullum will be remembered by Long Beach old-timers as a former resident of this city. Even in his school days at the old George Washington Junior High School Eddie Dullum dreamed of someday becoming a circus clown.

The circus-going public has a healthy curiosity about training wild animals. One of the most common questions is whether the trained animals are old, decrepit. toothless. "Anyone seeing the big cats grind up bones has a chance to see the teeth that do the grinding," says Beatty.

ZOE OLDENBOURG, historical writer, coisiders her "CATHERINE THE GREAT" (Pantheon, $5.95) more of a character study than a biography. And she is right, interesting as the book is. The author, who is mainly interested in how Catherine came to the throne, puts the emphasis on the woman and the changes in her rather than on the dominant empress.

Much of the book is devoted to the mid-18th Century, from Catherine's childhood to her opportunistic grab at the rulership of the Russias when she was 33. There followed 34 years in which she reigned.

Catherine is shown as a gawky little princess from a small German principality who made a marriage of convenience with a subnormal heir of the Russian title, Peter Ulrich who briefly became Peter III.

Catherine had to serve long years of fearful apprenticeship under Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great before she became an autocratic empress, favoring the nobility, oppressing the serfs and bankrupting her empire in feverish ostentation.

POIGNANT is the word for "ONE YEAR IN AUTUMN" by Kathleen Kranidas (Lippincott, $4.50), a slim jewel-like novel that the reading public is likely to talk about for as long as it talks about Sylvia Ashton-Warner's "Spinster."

Kathleen Kranidas' heroine is a spinster, too, a 42-year-old Seattle high school English teacher—the kind of outgoing, inspiring dedicated teacher that everyone should have at least once in his lifetime.

But Jessica Courtguard falls in love with a 21-year-old artist, perilously close to beatnik, the brother of one of her pupils. The easy relationship becomes fraught with tension and self-consciousness. The author handles with delicacy the material that could be sensational. At the crisis—when Jessica believes she had deluded herself not only about her students' integrity but her own—one feels compassion, not shock. Descriptions of Seattle and environs are bewitching. Be sure to read this novel.

STATE COLLEGE instructors continue to turn out first-rate books. The latest, and undoubtedly the most unique, is "THIS IS KENDO" by Dr. Junzo Sasamori and Dr. Gordon Warner (Tuttle, $5.25). To begin at the beginning, kendo is the traditional art of Japanese fencing; Dr. Sasamori is the outstanding Japanese proponent of kendo, holder of the hanshi rank (the highest honorary title in kendo), member of the House of Representatives, Japanese National Diet; Dr. Warner, noted kendoist, holder of the sixth rank, is a faculty member of the Department of Education at California State College at Long Beach.

Kendo, originally the Japanese feudal art of swordsmanship, has become a sport popular with both sexes. This is believed to be the first book written in English describing and analyzing kendo.

"This is Kendo" covers origin and history of kendo, basic kendo principles and techniques, relationship between kendo and Zen, kendo etiquette. Clear-cut descriptions of the most important strikes, offensive and defensive positions and training exercises are given. More than 100 photographs and drawings.

"THE KNIGHTED SKIES, A Pictorial History of World War I in the Air" by Edward Jablonski (Putnam, $7.95) presents in text and authentic photographs World War I in the air, its young pilots and its unpredictable aircraft. The volume is a carefully documented and researched history of the battles that shaped the course of modern warfare. The first air war, detached as it was from the barbed wire, mud and other grim realities of the ground fighting, took on a folklore quality. Richthofen, Ball, Guynemer, the Lafayette Escadrille, Boelcke, Fonk, Bishop and Rickenbacker move across its pages — as do the Spads and other fighter Fokkers, Nieuports, Se-5s, planes and bombers.

PRINCE ALBERT, husband of Queen Victoria, is the subject of Hector Bolitho's "ALBERT, PRINCE CONSORT" (Bobbs-Merrill, $5.95). He gives Albert considerable credit for the survival of monarchy in Great Britain.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on BRITT. —A. B., Long Beach.

A. B.: BRITT developed from the Anglo-Saxon 12th century English word "Beorht" meaning "brilliant one." This name was recorded as early as A. D. 699 when Beorht, a Northumbrian nobleman, was slain by the Picts in England. The Devonshire Britt shield is black, emblazoned with a silver crosswise stripe between three gold seashells.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform on DE PREKER.—R. D., Lakewood; E. D., Long Beach.

R. D., E. D.: DE PREKER is from Holland. The Dutch root-phrase "De-Perchi-Heri" eulogized "descendants of the brilliant warrior." No shield is available for De Preker.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze ALMEIDA. —I. A., San Pedro.

I. A.: ALMEIDA, a dialectical Portuguese name, had two sources. It primarily indicates "from the poplar grove," but is also from Almete meaning "wearer of a helmet." The Almeida shield is red with a gold border, decorated in the center with a gold cross between three gold coins.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on HJELM — H. H., Garden Grove.

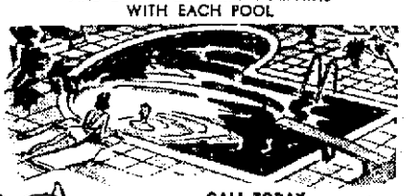

H. H.: HJELM developed from the old Norse word "Hjalmar," meaning "helmet," meaning figuratively "helmeted soldier." Hjelm is both Swedish and Norwegian. No shield is recorded for this family.

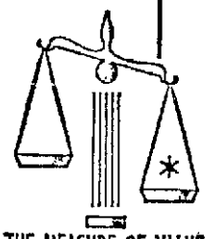

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly explain LAVELLE from Ireland—W. L., Wilmington.

W. L.: LAVELLE had its beginning as the romantic Irish clan name O'Maol-Fabhail" that deciphered as "sons of the man fond of travel." The early surname was modernized as Mulvihill in Donegal and as Lavelle in West Connaught, Ireland.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you the background on NISBET, NISBETH.— R. N., C. N., Paramount; O. W., Long Beach.

NISBET and the spelling variation NISBETH are from the town-name Nisbet. Places by this name are in the Scottish counties of Berwick and Roxburgh. Nisbet, also spelled Nesbit, began as "Naess-bita," a geological phrase for "small area of low ground." The Clan Nisbet shield is silver, embossed with three black boar heads and accompanied by the motto "I Byde It."

Decisions, Brain Speed Link Found

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

PERSONS with slow brain waves require more time to decide between alternatives than do those with fast brain waves, new research shows.

Brain waves are tiny electrical impulses in brain tissue.

The finding is that of Dr. Walter W. Surwillo of the National Institutes of Health who tested 54 men 34 to 92 years old in Baltimore City Hospitals.

The experimental subjects were not told the purpose of the experiment but were asked to quickly press a key to distinguish between the loudness of various tones emitted from a loudspeaker. During the experiment, brain-wave tracings (electroencephalograms) were taken.

The conclusion drawn from the experiment was that the information capacity of the central nervous system depends on brain-wave frequency. Information capacity decreases with advancing age.

The report is in the journal Electroencephalography and Clinical Neurophysiology.

THE AMERICAN Academy of Pediatrics has recommended that all newborn babies be tested for phenylketonuria (PKU), an inherited metabolic disorder that causes mental retardation.

Tests should be performed before the baby leaves the hospital.

The Academy also recommends that babies be tested for two other inherited metabolic disorders—galactosemia and fructosemia—which, unless corrected, may lead to retardation or death.

All these disorders can be controlled by diet if discovered early enough.

EVEN SHORT exposure is sufficient to cause a serious fungus disease, histoplasmosis, an expert on the disease says.

Dr. Michael L. Furcolow, former researcher for the Public Health Service, tells of one patient who became infected after staying in a storm cellar for only five minutes.

"Histo" is caused by inhalation of fungus-bearing dust.

THE INCIDENCE of rheumatoid arthritis in the tropics is the lowest in the world, a new study discloses.

The finding is based on a two-year population survey of a Puerto Rican community. Nurses interviewed the total adult population of Guaynabo (pop. 3,885).

Total incidence in the town was 0.92%: 1.2% in women and 0.3% in men.

An earlier study of Pima Indians in the U. S. showed a prevalence rate of 5.4%. Other studies in England, Holland and Finland disclosed a prevalence of 5%.

The report is in the journal Arthritis and Rheumatism.

AMONG laboratory animals, death from bleeding is more apt to occur in warm spring and summer months than during cold fall and winter months, new research shows.

In other words, animals tolerate blood loss better in the fall and winter.

The finding is that of Dr. Henry Swan and associates of the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

As a result of the finding, the researchers recommend that any experiments involving hemorrhage or shock should be planned so that both the experimental series and the control (comparison) series are run at the same time. Otherwise, findings may not be valid.

The report is in Archives of Surgery.

PERSONS with slow brain waves require more time to decide between alternatives than do those with fast brain waves, new research shows.

Brain waves are tiny electrical impulses in brain tissue.

The finding is that of Dr. Walter W. Surwillo of the National Institutes of Health who tested 54 men 34 to 92 years old in Baltimore City Hospitals.

The experimental subjects were not told the purpose of the experiment but were asked to quickly press a key to distinguish between the loudness of various tones emitted from a loudspeaker. During the experiment, brain-wave tracings (electroencephalograms) were taken.

The conclusion drawn from the experiment was that the information capacity of the central nervous system depends on brain-wave frequency. Information capacity decreases with advancing age.

The report is in the journal Electroencephalography and Clinical Neurophysiology.

THE AMERICAN Academy of Pediatrics has recommended that all newborn babies be tested for phenylketonuria (PKU), an inherited metabolic disorder that causes mental retardation.

Tests should be performed before the baby leaves the hospital.

The Academy also recommends that babies be tested for two other inherited metabolic disorders—galactosemia and fructosemia—which, unless corrected, may lead to retardation or death.

All these disorders can be controlled by diet if discovered early enough.

EVEN SHORT exposure is sufficient to cause a serious fungus disease, histoplasmosis, an expert on the disease says.

Dr. Michael L. Furcolow, former researcher for the Public Health Service, tells of one patient who became infected after staying in a storm cellar for only five minutes.

"Histo" is caused by inhalation of fungus-bearing dust.

THE INCIDENCE of rheumatoid arthritis in the tropics is the lowest in the world, a new study discloses.

The finding is based on a two-year population survey of a Puerto Rican community. Nurses interviewed the total adult population of Guaynabo (pop. 3,885).

Total incidence in the town was 0.92%: 1.2% in women and 0.3% in men.

An earlier study of Pima Indians in the U. S. showed a prevalence rate of 5.4%. Other studies in England, Holland and Finland disclosed a prevalence of 5%.

The report is in the journal Arthritis and Rheumatism.

AMONG laboratory animals, death from bleeding is more apt to occur in warm spring and summer months than during cold fall and winter months, new research shows.

In other words, animals tolerate blood loss better in the fall and winter.

The finding is that of Dr. Henry Swan and associates of the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

As a result of the finding, the researchers recommend that any experiments involving hemorrhage or shock should be planned so that both the experimental series and the control (comparison) series are run at the same time. Otherwise, findings may not be valid.

The report is in Archives of Surgery.

Oldest Iron-Hulled Windjammer

A Proud Ship Reborn

By William Winfield Blanks

Proud and silent today, after a tempestuous career at seas, the bark Star of India, is still afloat and a symbol of an era afloat long past.

WHAT, as recently as 1961 was considered an eyesore and a disgrace to civic pride, is today, thanks to the vision and perseverance of courageous men, a widely acclaimed tourist attraction on the San Diego waterfront.

The bark, Star of India, oldest iron-hulled windjammer afloat, stands proud and silent as a multitude of visitors swarm over her decks, wander curiously through her staterooms, and poke inquiringly into every nook and cranny of her foc'sl. Hers is a colorful past, covering more than a century, during which she saw service under four flags.

Originally named the Euterpe, she was launched by the British on Nov. 14, 1836, at Ramsey in the Isle of Man, and set forth on her maiden voyage, later suffering disaster as she collided with a Spanish brig.

HER SECOND voyage was likewise fraught with trouble. She was caught in a hurricane off Madras, and her crew had to cut away her masts. Limping into Trincomalee, she was patched up and ventured on to Calcutta.

Serving for a number of years as a New Zealand emigrant ship, she made many globe-circling trips, flying that country's colors from her gaff; often fighting gales and dodging icebergs.

Before the turn of the century, she was put under the Hawaiian flag, and in 1898 she came under the Stars and Stripes when Hawaii became a United States possession.

The years 1902-1923 were spent making yearly trips to the canneries of Bristol Bay. Then in 1923, she was laid up and allowed to deteriorate until, with decks rotting, cordage dried up, plates and frames rusting, rivets shearing off, paint dingy and rust-streaked, wooden topmasts cracked, rotted and mildewed, she was declared a menace to aerial navigation, and her yards and topmasts were sent down.

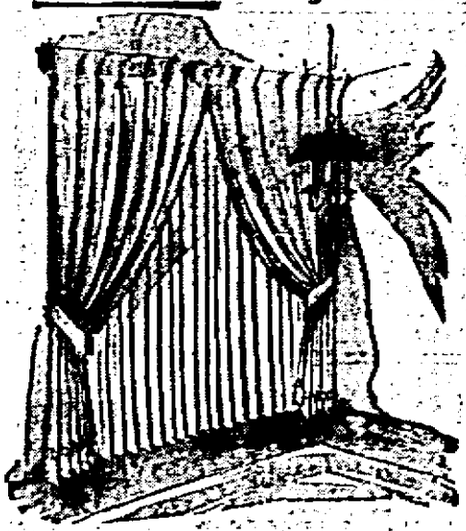

THEN SOME forward-looking men took an interest in her. She was found to be salvageable, and a restoration committee was formed, money collected, and the work of restoration begun. Decks were repaired, she was painted, new splices made, and her masts restored to soundness. On May 30, 1963, she was opened to the public.

Today, although the work of restoration still continues, the Star of India stands as both a memorial to the past, including the stalwart men who sailed her, and a tribute to the foresight and courage of the men who saved her from an ignominious junk heap, that her historic and exciting adventures might serve to spark the imagination of countless others.

Give Them Sun

For success with African violets give them some morning sun during winter. Water them by setting your violets in their porous clay pots in a deep pan or tray and fill this with water every day until the surface of each pot's soil feels moist to the touch. The capillary action of the clay pots automatically draws water from below.

Lady Godiva Rides Again

Now comes Lady Gina—Italy's Lollobrigida—to duplicate the legendary ride of Lady Godiva.

MOVIES

LADY GODIVA rides again.

In the shapely person of Gina Lollobrigida, England's 11th century legend has sprung to life in Universal's forthcoming comedy release, "Strange Bedfellows."

The Italian lovely plays the role of a feminine firebrand selected by a London protest group to recreate history's most famous bareback ride.

Complications ensue when the protest ride is protested by Lady Gina's husband in the wacky screenplay—Rock Hudson. Hudson portrays an American oil executive whose rise into the upper brackets depends on propriety, which Lady G. isn't exactly the soul of. Gig Young, Edward Judd and Terry-Thomas also are in the cast.

THE RIDE through London's Soho district provides one of the highpoints in the Panama-Frank (quite frank) comedy. Most of the action takes place nominally in London, hence no attempt was made to duplicate the actual ride of Lady Godiva, which took place in Coventry, at dawn, with but one beholder, Peeping Tom the tailor. And she didn't have a stitch on.

Actually, Lady Gina's ride took place on the backlot of Universal City, with a European street made over to resemble Soho. Moreover, inasmuch as this was a broad daylight saunter, Gina wore a flesh-colored cotton leotard and a flowing, blonde wig.

This satisfied the censors while retaining a valid illusion of—ah, authenticity.

PRODUCER-director Mel Frank abandoned the idea of attempting to film the scene on location in London.

"After all," he observed, "London has traffic problems already. Gina, au natural, or nearly, could tie up Soho for hours."

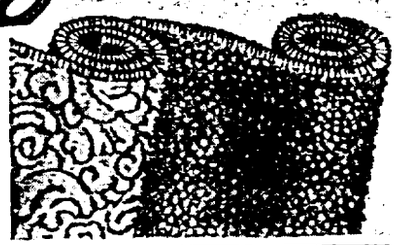

The scene cost about $85,000 to shoot in color, and lasts about three minutes on the screen.

But, whereas the first Lady G. played to only Peeping Tom, the latter-day Lady G. probably will be ogled by millions of moviegoers. Some may even pick up the chant of Universal City studio observers: "Go-go go-diva!"

Washington at Valley Forge

ing bullets and making cartridges.

Even enforcement of primitive sanitary regulations of the day became troublesome. Headquarters orderly books were exhortations and reproaches over such matters as "unburied horses . . . and the prevalence about the huts of much filth and nastiness."

Court-martials, too, increased as winter wore on. Petty larceny became the commonest offense, desertion the rarest. Lashings or the bayonet gauntlet treatment were given convicted violators.

When things were blackest, Washington's personal conduct immeasurably strengthened his men's devotion to a cause that must have seemed far removed from their day-by-day misery. Until their huts were completed, for instance, the lowliest soldier could look up and see the Commander-in-Chief's 13-starred headquarters flag snapping in the wind—over a tent. He acquired a farmhouse-GHQ only after the army was under roof.

ON AT LEAST one occasion Washington was observed in the nearby forest, kneeling and praying to his Episcopalian God. It was he who ordered morning prayer to be read throughout the army and regularly ordained services to be observed on Sunday.

Hunger and cold was the chief enemy, not the Britons garrisoned in Philadelphia.

Even so, skirmishes between small detachments of Royal and Rebel troops continued until spring. Beyond Valley Forge's farthest outposts it was unsafe for any British force smaller than a brigade.

By spring, a complete system of defensive fortification was completed and the area became almost impregnable. Then it was time to abandon it in favor of a mobile war.

Did the garrison accomplish its aims? Was all the suffering of real value to the cause?

Washington's primary objective was to pen the British at Philadelphia. This he did. Secondarily, the surrounding countryside was protected by his forces, large areas made safe from enemy action. He succeeded completely in everything he set out in December to accomplish.

For all that, when the army marched out through greening fields and budding trees, he was the target of bitter harangues in Congress. This despite the fact that Washington's winter at Valley Forge was to create an American legend that would remain unchallenged until the Volturno and Ardennes campaigns of World II, and the winter fighting in Korea.

Cycling Pedals

A 200-pound German immigrant, Berghammer, who has been riding for 25 years, usually bikes from Huntington Beach to Capistrano every day.

NO ONE is certain when the bicycle was invented, but a French coachmaker and his son are credited with devising the modern bike in 1861 when they added pedals and a chain drive to the crude two-wheeler of that era.

After that the bicycle passed through a continuous metamorphosis, growing from the iron-wheeled "boneshaker" of the 19th century into the modern 10 and 12-speed racing bike of today.

Bicycling, which has remained an important means of transportation in Europe, went through its first Golden Age in the U. S. during the 1890s. It fell into decline after the advent of the auto.

ing bullets and making cartridges.

Even enforcement of primitive sanitary regulations of the day became troublesome. Headquarters orderly books were exhortations and reproaches over such matters as "unburied horses . . . and the prevalence about the huts of much filth and nastiness."

Court-martials, too, increased as winter wore on. Petty larcency became the commonest offense, desertion the rarest. Lashings or the bayonet gauntlet treatment were given convicted violators.

When things were blackest, Washington's personal conduct immeasurably strengthened his men's devotion to a cause that must have seemed far removed from their day-by-day misery. Until their huts were completed, for instance, the lowliest soldier could look up and see the Commander-in-Chief's 13-starred headquarters flag snapping in the wind—over a tent. PET PARADE

A Talked-About Talking Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

Much to the amazement and delight of his hearers, Michel, a poodle, speaks English.

MOST talked about animal in America is Michel, the talking poodle! Michel, a standard poodle sporting a Dutch clip, is owned by Charles and Alberta Messick and sons of Springfield, Delaware County, Pa., and he doesn't talk by barking once for one thing and twice for something else. He doesn't talk by saying "mmmmmmm" for "yes," nor "bah" for "no." He speaks English, a bit on the gravelly side, but English nevertheless.

Michel, an anniversary gift from Messick to his wife, was whelped in the basement of a neighboring home, just a cute black baby poodle. But he filed for a prompt claim on Messick by advancing first from the litter and parking on Messick's shoes. Messick bought him then and there, and for about six months Michel bounced around like any other baby black poodle. He did, however, seem more than normally interested in the lip movements of his owners. In fact, he stuck his nose so close to their lips that he had to be brushed off the breakfast table so he wouldn't get bitten.

THEN the Messicks had a surprise and a dawning idea. Michel, it was plain to be seen, was trying to mouth words silently. His amazed owners did a little coaxing. Michel wheezed through his teeth, and then the words came—"I'm hungry."

Call this mimicry if you wish, and Michel would still be an amazing dog. But as more and more words were learned, the poodle seemed to know what he was saying. For example, when he cuddles up, he says, "I love you." When outdoors beckons, he says, "I want out." And you can imagine the Messick's reaction to a doggy "No." Now two years old, Michel can say a few other words. Last heard he was working on "hamburger."

IF YOU were lucky, you heard Michel on Johnny Carson's Tonight show. At first Johnny was skeptical when he heard from Mrs. Messick, but he let her bring Michel to New York for an audition. 'Tis said Johnny nearly fell off his perch when Michel greeted the camera with a merry, "Hello."

Michel has since appeared on numerous TV and radio programs while on tour with Universal Studios. And he has cut a record, a first in history, called "My Talking Dog, Napoleon." (I have it—it's cute.) Demands on Michel's talents have caused the Messicks to retain an agent.

Oh yes, Michel can also "Woof."

Sasanquas Show Versatility

Showa-Supreme sasanqua camellia has willowy branches that may be trained as ground cover or on walls and fences. Flowers are peony type and pink.

By Joe Littlefield

SASANQUAS are a special type of camellias that lend themselves to a wide range of landscape uses. As an example, the pliant spreading varieties may be grown as ground covers on slopes, banks, and level ground. Bend heavy gauge wire into "u" shapes, like women's old style hairpins, about five inches long. Pull individual long branches down in horizontal positions close to the ground. Jab the wire over the branches into the soil on an angle to anchor the branch and cause them to grow close to ground level. Repeat this operation with other long branches. This procedure fields an evergreen, interesting ground cover. Plants will be smothered with small single or double blooms in late fall.

Another landscape use is to rain arching branches by tying them to supports on a wall or fence. We have four sasanquas tied to a cyclone wire fence. One plant spreads 12 feet across close to the fence, and grows up four feet, the full height of the fence where they are cut off. The plant probably could be trained to grow up probably eight feet or taller on a taller support.

WE THOUGHT our Showa-No-Sakae camellia with semi-double to peony form, pink flowers was unbeatable till we saw Showa-Supreme. This seedling of Showa-No-Sakae has proven superior to its parent. Feathery, full-peony, deep clear pink flowers actually "sparkle" the whole plant when in bloom. It is a vigorous grower, an excellent spreader, yet easily trained for upright growth.

In addition to the two landscape uses already suggested, we have seen a sasanqua trained to grow up the trunk of a large sycamore tree in a patio. Another home owner planted a sasanqua on a slant to arch out over a fish pond. We've seen one trained to cover a bird bath post. Some are trained to grow in containers tied to a lath fence, that is anchored in the container at its bottom. Another home gardener grew a sasanqua in a large pot on a pedestal, tied small weights near ends of the arching branches to force them to hang down lower over the pot. It was the most gorgeous cascade plant to behold come blooming season. Such a plant could be grown in a hanging basket, too.

MOST OF THE sasanquas grown in near all-sun locations, grow almost twice as fast as japonica type camellias, but take the same kind of planting and culture. Mix two parts of planter mix material with three parts of soil when planting them, and feed them an acid fertilizer throughout the active growing season, which is from early spring through the summer.

There's one more landscape use for sasanquas and involves perhaps the one variety that will become the most popular as soon as gardeners know its flower-holding quality. It is Yuletide, with rich Christmas red single blossoms that are the hardiest in petal texture known of any such group of camellias. A blossom from a gallon can-size plant, was slapped against the plant foliage firmly 16 times. All the petals still held on the stem. The flowers last a week or longer, seemingly hate to fade, and the best part is that Yuletide flowers during the Christmas season. The upright plant with closely set rich green foliage makes an excellent specimen plant in a container, as an individual plant, in a shrub-provide an unusual hedge planting. It tolerates sunshine for about two-thirds of the day.

GARDENERS may feed all types of camellias latter part of February to allow time for slow acting organic fertilizers to break down in the soil, thus becoming available as the new growth starts. Plants get the fertilizer at the right time to develop best growth possible, instead of being fed later when new first cycle of growth begins to harden off. Soil must be thoroughly moist before feeding, plant food watered in well afterward.

All-America Vegetables

FOR THOSE WHO LIKE the extra taste of freshly harvested vegetables from their own gardens, four 1965 All-Americans will be of special interest. Above, top left, Triumph is a new F1 hybrid cucumber where earliness, disease resistance and high quality fruit are essential; upper right, Samson is a new cantaloupe that grows with extra vigor and uniformity and is excellent in quality and a sweet but not-too-sweet flavor; lower left, Savory King is a silver medal winning cabbage excellent for slaw and cooking from both spring and summer crops, and, lower right, Chefini is an Italian type, bush summer squash of long productive period as long as fruits are kept picked. Raw or cooked, it is excellent.

Better Lettuce

If you are a lover of Bibb, that crisp, sweet-flavored, buttery lettuce, but have been annoyed because it bolts to seed as soon as the weather warms, try growing Buttercrunch. With the same flavor and quality as Bibb, this variety is slow to bolt to seed and can be grown not only in cool weather but all season long.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area.

What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANNUL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANNUL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itch-irritation is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANNUL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANNUL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANNUL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANNUL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANNUL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANNUL in your pharmacy.

Washington As a Friend

By Enola Chamberlin

FRIENDSHIP was as much a prized possession in the days of our country's beginning as it is today. And Washington would have smiled knowingly at those people who have said he was a man without friends. They no doubt got that impression because he was reserved and taciturn, almost moody on formal occasions and with people he did not know well. But let him be with intimates and he was joyful, appreciative, and the best of company.

And that he had friends and was a friend is testified to by his spending so few evenings alone. Once he wrote in his diary: "Mrs. Washington and I had dinner alone tonight. Something I believe has not happened in twenty years."

ANOTHER time he wrote: "I can truly say I would rather be at Mt. Vernon with a friend or two about me than to be attended at the seat of government by the officers of state."

His friendship with the Fairfaxes was of long standing. He did for them and they for him. He was a pall bearer to one of them, best man to another. He obtained an army commission for one of them. He cared for the property of another while that one was in England. But the greatest proof of friendship came with the Revolution when the Fairfax family remained Loyalists. Over this Washington said, "The friendship which I have ever felt for you has met no diminution from the difference in our political situations."

Even before Washington was well known, the list of his friends was long. One wrote him, "Your health and good fortune are the toast of every table."

DAVID HUMPHREYS was one of Washington's closest friends. He wrote a poem expressing deep admiration and affection for Washington as a friend. Knox, secretary of war in the first administration, mentioned in writing the evidences of the president's friendship.

Washington's friendship with Lafayette was perhaps the strongest of his life. As the Frenchman left for France, Washington sent him a note saying, "I owe it to friendship and my affectionate regard for you, my dear Marquis, not to let you leave this country without carrying fresh words of my attachment to you." He, in a letter to Washington said, "By sun or moon I hope at last to be blessed with a sight of my dear General."

Dr. Craik, doctor of the regiment, thought so much of Washington that, when the war ended he settled near Mt. Vernon and was often a guest in Washington's home. He once wrote to the president: "My attachment to your person is such, my friendship so sincere, that every hurt which has a tendency to hurt your honor wounds me most sensibly."

DR. CRAIK rushed to Washington's bedside at word of his illness. When Washington predicted his own death the doctor was overcome with grief. In his will, Washington left his bureau and his circular chair to Dr. Craik. He also left tokens of remembrance to friends of his younger years.

Tobias Lear, Washington's secretary for many years, was deeply attached to his employer. And Washington had for him affection, trust and friendship. Lear stayed in the sick room, anticipating the great man's every need. He nursed him, moved him in the bed to ease and comfort him. At the last, he says, "I kissed the cold hand, laid it down and was lost in grief."

Washington truly prized and was prized by his friends. And he has left us a heritage of friendships to carry on.

George Washington was a good friend; had many friends.

Double your pleasure,

THAT BIT of doggerel, borrowed in part from a swinging TV commercial, reveals what's been happening to restaurateur Ray Weidemann in the past year. Last winter he completely remodeled his restaurant at 1190 E. Carson St. near Orange Avenue, turning it into a Kentucky Fried Chicken operation specializing exclusively in tantalizingly delicious southern fried chicken.

The result was instant success.

People came in droves, eating chicken in the attractive self-service dining room or ordering it by the bucket to take home. The place became so popular that Ray found it difficult to keep up with the demand. The solution to his problem was obvious. He needed another restaurant.

A few weeks ago he opened a second Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant at Bellflower and Del Amo boulevards. Ray and his new partner, Don Steinke (also an experienced restaurant man) promptly discovered that they had created another booming success. People have been flocking to the new outlet to enjoy that scrumptious chicken prepared with secret ingredients pioneered by Kentucky Colonel Harlan Sanders.

The prices are quite low for such quality. The dining room order is $1.30 for three pieces of chicken with tossed salad or potato (mashed or French fried) and fresh roll with honey. The take-out departments offer three pieces for $1 with mashed potatoes and roll; five pieces for $1.60; nine pieces for $2.25; 15 pieces, $3.50, and 21 pieces, $4.95.

Both places are open daily and Sunday from noon to 9 p.m.

FOR 90 MINUTES

Into Cinderella's Slippers Steps Lesley Warren

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Cinderella was in town recently accompanied by her mice and a great big pumpkin, all of which were signed to fat contracts by CBS-TV.

The network, never one to let something slip by, worked poor Cindy to the bone, turning out a 90-minute television show. It airs 8:30 p.m. Monday on channel 2.

Not since she worked for her wicked stepmother has Cinderella toiled so hard. Three weeks of rehearsals and a long week of filming the show wore Cindy to a frazzle.

Cinderella, who is 18-year-old Lesley Warren in real life, is a pretty brunette, an actress who has appeared on Broadway with Robert Horton in the hit musical "110 in the Shade."

Miss Warren currently is touring the country in that show in which she co-stars now with Ray Danton.

LESLEY WAS CHOSEN over some top actresses to play Cinderella in the 90-minute spectacular which has Richard Rodgers as its executive producer.

Lesley's professional experience is as slim as a circus thin man. She appeared only once before on television, that performance being in a daytime show. "Cinderella" is her first night-time network appearance.

"When I went for my first audition I didn't think I would get the part," said Lesley. "I always thought of Cinderella as a blonde, not as me."

There is more to playing Cinderella than putting on a slipper. And for a newcomer such as Lesley, the famed fairy tale was an exacting piece of work.

"THIS IS NOT AN ICKEY, sweet Cinderella." Lesley said. "There were two scenes where I had to cry real hard. It required work and concentration. They cleared the studio and I went away by myself to prepare for the scene."

A role such as Cinderella has been known to swallow up an actor or actress, leaving them no personal or professional identity.

"I think people will type you no matter what you do," Lesley said. "The reason I'm not worried is that I play the town flirt in '110 in the Shade.' A lot of people have seen me in that role. And if I'm going to be typed, I'd rather be typed as 'Cinderella' than 'Snookie,' the girl I play in the show."

Miss Warren comes to "Cinderella" with good credentials. She once played the wicked stepmother in a children's production of the show.

You might say she worked her way up to the title role. Or you might not, depending on whose side you're on—the stepmother's or Cinderella's.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

DURING HIS COLLEGE-DAYS, John Astin, the comic father of ABC-TV's "Addams Family," majored in mathematics.

His fancy for figures brought him a tuition grant as a mathematics major. He once learned an entire semester course of differential equations in one night.

"Learning math," said John, "is learning to think. It has helped me as a person and it has helped me in analyzing scripts."

IF THERE IS ONE THING that Arthur M. Mortensen pledges not to do, it is to avoid the controversial.

A. MORTENSEN

Mortensen, vice president and general manager of KTLA (channel 5) strongly believes in controversy.

"If we avoid controversy," he said, "we are not acting in the public interests.

"It's a product of the time. People are more aware today, more concerned, more intelligent, more capable of determining things for themselves.

"The more knowledge they can have at this point, the better off they'll be."

The only rule he applies with controversy is that there are two sides. Both need airing.

TOM FRANDSEN, KNBC's (channel 4's) genial movie host, fondly recalls a memory of the late Ethel Barrymore.

The talented actress had shown up for an interview with him on a radio show he conducted at the time.

Tom noticed that she seemed a little distraught. He asked if there was anything wrong and she replied:

"Frankly, I'm scared to death."

When they went on the air, however, the gifted star handled herself with regal liveliness.

Later, she confided to Tom:

"If a person doesn't have first-night jitters, he isn't worth a darn."

DICK SINCLAIR isn't about to take polka lessons.

That's the case even though he's been dancing (?) it for the past eight years on his Sunday KTLA "Polka Parade."

He concedes that he doesn't dance the polka very well, but the fact doesn't bother him.

"If I don't know how to do it," he said, "those who do take great pride in knowing they can do something I can't.

"The others don't know the difference.

"So I'm going to continue to just hop around."

WHEN FRENCH TROOPS defeated the city-state of Florence, one of Leonardo Da Vinci's statues, a giant horse, was destroyed. The incident is recounted during "I, Leonardo Da Vinci" at 10 p.m. Tuesday, Channel 7, in COLOR.

On Television, It Pays to Lose

GALE GORDON

BILL TALMAN

BARRY MORSE

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Everybody loves a loser, at least on television they do.

Almost every top-rated series has a regular, dependable loser; a patsy who always gets the short end of the stick, a fall guy who is left with egg on his face.

He may be as grim a character as Lt. Gerard (Barry Morse), the cop who chases David Janssen in "The Fugitive" and never catches him. Or as comic as Hoss Cartwright, the foil of the "Bonanza" family.

Again, he may be as frustrated over the years as DA Hamilton Burger (Bill Talman) in "Perry Mason," who has never won a law battle.

Seldom is a female video character a loser. Not even Lucille Ball, or Granny Clampett of "The Beverly Hillbillies."

ON LUCY'S SHOW Gale Gordon, a chronic loser going back to the old "Our Miss Brooks" series, is the poor slob taken on a snipe hunt. Max Baer as Jethro is the also-ran in the Hillbillies.

Sometimes whole classes of people are losers. Take the long suffering patients in "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare." They die like flies while Vince Edwards and Dick Chamberlain look on sympathetically, albeit clinically.

Probably the favorite losers of all are the military brass.

Take Captain Binghamton (Joe Flynn) in "McHale's Navy," Commander Adrian (Edward Andrews) in "Broadside," Sergeant Carter (Frank Sutton) in "Gomer Pyle." They are losers on the grand scale.

AND HOW ABOUT the Indians in "Daniel Boone"?

It's possible Jack Benny started the whole thing. He has been the butt of all jokes since he broke into radio roughly 200 years ago.

Television's losers make all the rest of us look like winners. Nobody can stack up losses like miserable Deputy Barney Fife (Don Knotts) on "The Andy Griffith Show."

Talk about losers, what about the German pilots in "12 O'Colck High."

Short-enders, in fact, have become so popular some new shows are comprised solely of losers, i.e., "The Munsters," and "The Addams Family." Or, for that matter, the group of nuts on "Gilligan's Island."

Live shows provide boobs, too. Frank Fontaine as Crazy Gugenheim is the perfect foil for Jackie Gleason.

Jack Parr makes a loser of every guest. Ed Sullivan is his own best loser, and some persons think Lawrence Welk may lose out to that bubble machine.

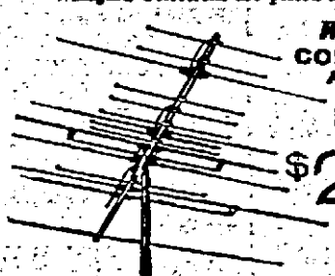

WAIT!

You can't tune in a good picture unless your TV antenna is sending your set a clear signal!

Why fiddle with manual adjustments week after week when our remarkable, new Winegard Colortron could be the answer. This super-sensitive antenna can knock out ghosts, fuzzy pictures, snow and similar interference . . . brings in more channels, too.

A simple phone call to us may make TV viewing at your house a far happier experience. Winegard Colortrons are priced from $24.95.

On Television, It Pays to Lose

GALE GORDON

BILL TALMAN

BARRY MORSE

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Everybody loves a loser, at least on television they do.

Almost every top-rated series has a regular, dependable loser; a patsy who always gets the short end of the stick, a fall guy who is left with egg on his face.

He may be as grim a character as Lt. Gerard (Barry Morse), the cop who chases David Janssen in "The Fugitive" and never catches him. Or as comic as Hoss Cartwright, the foil of the "Bonanza" family.

Again, he may be as frustrated over the years as DA Hamilton Burger (Bill Talman) in "Perry Mason," who has never won a law battle.

Seldom is a female video character a loser. Not even Lucille Ball, or Granny Clampett of "The Beverly Hillbillies."

ON LUCY'S SHOW Gale Gordon, a chronic loser going back to the old "Our Miss Brooks" series, is the poor slob taken on a snipe hunt. Max Baer as Jethro is the also-ran in the Hillbillies.

Sometimes whole classes of people are losers. Take the long suffering patients in "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare." They die like flies while Vince Edwards and Dick Chamberlain look on sympathetically, albeit clinically.

Probably the favorite losers of all are the military brass.

Take Captain Binghamton (Joe Flynn) in "McHale's Navy," Commander Adrian (Edward Andrews) in "Broadside," Sergeant Carter (Frank Sutton) in "Gomer Pyle." They are losers on the grand scale.

AND HOW ABOUT the Indians in "Daniel Boone"?

It's possible Jack Benny started the whole thing. He has been the butt of all jokes since he broke into radio roughly 200 years ago.

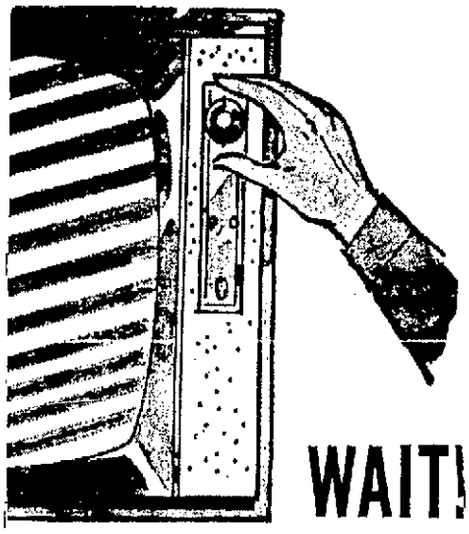

Television's losers make all the rest of us look like winners. Nobody can stack up losses like miserable Deputy Barney Fife (Don Knotts) on "The Andy Griffith Show."

Talk about losers, what about the German pilots in "12 O'Colck High."

Short-enders, in fact, have become so popular some new shows are comprised solely of losers, i.e., "The Munsters," and "The Addams Family." Or, for that matter, the group of nuts on "Gilligan's Island."

Live shows provide boobs, too. Frank Fontaine as Crazy Gugenheim is the perfect foil for Jackie Gleason.

Jack Parr makes a loser of every guest. Ed Sullivan is his own best loser, and some persons think Lawrence Welk may lose out to that bubble machine.

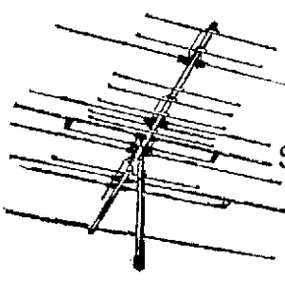

WAIT!

You can't tune in a good picture unless your TV antenna is sending your set a clear signal!

Why fiddle with manual adjustments week after week when our remarkable, new Winegard Colortron could be the answer. This super-sensitive antenna can knock out ghosts, fuzzy pictures, snow and similar interference . . . brings in more channels, too.

A simple phone call to us may make TV viewing at your house a far happier experience. Winegard Colortrons are priced from $24.95.

PIP-SQUEAK GIANT AT GETTING LAUGHS

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

New 'Broadside' Chef Has Voice That Curdles Goats Milk

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Arnold Stang, chicken-chested loser of stage, screen and television, has been added to the cast of "Broadside" in hopes of beefing up the series.

For his size, pip-squeak Stang is a giant at getting laughs.

He stands 5-feet, 3-inches high and weighs 105 pounds with his glasses on. His voice curdles goat's milk and his general appearance makes a leading man of Wally Cox.

"The world is made up of losers who can identify with me," said Stang during a lunch break at Universal Studios. "But underneath it all I'm a winner."

And so he is. Stang has earned a fortune over the years as Gerard on the old Henry Morgan radio show; as Dizzy on "Henry Aldrich;" on his own radio show, "That Brewster Boy;" and as "The Timid Soul."

Behind the thick spectacles and scrawny exterior abides a nimble wit and wonderful ability to evoke laughter.

ARNOLD STANG

These qualities are needed to rescue Broadside from mediocre ratings and provide insurance against cancellation for next year.

"I was originally scheduled to be in the show when it went on the air last fall," Stang squeaked. "But I was tied up with the road show of 'A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum.' I couldn't get out of the commitment until now.

"They've cast me as a Navy cook in the series. I'm supposed to be one of the great chefs of the world, and I always get the upper hand with the terrible-tempered Commander Adrian (Edward Andrews) on the show."

Stang appears in the final dozen shows this season after missing out on the first 24. The network (ABC) and Revue Productions expect to see the rating soar once viewers discover artful Arnold.

"AN ACTOR usually feels like an outsider when he joins a series in mid-season," the little guy said. "But Kathy Nolan and the rest of the cast have really made me feel at home. That made me nervous. I thought they might be looking for the soft underbelly of Arnold Stang."

Director John Hollingsworth Morse is happy to have Stang aboard, adding, "He contributes a thousand little bits of comedy."

The addition of Stang will change the basic premise of the series, making Stang more a foil for co-star Andrews. The Waves, of course, will continue to provide sex appeal and chuckles.

"They get me mixed up with the Waves, too," said Stang.

"I fall in love with one of them. I may be a winner in my private war with the commander, but with the girls I'm still a loser. It would be out of character for me to be anything else."

Fittingly, Arnold plays a character named Stanley Stubbs. And on his bird-like shoulders rests the responsibility of keeping "Broadside" on the air for another year or two.

And Stanley . . . er, Arnold may do just that.

Stone Walrus Role Reminder

It's the little things that count in getting a role, according to Herschel Bernardi.

Three years ago when he was a regular star on NBC-TV's "Peter Gunn" series, Bernardi gave the show's producer, Gordon Oliver, an unusual figurine, a small stone walrus for his desk.

Oliver, now producer of NBC-TV's "Profiles In Courage" series, was looking for someone to play the role of walrus-mustachioed Gen. Sickles in "The Edmund G. Ross Story."

Oliver's eye fell on the small walrus which reminded the producer of Bernardi —who got the role.

HE DIGS 'SHINDIG'

It's Good Thing for Good There's Rock 'n Rooll

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—England's revenge for our victory in the War of 1812 has been cruel and inhuman, first the Beatles and now "Shindig," a weekly television show.

Both are cacophonous assaults on the sensibilities of decent Americans.

The Beatles, at least, have retreated to Blighty. But "Shindig" has been expanded from 30 minutes to a full hour under the Machiavellian guidance of a disarming Oxford graduate who purports affection for we colonists.

His name is Jack Good. He's 33 years old and the sort of Englishman who wears green striped socks, a loosely-knotted paisley necktie and a haircut that inspires awe in all who see him.

Now then, why on earth is this pink-cheeked, upper class Anglo-Saxon producing a rock 'n' roll show aimed at screeching American teen-agers? What manner of man is this?

In his own cultured words Good acknowledged, "I never wanted to come to Hollywood. I thought it loud, vulgar and on the wane. So I came here and joined the club.

"You see, I once produced musical shows in London for the BBC, using the blues, gospel songs and rock 'n' roll. I came here two years ago and lived in poverty, sitting on boxes at home until ABC offered me the opportunity to produce Shindig."

GOOD SAT BACK, certain that his recital explained everything. It didn't. Why rock 'n' roll?

"To me it is a form of art that has a definite place in our culture," he said. He couldn't have been more sincere.

"If you know nothing about rock 'n' roll then there's a gap in your education. I had no interest in pop music at Oxford because it was all moon and June schmaltz. Then in 1957 I went to the cinema to see 'Rock Around the Clock' and was terribly excited by rock 'n' roll."

But what do his fellow Oxonians think about all this?

"If I were to turn respectable, I'd be an outcast at Oxford," he answered. "England's wild now. Anything goes there. The hard core of conservatism is in America these days, not England."

AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED, Good is a friend of the Beatles, of whom he says: "Their music is excellent. They are the sine qua non of popular music. They will have an enduring popularity for another 15 years if they stay together."

Good has never learned to drive an automobile. He covers Hollywood's great distances on a bicycle or with the loping gait of a British birdwatcher on the trail of a ruby-crested titmouse.

Good is smashingly entertaining company, a resourceful producer, blessed with a sense of humor and honest to a fault.

"I plan to remain here for some time," he said. "But I won't switch citizenship. The United States has more energy and resources but England is more mentally invigorating."

With that he bounced off, humming a Beatles tune.

HE DIGS 'SHINDIG'

It's Good Thing for Good There's Rock 'n Rooll

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—England's revenge for our victory in the War of 1812 has been cruel and inhuman, first the Beatles and now "Shindig," a weekly television show.

Both are cacophonous assaults on the sensibilities of decent Americans.

The Beatles, at least, have retreated to Blighty. But "Shindig" has been expanded from 30 minutes to a full hour under the Machiavellian guidance of a disarming Oxford graduate who purports affection for we colonists.

His name is Jack Good. He's 33 years old and the sort of Englishman who wears green striped socks, a loosely-knotted paisley necktie and a haircut that inspires awe in all who see him.

Now then, why on earth is this pink-cheeked, upper class Anglo-Saxon producing a rock 'n' roll show aimed at screeching American teen-agers? What manner of man is this?

In his own cultured words Good acknowledged, "I never wanted to come to Hollywood. I thought it loud, vulgar and on the wane. So I came here and joined the club.

"You see, I once produced musical shows in London for the BBC, using the blues, gospel songs and rock 'n' roll. I came here two years ago and lived in poverty, sitting on boxes at home until ABC offered me the opportunity to produce Shindig."

GOOD SAT BACK, certain that his recital explained everything. It didn't. Why rock 'n' roll?

"To me it is a form of art that has a definite place in our culture," he said. He couldn't have been more sincere.

"If you know nothing about rock 'n' roll then there's a gap in your education. I had no interest in pop music at Oxford because it was all moon and June schmaltz. Then, in 1957 I went to the cinema to see 'Rock Around the Clock' and was terribly excited by rock 'n' roll."

But what do his fellow Oxonians think about all this?

"If I were to turn respectable, I'd be an outcast at Oxford," he answered. "England's wild now. Anything goes there. The hard core of conservatism is in America these days, not England."

AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED, Good is a friend of the Beatles, of whom he says: "Their music is excellent. They are the sine qua non of popular music. They will have an enduring popularity for another 15 years if they stay together."

Good has never learned to drive an automobile. He covers Hollywood's great distances on a bicycle or with the loping gait of a British birdwatcher on the trail of a ruby-crested titmouse.

Good is smashingly entertaining company, a resourceful producer, blessed with a sense of humor and honest to a fault.

"I plan to remain here for some time," he said. "But I won't switch citizenship. The United States has more energy and resources but England is more mentally invigorating."

With that he bounced off, humming a Beatles tune.

SPECIAL

CINDERELLA—The only original musical ever written for television by Rodgers and Hammerstein, presented originally in 1957 with Julie Andrews (now signed for NBC specials), is being revived with a new book, new stars and a brand new song originally written for Broadway's "South Pacific" but never used. Lesley Ann Warren, 18-year-old musical comedy ingenue, is introduced in the title role after personally being selected by Richard Rodgers, with Stuart Damon as the Prince, Ginger Rogers (see also "Chrysler Theatre" next Friday) and Walter Pidgeon as the King and Queen, Celeste Holm as the fairy godmother, Jo Van Fleet as the wicked stepmother, Pat Carroll and Barbara Rukck as the evil stepsisters. Taped 90-min. color special is at 8:30 p.m., channel 2.

JONATHAN WINTERS—Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding) join Winters in his fourth outing of the season, marking the holiday by playing Colonial announcers seeking an interview with General Washington (Winters) at Valley Forge. The New Christy Minstrels are featured during the 9 p.m. ch. 4 color hour, with Winters' sketches including his "man under pressure," "instant biographies" and improvisations.

WALTER LIPPMANN, 1965—For his sixth annual hour-long "CBS Reports" appearance, the free-wheeling 76-year-old Lippmann talks with Eric Sevareid in assessing state of the nation and the world at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Expected topics include LBJ policies, new leadership in England and Russia, the Atlantic Alliance, crises in Southeast Asia and Africa.

SPECIAL

CINDERELLA—The only original musical ever written for television by Rodgers and Hammerstein, presented originally in 1957 with Julie Andrews (now signed for NBC specials), is being revived with a new book, new stars and a brand new song originally written for Broadway's "South Pacific" but never used. Lesley Ann Warren, 18-year-old musical comedy ingenue, is introduced in the title role after personally being selected by Richard Rodgers, with Stuart Damon as the Prince, Ginger Rogers (see also "Chrysler Theatre" next Friday) and Walter Pidgeon as the King and Queen, Celeste Holm as the fairy godmother, Jo Van Fleet as the wicked stepmother, Pat Carroll and Barbara Ruick as the evil stepsisters. Taped 90-min. color special is at 8:30 p.m., channel 2.

JONATHAN WINTERS—Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding) join Winters in his fourth outing of the season, marking the holiday by playing Colonial announcers seeking an interview with General Washington (Winters) at Valley Forge. The New Christy Minstrels are featured during the 9 p.m. ch. 4 color hour, with Winters' sketches including his "man under pressure," "instant biographies" and improvisations.

WALTER LIPPMANN, 1965—For his sixth annual hour-long "CBS Reports" appearance, the free-wheeling 76-year-old Lippmann talks with Eric Sevareid in assessing state of the nation and the world at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Expected topics include LBJ policies, new leadership in England and Russia, the Atlantic Alliance, crises in Southeast Asia and Africa.

For Them, It's Johnny Carson, Still Champion

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — How goes the late-night television ratings race? Is Johnny Carson still the No. 1 pinup boy of the midnight audience? Can ABC-TV's newcomer, Les Crane, find happiness on a coast-to-coast hookup? And how is Steve Allen's syndicated replacement, Regis Philbin, doing? Today we will try desperately to answer some of these questions.

First things first. Yes, Johnny Carson is still the No. 1 pinup boy of the midnight audience. Every so often, NBC-TV issues a pronouncement to the effect that Carson's "Tonight" show is making more money and is seen on more stations than ever before—which to Carson fans is a rather happy dig at the late-night master he succeeded, Jack Paar. Apparently Carson and Paar are not whole-hearted fans of each other. It is sad.

WELL, WHO IS TO DOUBT NBC-TV's pronouncements about such matters? and who would pay any attention to such rumors as the one that Merv Griffin's old daytime gabfest was bounced partly because it was diverting some attention from "Tonight," landing some big "Tonight" guests—and that some network bigwigs felt they had too much money tied up in "Tonight" to risk deflating it with another of their own shows? Especially a daytime show whose financial rewards could not be as great. Well, these are only piddling questions.

JOHNNY CARSON

NBC-TV recently added a sixth night of "Tonight" each week—a Saturday rerun—and the network says this is going great guns too. So you can see Johnny is a hit. The difficult thing about the ratings is that you never know which one to believe, so you can't really tell just how much of a hit. Thus, as I remember it, one set of ratings suggested that Carson was murdering Crane. Yet another set says Crane is giving Carson a tough go. The ratings also vary sharply from market to market. Personally, I won't lose any sleep over it and I hope everyone is a success, and let's not forget Jack Parr.

CRANE IS APPARENTLY changing from a controversial fellow to a more easy-going fellow. But Philbin has had some troubles chiefly because he doesn't have, apparently, a nasty or show-off bone in his body; this makes it difficult on a performer nowadays, and he has been involved in some schedule shifts. Here in Southern California for instance, his show has been switched from night-time to daytime, which was a ridiculous move because I have it on the best authority that all the statistics indicated his ratings doubled in the last month—and without the help of much good promotion or publicity. Regis may not be another Clifton Fadiman, but he is that rarity, an unpretentious host who, though he sometimes over-values his big-name guests, frequently gets more legitimately interesting interviews from them than do his competitors.

It's a pity Philbin got off to a slow start, but it is now rather nice to know you can turn to a show—his—where a guest has at least a reasonable chance to be natural and not too show-biz minded. It's a tough era for nice boys. But don't undersell the quiet ones. Look at Carlo Ponti. Short, paunchy and thin-haired, and he's got Sopia Loren.

SPECIAL

MR. NOVAK—By rewriting a previously filmed segment in which principal Albert Vane is pressured into running for state superintendent of schools, both the ailing Dean Jagger and his replacement Burgess Meredith appear in the segment at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4. In the updated version Vane (Jagger) wins and teacher Martin Woodridge (Meredith) received a very unexpected phone call from Vane who's not seen in the new ending.

DOCTORS & NURSES — Another script was re-written for the 2-part segment at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Originally to be an indictment of violence in entertainment with "The Defenders" handling the followup of a youngster killing his teacher after watching a movie. But now the case goes over to the new "For the People" for prosecution next Sunday. Jeffrey Rowland stars as the well-bred student whose overactive imagination leads to an act of violence after his parents reject psychiatric treatment.

LEWIS AND CLARK — The story of Meriwither Lewis and William Clark and the band of 43 soldiers and civilian volunteers who set out from St. Charles, Mo., in May, 1804, and came 18 months later to the mouth of the Columbia River at the Pacific, is commemorated and re-created at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4. The story is told by narrator Lorne Greene in the words of the pair's official journal, coupled with color footage of much of the same territory today. Producer Ted Yates, during the filming, duplicated many of the hardships faced 160 years before, plus the new ones of making America look pretty and natural despite the defacing of civilization and the river-taming of hydroelectric dams.

L LEONARDO DA VINCI —First of a trilogy of documentary special tracing the epic triumphs of man's mind, heart and conscience in his struggle to create Western civilization airs in color at 10 p.m., ch. 7, as the Peabody Award-winning "Saga of Western Man" returns under the production of John H. Secondari. Fredric March is the voice of da Vinci in an examination of his enormous influence—as painter, sculptor, architect, musician, engineer and scientist—on the intellectual history of the world. Two of the Renaissance painter's great but ill-starred works of art were re-created and re-destroyed for the filming.

Critic's Corner

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Shows

Program: "The Way Out Men," aired Feb. 13 on channel 7.

"The Way Out Men" is a sometimes fascinating study of scientists, musicians and artists involved in projects of the future. Where "Men" misses—and it does—is in tackling certain subjects which do not lend themselves to the visual medium, and become bogged down in pedantics. Thus, this documentary is a mixture—at times absorbing, at times just plain dull.

Overall, the David L. Wolper documentary was worthwhile, but more careful selection of subject matter would have given it more punch.

Critic Daku of "Variety"

Few television programs have been as successful in capturing the excitement of scientific research as was ABC-TV's "The Way Out Men," a one-hour documentary presented during the weekend. The program pre-empted Lawrence Welk on Saturday night, in case you were wondering why nobody was dancing.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "Danny Thomas Special," aired last Sunday on channel 4.

Danny Thomas had another of his handsomely produced specials on NBC. One wished the writing had been as glossy as the sets. There was one particularly attractive dance number about toys coming alive against a background of two enormous trousered legs and feet, supposedly Danny's.

The principal sketch was one of those domestic scenes, with Marjorie Lord in a mud pack and guest star Perry Como playing an embarrassed unexpected guest. It didn't come off very well.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "Dinah Shore Special," aired last Monday on channel 7.

The Peace Corps was the recipient of a one-hour musical salute by Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte on ABC-TV. More than 100 corps volunteers, en route to Kenya and Uganda, were in the audience along with their boss, Sargent Shriver. The dialogue by Miss Shore and Belafonte about the corps was what one expected. Their music, however, was rare.

At the start, I got the willies when Miss Shore sang the most overworked song in the English language, "Getting to Know You," and did the handshaking bit with the audience. I am happy to report, however, that this sort of nonsense quickly subsided, and as she and Belafonte warmed to their singing, and were able to concentrate on it without too many pitches for the corps, they were just swell.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

It takes no less than two such stellar performers as Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte to sugarcoat a message and make it stand up as lively entertainment. The pitch was for the Peace Corps and it was never more vastly promoted.

On its own as a musical special Dinah and her guest made it all worthwhile; only music and dancing, no cute lead-ins or idle chatter, Sargent Shriver, the corps' head man, accounted for most of the dialog.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

The sugar-coated message was sour. Music alone, even when sung by such performers as Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte, does not a television special make. With the limited choreography this TV hour offered, it might as well have been radio.

Critic Bert Resnik of "TeleVues"

Program: "Essay on Bridges," aired last Monday on channel 2.

There are collectors of all sorts of things including coins, antiques and stamps. But Andrew A. Rooney, a CBS producer and writer, obviously collects on a grand scale—doors and bridges.

Last season his brief but delightful "Essay on Doors" television show must have made a lot of converts. And his "Essay on Bridges" this season will heighten appreciation of man-made spans, great and small.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "The Hollow Crown," aired last Tuesday on channel 2.

Imagine the problem last night of those who watched "Petticoat Junction" on CBS-TV and then stayed tuned in for the next program. The next program was "The Hollow Crown," a one-hour special in which four performers in evening dress enacted writings by and about British monarchs. One suspects that many a "Petticoat Junction" viewer encountered a language barrier.

Well, what was that strange sound on "The Hollow Crown"? English, dear friends, English—the kind of English the good Lord had in mind in the first place for grand and noble use: Pre-Cockney, Pre-American women, pre-two party system. It is no accident that the gentleman who devised last night's theatrical enterprise, John Barton, a former Cambridge University don, said that its primary objective was to show "the power of the spoken word on an audience's imagination." It did so blazingly, sublimely.

Critic's Corner

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Shows

Program: "The Way Out Men," aired Feb. 13 on channel 7.

"The Way Out Men" is a sometimes fascinating study of scientists, musicians and artists involved in projects of the future. Where "Men" misses—and it does—is in tackling certain subjects which do not lend themselves to the visual medium, and become bogged down in pedantics. Thus, this documentary is a mixture—at times absorbing, at times just plain dull.

Overall, the David L. Wolper documentary was worthwhile, but more careful selection of subject matter would have given it more punch.

Critic Daku of "Variety"

Few television programs have been as successful in capturing the excitement of scientific research as was ABC-TV's "The Way Out Men," a one-hour documentary presented during the weekend. The program pre-empted Lawrence Welk on Saturday night, in case you were wondering why nobody was dancing.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "Danny Thomas Special," aired last Sunday on channel 4.

Danny Thomas had another of his handsomely produced specials on NBC. One wished the writing had been as glossy as the sets. There was one particularly attractive dance number about toys coming alive against a background of two enormous trousered legs and feet, supposedly Danny's.

The principal sketch was one of those domestic scenes, with Marjorie Lord in a mud pack and guest star Perry Como playing an embarrassed unexpected guest. It didn't come off very well.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "Dinah Shore Special," aired last Monday on channel 7.

The Peace Corps was the recipient of a one-hour musical salute by Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte on ABC-TV. More than 100 corps volunteers, en route to Kenya and Uganda, were in the audience along with their boss, Sargent Shriver. The dialogue by Miss Shore and Belafonte about the corps was what one expected. Their music, however, was rare.

At the start, I got the willies when Miss Shore sang the most overworked song in the English language, "Getting to Know You," and did the handshaking bit with the audience. I am happy to report, however, that this sort of nonsense quickly subsided, and as she and Belafonte warmed to their singing, and were able to concentrate on it without too many pitches for the corps, they were just swell.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

It takes no less than two such stellar performers as Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte to sugarcoat a message and make it stand up as lively entertainment. The pitch was for the Peace Corps and it was never more vastly promoted.

On its own as a musical special Dinah and her guest made it all worthwhile; only music and dancing, no cute lead-ins or idle chatter, Sargent Shriver, the corps' head man, accounted for most of the dialog.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

The sugar-coated message was sour. Music alone, even when sung by such performers as Dinah Shore and Harry Belafonte, does not a television special make. With the limited choreography this TV hour offered, it might as well have been radio.

Critic Bert Resnik of "TeleVues"

Program: "Essay on Bridges," aired last Monday on channel 2.

There are collectors of all sorts of things including coins, antiques and stamps. But Andrew A. Rooney, a CBS producer and writer, obviously collects on a grand scale—doors and bridges.

Last season his brief but delightful "Essay on Doors" television show must have made a lot of converts. And his "Essay on Bridges" this season will heighten appreciation of man-made spans, great and small.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "The Hollow Crown," aired last Tuesday on channel 2.

Imagine the problem last night of those who watched "Petticoat Junction" on CBS-TV and then stayed tuned in for the next program. The next program was "The Hollow Crown," a one-hour special in which four performers in evening dress enacted writings by and about British monarchs. One suspects that many a "Petticoat Junction" viewer encountered a language barrier.

Well, what was that strange sound on "The Hollow Crown"? English, dear friends, English—the kind of English the good Lord had in mind in the first place for grand and noble use: Pre-Cockney, Pre-American women, pre-two party system. It is no accident that the gentleman who devised last night's theatrical enterprise, John Barton, a former Cambridge University don, said that its primary objective was to show "the power of the spoken word on an audience's imagination." SPECIAL

COATES ON: The Supernatural—In the second of his monthly specials, Paul Coates asks whether the supernatural world really exists. He explores the unknown at 9 p.m., ch. 11, looking at the facts and phonies in L.A.'s metaphysical world.

LIFE ON OTHER PLANETS—At the same hour (9 p.m.), ch. 13 also probes another type of life whose existence is questioned—that of other planets. With guests Ray Bradbury of science fiction books and Dr. C. Cleminshaw of Griffith Park Observatory, Hal Fishman talks with persons who claim to have had contact with beings from outer space, with astronomers and scientists regarding the possibility of such life, and with USAF officers who have undertaken the development of research of reported phenomenon.

SPECIAL

JUST A HOUSEWIFE—Dinah Shore is hostess for the season's third "Special for Women" at 4 p.m., ch. 7, this one probing the "housewife syndrome" in which women are convinced they should get out of the house for something more "important." Nancy Gates stars as the self-doubting wife, who takes a sales job in a department store which proves less rewarding than she'd thought. An encounter with an old college chum (Jeanne Bal), now a career girl, and a touching tribute from her children, sends her rushing back to her frying pans and scrub brushes. Barry Nelson, Jeff Donnell and Cathy Lewis are featured, with post-drama commentary by Dr. Paul Poenoe. Ch. 2's 11 p.m. news winds up its 5-point probe of the housewife tonight.

THE RESTLESS SEA—A documentary examination of the sea, its surface, currents, composition, underwater topography and the living creatures that dwell within is reprised by the "Bell System Science Series" at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. The literal study in depth, especially produced by Walt Disney Productions, combines filmed and animated sequences to show the work of oceanographers, and the effect the sea has on man on earth.

INGER STEVENS in Sweden—The Emmy-nominated, Golden Globe-winning star of "The Farmer's Daughter," goes on a sentimental journey to her colorful homeland, visiting various Stockholm locations where she chats with leading citizens, then returning to the countryside and forests of her childhood where she dons wooden shoes and bicycles along the roads. During the 8 p.m., ch. 7 hour you'll see Sweden's King and Queen, actor Max von Sydow, boxer Ingemar Johansson, artist Bo Beskow and Prime Minister Tage Erlander.

SPECIAL

JUST A HOUSEWIFE—Dinah Shore is hostess for the season's third "Special for Women" at 4 p.m., ch. 7, this one probing the "housewife syndrome" in which women are convinced they should get out of the house for something more "important." Nancy Gates stars as the self-doubting wife, who takes a sales job in a department store which proves less rewarding than she'd thought. An encounter with an old college chum (Jeanne Bal), now a career girl, and a touching tribute from her children, sends her rushing back to her frying pans and scrub brushes. Barry Nelson, Jeff Donnell and Cathy Lewis are featured, with post-drama commentary by Dr. Paul Poenoe, Ch. 2's 11 p.m. news winds up its 5-point probe of the housewife tonight.

THE RESTLESS SEA—A documentary examination of the sea, its surface, currents, composition, underwater topography and the living creatures that dwell within is reprised by the "Bell System Science Series" at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. The literal study in-depth, especially produced by Walt Disney Productions, combines filmed and animated sequences to show the work of oceanographers, and the effect the sea has on man on earth.

INGER STEVENS in Sweden—The Emmy-nominated, Golden Globe-winning star of "The Farmer's Daughter," goes on a sentimental journey to her colorful homeland, visiting various Stockholm locations where she chats with leading citizens, then returning to the countryside and forests of her childhood where she dons wooden shoes and bicycles along the roads. During the 8 p.m., ch. 7 hour you'll see Sweden's King and Queen, actor Max von Sydow, boxer Ingemar Johansson, artist Bo Beskow and Prime Minister Tage Erlander.

VAN JOHNSON AND MARSHA HUNT play the parents of a son with a rare brain disease during "Ben Casey" at 10 p.m. Monday, Channel 7. On Friday, Van guests in "On Broadway Tonight" at 8:30 p.m., Channel 2.

Pan and Fan

At long last, I heard Paul Coates make an intelligent and honest statement on his TV program.

Well, that is, his piece of George Putnam's news program.

On each of three occasions this past week he said, "I don't think." Those are the most profound truths he ever uttered.

However, as usual, he was not smart enough to stop right there but went on to mouth his inane mutterings and ruin the one gleam of intelligence I have found in all his words.

Thad R. White, Long Beach

If you feel that strongly about him, why do you watch him?

• • • • •

I've heard a report that Jerry Burke, the electric organist with Lawrence Welk, has died. I hope it's not true.

Margaret Boyles, Long Beach

Sadly, it is true. Jerry, who was 53 years old, died of a kidney infection last weekend. He had been with Welk since 1934.

• • • • •

Who was the star of "Tombstone Territory" that used to be a series on channel 7?

Leroy Kammer, Norwalk

Pat Conway played the sheriff and Dick Easton was the editor.

• • • • •

I have been watching the radio listings lately, looking for the program "Hawaii Calls," but can't find it.

Could you tell me if it is ever heard here?

Mrs. N. B. Levin, Los Alamitos

If it's still calling, I haven't heard it since about two years ago.

• • • • •

I have been watching the Perry Mason show for years. I really admire Raymond Burr, the star.

How old is he and where can I write to get a picture of him?

Mrs. Gertrude Ellis, Long Beach

He's 47. Write to him in care of the Perry Mason Studio, Sunset Blvd. and La Brea, Hollywood, Calif.

WOMEN PAST 21 WITH BLADDER IRRITATION

After 21, common Kidney or Bladder Irritations affect twice as many women as men and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or itching urination both day and night. Secondarily, you may lose sleep and suffer from Headaches, Backache and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYSTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by curbing irritating germs in strong, acid urine and by analgesic pain relief. Get CYSTEX at druggists. Feel better fast.

ASTHMA & BRONCHITIS

A quick easy way to combat difficult breathing, coughing, rattling and wheeziness, due to recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma and Bronchitis, is by taking fortified MENDACOL. Acts fast to combat allergy, relax bronchial tubes and help remove thick, congestive mucus. This usually eases breathing fast, allays coughing; thus promotes sounder sleep. Get MENDACOL at druggists. Let it help you.

I have been watching the radio listings lately, looking for the program "Hawaii Calls," but can't find it.

Could you tell me if it is ever heard here?

Mrs. N. B. Levin, Los Alamitos

If it's still calling, I haven't heard it since about two years ago.

I have been watching the Perry Mason show for years. I really admire Raymond Burr, the star.

How old is he and where can I write to get a picture of him?

Mrs. Gertrude Ellis, Long Beach

He's 47. Write to him in care of the Perry Mason Studio, Sunset Blvd. and La Brea, Hollywood, Calif.

Q. Is it true that if you dress and wear your hair like the Beatles in England, no one will hire you for a job?—Annette Drackett, Chicago, Ill.

A. According to the Youth Employment Agency in Liverpool, young men sporting Beatle haircuts and Beatle-style clothes find their chances of securing a job hurt by their appearance.

Q. The thing between Phyllis McGuire of the McGuire Sisters and Sam Giancana, alleged Mafia chief—is it still on?—T.O., Chicago, Ill.

A. Still on.

Q. Where does the following quotation come from: "No physician, insofar as he is a physician, considers his own good in what he prescribes, but the good of his patient; for the true physician is also a ruler having the human body as a subject, and is not a mere money-maker"?—David Frost, Sarasota, Fla.

A. It comes from The Republic by Plato.

Q. Is it true that President Johnson pays $500 for a suit of clothes, has them all made to order?—Vic Carter, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. The President has his suits made to order, pays on the average of $325 per suit.

Q. I have a few questions about the syrupy-voiced orator, Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois. How old is he, and is he owned by the public utilities in Illinois?—F. L., Winnetka, Ill.

A. Dirksen is 69. He is friendly to but not "owned" by the public utilities.

Q. What is meant by the statement: "The base of the Republican Party in this country has long been WASP. It must change if it is to endure"?—Jennie Popkin, Elizabeth, N.J.

A. WASP stands for white Anglo-Saxon Protestant.

Q. There is a rumor that the Las Vegas gamblers involved in the United Dye & Chemical Corp. stock scandal bribed federal officials in order to stay out of jail. Is this true?—Frank R., Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Several defendants in the United Dye scandal testified in court that they had paid $50,000 in bribes to prevent government prosecution. Several of these men were later given suspended sentences for testifying on behalf of the federal government in a case against attorney Roy Cohn, a case in which Cohn was acquitted. One way or another these Las Vegas gamblers managed to stay out of jail after rooking the public of $5 million.

Q. Shirley MacLaine and her husband Steve Parker recently finished a film, John Goldfarb Please Come Home, which the courts enjoined from release. How much did Shirley's husband get for producing the film? Is it true that Shirley, like Doris Day, will not act in a picture unless her husband is first made producer?—N. McClintock, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Parker received $75,000 for producing the film. Shirley and her husband go their separate ways. Most of her films have producers who are in no way related to her.

Q. I understand that Konrad Adenauer of West Germany is the tightest man in his country. What about it? — Louis Nolte, Milwaukee, Wis.

A. Adenauer is notoriously thrifty.

Q. Is actor Rod Cameron married to his mother-in-law?—G. T., Calgary, Canada.

A. To his former mother-in-law.

Q. I understand that Milton Berle and his wife Ruth and other movieland couples have had their wrinkles removed by the injection process. Can you describe the process and let me know if it is safe?—D. Evans, Pasadena, Calif.

A. Injections of liquid silicone and chicken fat are made via sharp hypodermic needles into the wrinkled skin. New cells form around the droplets of silicone. Only a handful of doctors are at the moment well-practiced in the technique. There is a danger of slippage if the patient is overinjected. The silicone becomes too heavy for the tissue which forms around it and slips down. Generally doctors are chary of the procedure. There is the long-term danger of granulomas and possibly cancer, although to date there are no such cases on record in this country. The technique is new and experimental. Doctors ask patients to sign a release before treatment begins, promising not to sue for damages or malpractice in the event of undesirable results.

Q. The image of the late Robert Frost, the poet, was that of the kind, wise, humorous, gentle, friendly sage. I understand that the truth is just the opposite—that he was a mean, grasping, ambitious man. What is the truth? — Frank Lewin, New York, N.Y.

A. The public image is not exactly truthful, but Frost was not mean. His younger sister Jeanie went insane. His son Carol committed suicide. His wife died 25 years before he did. As a young man Frost knew poverty, loneliness, disappointment and depression. Toward the end of his life he showed great strength of character in the philosophical acceptance of misfortune. He set about deliberately to build the public image he died with—the wise, warm poet—and with an assist from President Kennedy he succeeded.

Business failures like this can often be avoided with new management help from Small Business Administration.

BIG KNOW-HOW FOR SMALL BUSINESS

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Small businessman Bill Brightwell (l.) listens as SCORE advisor Raymond Leeth counsels on advertising methods.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Not long ago the owner of a clothing store said to his lawyer, "This is the best year I've ever had! I bought a new house, a new car—and we've had a great vacation in Jamaica."

But when the lawyer had looked over the merchant's books, he shook his head. "You certainly had a good year—on the surface," he told his client, "but in fact you're headed for bankruptcy."

This storekeeper was lucky. He got the facts in time, and his business was saved. But others have been less lucky. In 1964, there were 12,533 small-business failures, failures which might never have occurred if the owners had had access to the information, advice and loans now available to small businesses all over the country.

The lawyer who saved the clothing store from bankruptcy was Eugene P. Foley, now administrator of the Small Business Administration, a federal agency that aids small businessmen in every way it can. But as Foley saw it, there was dire need for a bold new program to help small business on a more direct and personal basis.

The facts and figures which impressed him with the need for a plan to give big know-how to small businessmen were these:

- There are 4.6 million small businesses in the U.S., accounting for 96 per cent of all the nation's business.
- Small business employs 40 per cent of the total labor force and includes more than 90 per cent of all wholesale, retail, service and manufacturing firms.
- Of all small business failures, 90 per cent are due to sheer bad management.

Despite good ideas and good products, faulty management forces many a firm into bankruptcy. Although they seem to have every prospect of success, they fail because bookkeeping is bad, sales methods are neglected, advertising is inadequate. Many owners simply are not good executives. They hate to delegate authority and ignore many of the problems that have to be faced and solved before any business, large or small, can become a success.

As Eugene Foley discovered the weaknesses of small business, he also unearthed a vast reservoir of know-how that was going to waste.

Highly successful executives of large and small concerns were retiring early, either because of pension plans or to make room at the top for younger men. Foley found that many of these men put out to pasture in their business prime were unhappy. Always active, they were unused to leisure. Nor did they like feeling that their skills and experience had suddenly ceased to have value.

Foley came to the conclusion that the needs of small business and the needs of retired executives should be brought together.

Hence SCORE—Service Corps of Retired Executives—a program that is already helping small businessmen across the nation. An affiliate of the Small Business Administration, SCORE has, since last October, signed up more than 2,000 volunteer executives.

LABOR OF LOVE

For these highly experienced executives, it is truly a labor of love. They receive no pay, either from the government or the small businessmen they are assisting. They use their own cars, provide their own gas—and are delighted to do it.

One SCORE volunteer, 64-year-old Raymond Leeth, a retired retailer, is giving his free and expert counsel to at least a half dozen small enterprises in the Washington area.

Says Leeth, "I hadn't been retired more than a few months when I was hating being on the shelf. Now I feel 20 years younger. You've no idea what satisfaction there is in helping a small business to prosper."

What do small businessmen think of SCORE?

Take one of Leeth's clients, 44-year-old Bill Brightwell, a photographer, who three years ago bought the Madlon Portrait Studios, in Bethesda, Md.

"It's a wonderful program," Bill says of SCORE. "If a problem arises that Mr. Leeth can't solve, he discusses it with other SCORE advisors, and they pool their talents. That puts literally hundreds of years of know-how at my disposal."

Eugene Foley, the father of SCORE, sums up: "There is a deep well of idealism in American business executives. Many hide it and try to appear tough. But we have found that in their hearts they are really anxious to do something for their communities and the nation. (They have the opportunity through SCORE.)

"Although still in its infancy, I see tremendous possibilities for SCORE. Anything that helps small business, so vital a part of the nation's life, must benefit the nation—in creating new jobs, giving a fair and realistic test to new ideas, in providing the public with new goods and new services. I also venture to forecast that SCORE, as it grows, will be responsible for creating more than a few new millionaires."

If your executive skills are lying fallow and you would like to put them at the disposal of SCORE, write to Eugene P. Foley, Administrator, Small Business Administration, Washington, D.C. 20416.

Business failures like this can often be avoided with new management help from Small Business Administration.

What do small businessmen think of SCORE?

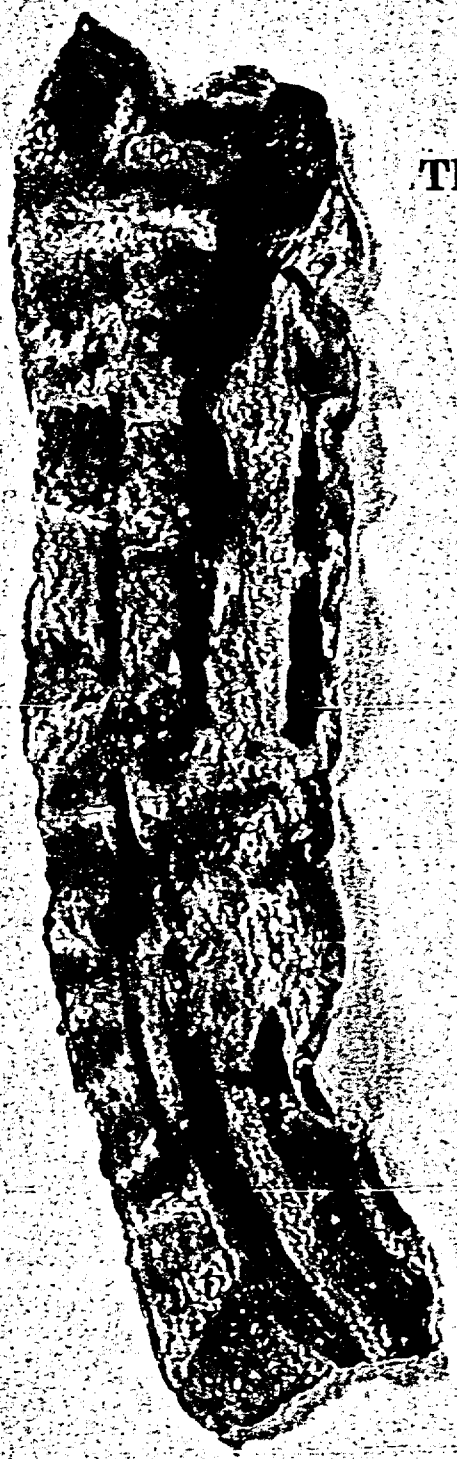

Take one of Leeth's clients, 44-year-old Bill Brightwell, a photographer, who three years ago bought the Madlon Portrait Studios, in Bethesda, Md.

"It's a wonderful program," Bill says of SCORE. "If a problem arises that Mr. Leeth can't solve, he discusses it with other SCORE advisors, and they pool their talents. That puts literally hundreds of years of know-how at my disposal."

Eugene Foley, the father of SCORE, sums up: "There is a deep well of idealism in American business executives. Many hide it and try to appear tough. But we have found that in their hearts they are really anxious to do something for their communities and the nation. (They have the opportunity through SCORE.)

"Although still in its infancy, I see tremendous possibilities for SCORE. Anything that helps small business, so vital a part of the nation's life, must benefit the nation—in creating new jobs, giving a fair and realistic test to new ideas, in providing the public with new goods and new services. I also venture to forecast that SCORE, as it grows, will be responsible for creating more than a few new millionaires."

If your executive skills are lying fallow and you would like to put them at the disposal of SCORE, write to Eugene P. Foley, Administrator, Small Business Administration, Washington, D.C. 20416.

ONE REASON WHY THE BRITISH ARE THE WORLD'S BEST ACTORS

by LLOYD SHEARER

PARIS.

As a group, the best actors in the world today are British or British-trained.

Take Rex Harrison, who has hired a Hollywood press agent at $1,000 a month to help him win an Academy Award for his work in My Fair Lady; or Laurence Olivier, Alec Guinness, John Gielgud, Ralph Richardson, Peter Ustinov, Michael Redgrave, Trevor Howard; or the younger group of great off- and on-screen lovers from Blighty: Richard Burton, Peter O'Toole, Terrence Stamp, Albert Finney, Peter Finch, Tom Courtenay. Whom do we have in this country to compare to such superb performers: John Wayne, Gregory Peck, Jason Robards, Tony Curtis, Anthony Quinn, Sidney Poitier, Rock Hudson, Marlon Brando?

It is simply no contest. The British win hands down. They can act rings around us, and they generally do. We are not in their league.

How come?

Here, in his small medicine-cluttered dressing room, in a film studio outside rainy Paris, over a vile concoction of grog, mountain-brewed Calvados and cough medicine, a mixture ordinarily used to remove rust from old car-bumpers, I asked this question of Peter O'Toole, 31, a long, lanky, wafer-thin (6-feet-3, 160 pounds), myopic, Irish-born but English slum-reared young actor.

O'Toole spent two miserable years in the broiling African desert making Lawrence of Arabia, which won world-wide awards and fixed him firmly in the galaxy of international movie stars.

Since then he has gone on to film Becket, with his spiritual brother Richard Burton, and three additional motion pictures, all to be released later this year: Lord Jim, in which he plays the title role, The Bible, in which he acts the messenger of God, and What's New, Pussycat?, his first comedy (filming here), in which he plays a magazine editor who refuses to get married because he is snowed under by a wealth of single girls.

Colorful and Confused

Peter O'Toole has been ticketed for superstardom by most of the knowledgeable stage and film critics. He is enormously talented, an artful actor by nature, instinct and training, a tremendously colorful and confused character, a Catholic seething with doubt and conflict, a brawler, a drinker, a night-man wild and self-destructive, an adventurer, a compulsive talker, sensitive and suspicious, an orator silver-tongued and magnetic, a lover wary and charming, an actor, outgoing and uninhibited and, in alcoholized speech, sometimes endless.

"Before a man becomes an actor," he explained, "a recognized actor, in England, he works, he slaves, he crawls, he goes through an apprenticeship of hell in the theater. He becomes a journeyman, he learns his craft. And he loves it, or he gets out.

"The British have a theatrical tradition which goes back hundreds of years, to Shakespeare, Jonson and Marlowe.

"The Americans have a film tradition which goes back 40 or 50 years to the start of Hollywood. Nobody comes up to a handsome truck-driver in London and says, 'Let me take a look at you, young buck. I think if we cap your teeth, you've got a good chance to make it in Hollywood.' Hell, no, to be an actor in England, any kind of actor, radio, film, stage, the primary requisite is to know how to act, not to ooze sex appeal.

Peter O'Toole and Romy Schneider purr together in scene from What's New, Pussycat?, O'Toole's first comedy.

"Look at our actors, some of them are small, like Alec Guinness and Albert Finney and Hugh Griffith. Some are broad, like Richard Burton. Some are tall, like Rex Harrison and myself. But none of us are pretty boys. None of us are handsome in the Hollywood sense of the word. We're a bloody-looking, filthy, nonconformist tribe, all sizes, all shapes, but what we have in common is an apprenticeship in the theater, an apprenticeship in repertory companies which flourish all across England.

"Before I got my first film job, I had acted in 73 plays, most of the time playing old men. If you haven't worked on the stage, I don't see how the hell you can call yourself an actor. You've got no yardstick by which to measure a full performance. Do you know what it is to be an actor in repertory in England? Night after night you go out and stand on that stage. You expose yourself. You try to captivate, interest, intrigue, draw in, attract, hold that audience. And that's not easy. Sometimes they snicker and snigger and laugh and snooze. And sometimes they know, the bright ones, the smart ones, the educated ones—they know Shakespeare far better than you.

"Richard Burton was telling me about the time he was doing Hamlet in London. One night he spied the old man, Winston Churchill, out front. Every time Richard opened his mouth, so would the old man. He recited every line word by word, syllable by syllable with Richard. It was disconcerting as hell. After the play was over, Churchill shuffled backstage. 'Mr. Burton,' he roared. 'You were marvelous, marvelous, letter-perfect. Now tell me, mine Hamlet, may I use your bathroom?'

"I have nothing against Hollywood actors," O'Toole continued. "They're a fine lot, good and decent men. Your Jack Lemmon, a great comedian, an excellent actor. I have a soft spot in my heart for all actors or men who call themselves actors. But the truth is that many American actors do not have the long and necessary stage experience which the British have.

"A lot of your men belong to the funky, scratching method school of acting, what I call the Rin Tin Tin school of acting. 'Here's a nice lamb chop, doggie. Now re-act to that.'

"Pretty nearly anyone can do that. But you try and play King Lear like that. Or how do you make yourself funny in Midsummer Night's Dream when you've just got puns and double talk to work with? How do you make a line funny by timing it exactly right with a body reaction? How do you invent a little bit of private business? How do you sustain a performance from start to finish so that the audience doesn't get bored and walk out on you or cough you to hell?

"Stage experience is what makes an actor, what teaches him to perceive, to judge, to evaluate. He learns from audience reaction. That's why the screen is so much less satisfactory to an actor.

"When I was making Becket, the producer, Hal Wallis, used to come up to Richard [Burton] and me. 'Do you want to see the rushes?' he'd ask.

"'Good Lord, no,' I'd yell. 'Do you want me to cut my throat?' And Richard would scream, 'Who the hell can tell anything from rushes?' Richard won't even go to see himself on the screen. All you're seeing is little bits and pieces of work acted out of sequence put together by some editor. Who can be objective when he looks at his own work on the screen?

All you're seeing is little bits and pieces of work acted out of sequence put together by some editor. Who can be objective when he looks at his own work on the screen?

"But don't think I'm downgrading films," OToole paused to gulp three shots of 'cough medicine.' "I'm not one of those actors who deprecates films, who says imperiously, 'I just do them for money.'

"The thing about films is not to let them prostitute you—so that you sell out completely to a medium which basically belongs to directors and not actors.

"I'm not bragging, but I now get as much as $500,000 a film, and I have a production company which shares in the profits. I, a kid from the slums, son of Patty O'Toole the Irish bookie. How do you like that! But I did three plays in 1963 for virtually no money. And there came a time when I had to test myself to see whether I had sold out.

"I was offered $1 million to work in a film. The very same day Larry Olivier asked me to open the National Theatre with Hamlet. To me that was an accolade. What an honor to star in Hamlet. But what a danger! The critics could devour me, and as it turned out, some of them did. On the other hand there was that full bag of 1 million waiting fresh dollars. 'Seamus,' I said to myself, 'now, the devil will test your temptation level.' I chose Hamlet, because I am still an actor. Films have not yet prostituted me.

"I'm afraid more top-flight American actors have succumbed to the lure of the loot than the British. It is still possible on the London stage to see Olivier, Redgrave, Harrison, Burton, Guinness, Richardson, Gielgud, Howard, Ustinov, Finney. None has sold out to Hollywood or Pinewood. They are actors equally good in any medium. They were spawned by the theater. For them it's home, and they return to it for sustenance and renewal. They are men who crave applause but who also accept criticism.

Beware of Yes-Men

"I remember when I first began to get some good notices years back. I was talking to Wilfred Lawson, another great British actor. 'Peter,' he said, 'you've got to find a friend you can trust, someone who will tell you the truth. Never make the mistake of surrounding yourself with yes-men whom you put on your personal payroll.' Wilfred has such a friend, Girlie, his wife. And I have such a friend, too—my wife, Sian Phillips. We played brother and sister in a play. I married her in Dublin, in 1959. I can't remember the date. But she's Welsh, from Burton's country, and she tells me straight. When I stink, she says it right out, 'You stink,' or 'You stank,' or 'You stunk.'

"And you know, I don't mind being bad. Far from it. Lots of actors get neurotic if they're bad. But you're only as good as you've the courage to be bad. So it never throws me if I'm bad, and if Sian tells me I stink in something, then I try to do better because I trust her.

"I think that is one of the most wonderful things about Welsh girls. They are all poetesses and storytellers, but if they love you, they tell you straight. I mean you take someone like Sybil Burton. Richard's respect for her is colossal. It always has been, because hers has always been a sharp and honest eye, a straight and truthful tongue. This may seem a terrible paradox in the light of subsequent events. I know Richard's respect for Elizabeth is enormous, but he still has great loyalty toward Sybil. She was a wife who told him true.

"I'm sure all actors are insecure, but perhaps we on this side of the Atlantic are not as insecure as some of the fellows you have in Hollywood. When we stink, we pay no one to tell us we were great."

A Bookie and a Saint

Peter Seamus O'Toole was born on August 2, 1933, in Connemara, County Galway, Ireland. His father, Patrick Joseph O'Toole, was a bookie, always on the move. His mother, a Scottish woman named Constance, he refers to as "a saint." The O'Tooles were churchmice poor. They wandered from city to city, race track to race track.

Peter was thin and sickly as a child. In 1939, when the Nazis began to bomb England, he was separated from his family. He went to live with a kindly priest, Father Leo Walsh, who made him his altar boy.

Young O'Toole, an unbridled spirit, was sent to St. Anne's in Leeds, Yorkshire, where the nuns tried to beat some discipline into him. They failed, and his memories of these women are tinged with bitterness. "I was left-handed," he says, "and Lord, how they whipped me just trying to get me to write with my other hand. Today I have no religion as such."

O'Toole quit school at 13, went to work in a warehouse wrapping cartons, then got a job as a copyboy on the Yorkshire Evening News. "That's where I got my education," he says. "It was a jump from being a very poor slum kid to meeting people. Journalists, even the worst ones, are full of interests, and they aroused in me a hunger to learn about literature, art and the world."

From that time, O'Toole has had great respect for the working journalist. He takes pains to provide reporters with a good interview.

At 17 he began his two years of military service in Royal Navy submarines as a signalman. "I didn't want to go. There was no war. I had the alternative of becoming a miner or going to jail. I wasn't a conscientious objector. But I just lacked courage to become a miner, so I spent two miserable years in the Navy standing alone on deck talking to the sea gulls for hours and deciding that I very much wanted to become an actor."

Following his discharge, O'Toole, incorrigible as ever, applied for and won a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. His first professional experience came with the Old Vic Company in Bristol. In 3½ years he played 73 different roles, everything from comedy to pantomime, from Look Back in Anger to Hamlet. It was his Hamlet, however, powerful, original, creative, which brought him to the attention of the London critics and got him other job offers.

In 1958 he left the Old Vic, established himself in London as a potentially top actor. In 1959 he was named "Actor of the Year." Film producer Sam Spiegel invited him to take a screen test. When O'Toole arrived for the occasion, he took off his jacket, and a pint-bottle of Scotch fell out. Later, in a dialogue improvisation, he conjured up a scene in which he was talking to Mrs. Spiegel. Producer Spiegel gave him the quick brush-off, deciding that he would star either Marlon Brando or Albert Finney in his forthcoming production, Lawrence of Arabia.

As it turned out, both Brando and Finney declined the role. Director David Lean, possibly the best film director in the world, had seen O'Toole act. He insisted that Peter was the actor to play Lawrence. Spiegel tried to talk him out of it, but Lean held his ground, and O'Toole was signed.

Lawrence of Arabia took two years of grueling work, but once the film was released O'Toole became an immediate and shining star.

The Trappings of Fame

"Ever since," he claims, "the people around me have changed. They treat me either like a man of stature, a child of luck or a rich bloke to be victimized. I love my work, my new-found fame, the money it's brought me. I have a Rolls-Royce, a lovely house in Hampstead, two lovely children, some wonderful works of art. But I also have now what I never had before, the envy, the jealousy, the hatred of the bitter, the depressed, the lonely.

"I am at the mercy of the lunatics, the crackpots, the nuts. Only a few weeks ago, I got a phone call at the studio. 'Mr. O'Toole?' 'Yes,' I said. There was a pause. Then the words, in great haste, great terror, great urgency. 'I'm sorry to tell you, sir. Mrs. O'Toole has just cut her wrists. I'm afraid she is quite dead.' Then the phone clicked off.

"And before that," O'Toole recalls, "an even worse scare. The phone in the middle of the night. 'Please leave 20,000 pounds in 1-pound notes . . . Your little daughter Kate. We know the exact route she takes to school. If the money is not left, she will not return home—not alive, anyway. Are you listening, Mr. O'Toole?'

"This being a star," says Peter Seamus O'Toole, "it's not all gold, glory, gravy and fun. But being an actor, a good actor——dammit, man, it's the best escape one has from the solitary confinement of one's own skin, one's own tight, narrow, little mind."

As T. E. Lawrence—O'Toole skyrocketed to fame in star role of Lawrence of Arabia.

As Henry II—Co-starred with Richard Burton, O'Toole plays out history in Becket.

As God's angel—Twice bearded, once shaven, O'Toole portrays three angels in Bible.

As Jim—Filmed in southeast Asia, Lord Jim stars O'Toole in title role.

"But don't think I'm downgrading films," O'Toole paused to gulp three shots of 'cough medicine.' "I'm not one of those actors who deprecates films, who says imperiously, 'I just do them for money.'

"The thing about films is not to let them prostitute you—so that you sell out completely to a medium which basically belongs to directors and not actors.

Then the words, in great haste, great terror, great urgency. 'I'm sorry to tell you, sir. Mrs. O'Toole has just cut her wrists. I'm afraid she is quite dead.' Then the phone clicked off.

"And before that," O'Toole recalls, "an even worse scare. The phone in the middle of the night. 'Please leave 20,000 pounds in 1-pound notes . . . Your little daughter Kate. We know the exact route she takes to school. If the money is not left, she will not return home—not alive, anyway. Are you listening, Mr. O'Toole?'

"This being a star," says Peter Seamus O'Toole, "it's not all gold, glory, gravy and fun. But being an actor, a good actor—— dammit, man, it's the best escape one has from the solitary confinement of one's own skin, one's own tight, narrow, little mind."

As T. E. Lawrence—O'Toole skyrocketed to fame in star role of Lawrence of Arabia.

As Henry II—Co-starred with Richard Burton, O'Toole plays out history in Becket.

As God's angel—Twice bearded, once shaven, O'Toole portrays three angels in Bible.

As Jim—Filmed in southeast Asia, Lord Jim stars O'Toole in title role.

Drain a can of cling peaches. Plop the slices on top of Quaker Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice. Add cream and sugar and enjoy!

Cling peaches, you know, are simply delicious and deliciously simple to eat any time, any way. (For instance, hot cling peaches and chicken make a wonderful dinner dish. Try it!)

THE MACHINE THAT WALKS LIKE A MAN

by FRED WARSHOFSKY

SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

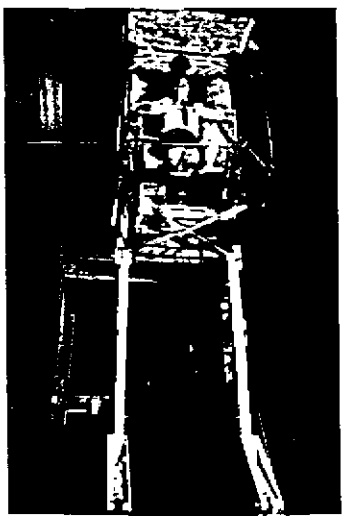

Superman has left the comics and been transmuted by science into an 18-foot-high, two-legged man-machine. Now under development for the U.S. Army by General Electric Company's Advanced Technology Laboratories here, the Pedipulator, as it has been dubbed, is capable of walking faster than a man can run and of lifting enormous weights. And it will be a logistic marvel in military situations. Designed to move heavy equipment over mountains and through swamps where ordinary vehicles cannot go, it could scoop up tons of supplies scattered in a parachute drop in a fraction of the time a platoon of men could do the job. Or it might clear roads, fight forest fires or eventually become the mechanical partner of a planet-exploring astronaut.

This modern version of a Jules Verne monster differs from most robots in that it will have a man rather than a computer inside its huge body. The machine becomes a veritable extension of the man inside, with its steel "muscles" reproducing the real man's movements and boosting his strength by as much as 50 to 1.

When the operator moves his left foot forward, the machine does the same. When he wants to lift a boulder, the operator simply goes through the grasping, lifting motions with his own arms and hands, and the machine follows through instantly.

Machine "mimicry" is made possible by linking the operator's arms and legs directly to the machine by means of electronic circuitry, servo units and power drives. Each movement is transmitted to the "limbs" of the machine as if it were a puppet dangling from electronic strings.

"Compared with the versatility of man," explains Ralph S. Mosher, head of the engineering team developing the Pedipulator, "the things that an ordinary machine can be programed to do are extremely limited. But if you join man and machine, using the best capabilities of each—the man's brain and nervous system and the machine's great strength—then the machine can cope with almost any situation."

Engineer Ralph Mosher demonstrates position of operator inside the body of laboratory version of walking machine.

Right at your doorstep are hundreds of photographs you can sell

Many men and women are earning $25 to $100 a week extra money with their cameras. Here are suggestions on how you can do the same—from a man who has earned over $100,000 a year in photography

By Victor Keppler

Photographed by Arthur d'Arazien while on a vacation trip, this simple village scene has been used on the cover of Collier's and on countless greeting cards and calendars. To date it has earned d'Arazien nearly $9,000. How many equally striking picture possibilities are within a few blocks of your home?

I often wonder why more people don't use their cameras to pick up extra money.

Right in your own home town — on your Main Street, in your friends' homes and gardens, even in your own back yard — are subjects for saleable photographs that you could take in your spare time. And all over the country there are good markets waiting to buy them.

The vast hidden market for photographs

Even the biggest national magazines often accept photographs by talented amateurs. But far more important to the beginner is the vast hidden market for pictures — the hundreds of smaller publications that are begging for good photographs of people, places, and events in your area. Just by keeping an eye peeled for pictures "made to order" for these specialized publications, many amateur photographers are able to pick up $25 to $100 a week extra money with their cameras.

The "bible" of photographers interested in extra money is a book called Where and How to Sell Your Pictures. It lists the names, addresses, and requirements of over 800 publications — trade journals, regional magazines and newspapers, sport and hobby magazines — that are constantly in the market for good pictures. Here are just a few examples chosen at random:

Flower Grower pays $50 to $100 for color pictures — $5 to $10 for black-and-white — of well landscaped gardens, flowers, house plants, flower arrangements, fruit trees.

Car Life pays $5 to $25 for pictures of automotive subjects — humorous, new products, custom cars.

Mechanix Illustrated pays $10 to $25 for pictures pertaining to science, crafts, and hobbies; unusual gadgets, inventions, mechanical devices appealing to men.

Golf Digest pays $10 to $25 for pictures of golfers and golf scenes.

Model Railroader pays $5 to $15 for pictures of scale-model miniature railroads and equipment.

My Baby Magazine pays $10 to $15 for pictures of expectant and new mothers, babies and children under three.

Plastichrome Postcards pays $10 to $25 for color shots suitable for postcards — scenic, animals, sports, beach and boating, road scenes, farm and country scenes.

How to sell the same picture more than once

And you can sell the same picture again and again. As a youth, Arthur d'Arazien shot a Rocky Mountain landscape that he has now sold 18 times for a total of $5,800. Another d'Arazien scene (above) has earned the photographer nearly $9,000. And he still owns both pictures.

A common way to get repeat sales is through stock photograph agencies. Where and How to Sell Your Pictures lists a number of such agencies that accept good photographs and publish them in catalogs from which advertisers and editors frequently order reprints. Each time one of your pictures is ordered, you earn another fee.

Still another source of revenue is people who want to buy extra prints from you. It could be the baker who has remodelled his shop, the golfer who has won a tournament trophy, or the handyman who has built a cabin cruiser. Naturally he'll want to see the pictures of himself or his "pride and joy" that you are sending to the appropriate specialty magazine. And nine times out of ten, when you show him the pictures, he'll want to buy extra prints for himself or his friends and relatives.

The importance of professional training

Of course the more professional-looking your photographs are, the better chance you have of selling them, even in these smaller markets. And now there's a way to learn to make pictures that measure up to the highest professional standards.

For the first time in the history of photography, you may receive training right at home in the professional methods and prized studio secrets used by the most successful photographers in America.

Ten outstanding professionals have started a new kind of photography school. They spent three years pouring into a remarkable series of lessons everything they have learned in their long, hard climb to the top.

Then they perfected a revolutionary teaching method as personal as the tutoring a master photographer might give a promising assistant. Your instructors are all skilled professional photographers, supervised by a Guiding Faculty composed of the School's famous founders. They don't merely tell you how to improve each photograph you send in as part of your assignments — they show you with unique visual critiques which make their points instantly clear. And every critique, every letter of advice, is tailored to your camera, your individual goals and talents, your problems.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by

BILLY KELLY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Born in Boston, raised in the near-by suburb of Malden, comedian Billy Kelly is a young veteran of the night club and banquet circuit. Blessed with a quick Irish wit, Kelly has entertained at benefits, lodge meetings and conventions. At a recent convention of undertakers, his opening line was: "I'm sure glad you're a warm and receptive audience. Somehow I thought all of you might be terribly stiff." Kelly has appeared at the Thunderbird in Las Vegas, Palumbo's in Philadelphia, Blinstrub's in Boston and many of the nation's top niteries, where he tells such jokes as these:

Our grocer sells imported soap. The other day my daughter bought some Beatle Bubble Bath. You sprinkle it around the tub and watch the Ringo.

One of the most unnerving things happened at the airport last week. The pilot of my flight was in line ahead of me at the flight insurance counter.

A tightwad I know was out walking with his son. Suddenly he stopped the boy and asked, "Danny, are you wearing your new shoes?"

"Yes," Danny answered.

"Take longer steps," his old man ordered.

One early morning in Boston a young woman, entering a taxi, said to the driver: "To the Maternity Hospital, and don't hurry . . . I only work there."

A wife and husband were getting dressed for a party. "Have you noticed anything special about my jewelry?" asked the wife.

"Like what?" asked the husband.

"I was just thinking," said the wife, "that my nicest pieces are the oldest. They go back to the time when I was still your secretary."

A man of 70, a Hollywood star to be truthful, married a girl of 17. At a club lunch he ran into an old friend, who began to discuss the marriage.

"You must be nuts," said the friend, "to have married a girl of 17. Why, in 10 years you'll be 80, and she'll be only 27."

"It doesn't matter one bit," explained the new groom. "When a fellow's truly in love he doesn't care one bit when his wife begins to age."

Two women meet in the street. Says the first, "I remember your son, Mark, was trying so hard to get a job with the federal government. What is he doing now?"

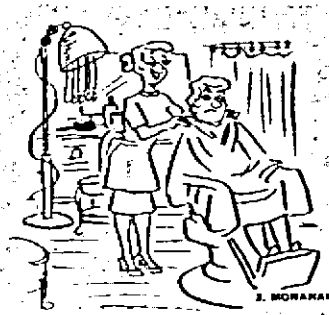

Says the second woman: "Nothing. He got the job."

Motion picture star to her maid: "Don't ever buy a sable, Mildred. They just don't keep you warm."

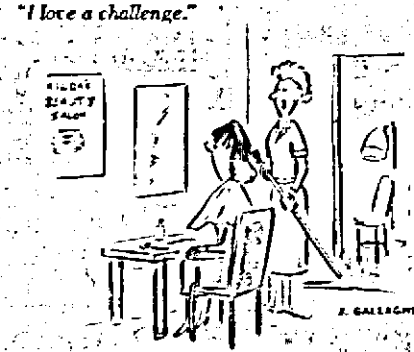

Anecdote of the Week

■ Dr. Gerald Labiner of Los Angeles has had his car, office and home broken into by narcotics addicts who have stolen his medical bag. This week, Dr. Labiner for the fourth time in six months, bought a new medical bag, this one with a separate pouch. On the bag the doctor has pasted a small sign. "Take the narcotics if you must," it reads. "They're in the small pouch. But please leave the rest of the bag."

our fair ladies

"I love a challenge."

"Cut short it will look something like this."

"You'll like this place—it has the juiciest gossip in town!"

"This ought to do it."

"I know I'm not old enough. It's for my doll."

WHY DO SOME CHILDREN SEEM TO HAVE ALL THE ANSWERS?

Is it native intelligence? Bright parents? Or just hard work and study? Obviously, it's a combination of all these qualities that helps a child excel, but there is often one other factor: the educational resources in the home.

For families who cannot afford a home reference library of a thousand or more books, most of the answers that children need are provided by Encyclopaedia Britannica. Here, in compact form, is one of the world's most complete reference libraries. Each authoritative article begins with a basic, over-all explanation. This is then followed by material of greater and greater depth, so that the reader may go as deeply into any subject as his age and talent allow. What a wonderful challenge to discovery and learning!

And Britannica holds the fullest answers to adult questions as well. To own it is an enriching experience for the whole family.

peach melba mold

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Looking for something special to serve as dessert for a dinner party? Try this peach melba mold, beautiful and delicately delicious. The mold itself is gold and white, the sauce a sparkling ruby red, the flavor combination unforgettably good. You might begin your dinner menu with a clear soup, follow up with a rib roast of beef, Yorkshire pudding, glazed carrots and mixed green salad.

CLEAR LAYER

1 can (1 lb., 14 oz.) sliced cling peaches
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup lemon juice

Drain syrup from peaches; reserve. Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup peach syrup in medium saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in sugar and salt. Add remaining peach syrup, water and lemon juice. Pour thin layer of gelatine mixture into 6-cup mold. Chill until slightly thickened. Make pattern with several peach slices; spoon a little clear gelatine mixture over them; chill until thickened but not firm. Dice remaining peach slices; reserve 1 cup for cream layer. Fold remainder into clear gelatine mixture; spoon into mold over layer of peach slices. Chill until almost but not completely firm. Meanwhile, prepare cream layer.

CREAM LAYER

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup diced peaches reserved from clear layer

Combine gelatine, sugar and salt in medium saucepan. Stir in milk. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves completely, about 4 minutes. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Whip cream; fold in gelatine mixture. Fold in diced peaches. Turn into mold over almost-firm clear layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate. Serve with melba sauce. Makes 8 servings.

MELBA SAUCE

2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 packages (10 oz. each) frozen raspberries, thawed

Measure cornstarch into saucepan; blend with a little syrup from raspberries. Add remaining syrup and berries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Mash berries with spoon. Put through strainer; chill. Makes approximately 1½ cups.

peach melba mold

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Looking for something special to serve as dessert for a dinner party? Try this peach melba mold, beautiful and delicately delicious. The mold itself is gold and white, the sauce a sparkling ruby red, the flavor combination unforgettably good. You might begin your dinner menu with a clear soup, follow up with a rib roast of beef, Yorkshire pudding, glazed carrots and mixed green salad.

CLEAR LAYER

- 1 can (1 lb., 14 oz.) sliced cling peaches
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- ¼ cup sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup cold water
- ¼ cup lemon juice

Drain syrup from peaches; reserve. Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup peach syrup in medium saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in sugar and salt. Add remaining peach syrup, water and lemon juice. Pour thin layer of gelatine mixture into 6-cup mold. Chill until slightly thickened. Make pattern with several peach slices; spoon a little clear gelatine mixture over them; chill until thickened but not firm. Dice remaining peach slices; reserve 1 cup for cream layer. Fold remainder into clear gelatine mixture; spoon into mold over layer of peach slices. Chill until almost but not completely firm. Meanwhile, prepare cream layer.

CREAM LAYER

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- ⅓ cup sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 cup diced peaches reserved from clear layer

Combine gelatine, sugar and salt in medium saucepan. Stir in milk. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves completely, about 4 minutes. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Whip cream; fold in gelatine mixture. Fold in diced peaches. Turn into mold over almost-firm clear layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate. Serve with melba sauce. Makes 8 servings.

MELBA SAUCE

- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 2 packages (10 oz. each) frozen raspberries, thawed

Measure cornstarch into saucepan; blend with a little syrup from raspberries. Add remaining syrup and berries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Mash berries with spoon. Put through strainer; chill. Makes approximately 1½ cups.

THIS IOWA COLLEGE IS MAKING EDUCATION HISTORY—AND STIRRING CONTROVERSY—WITH ITS

STUDENTS WHO GET A SECOND CHANCE

by SID ROSS & R. H. HUBBARD

FAIRFIELD, IOWA.

The young people in this small Midwestern town look like the kids found on college campuses all over the country. But here there is one difference: At least one-third of these men and women are students no other college wants. They've dropped out, flunked out or just plain couldn't find any other place that would take them.

Parsons College took them. It not only took them, it went out and looked for them. In this quiet little Iowa corn-belt town a radical experiment in higher education is taking place. It is forcing educators everywhere to take a hard look at one of this country's most crucial questions: Exactly what should be the role and function of a college today? Should we educate only the academic elite, or should everyone have a chance to work for a college degree?

Parsons College votes unhesitatingly for giving everyone a chance. What's more, it has shown that a college can be completely self-sustaining without government aid, foundation grants or massive alumni support.

The Parsons experiment was born less of idealism than of desperation. Ten years ago only 212 students from the surrounding farm area were attending classes on the nondescript campus in Fairfield. An undistinguished liberal arts school affiliated with the Presbyterian Church, Parsons was bankrupt. In 1955, when it was on the verge of closing its doors, Dr. Millard G. Roberts was offered the presidency of the college.

Dr. Roberts, a bustling 37-year-old former Army chaplain, was an assistant minister at New York's Brick Presbyterian Church. He did little preaching, and he wasn't an educator, but he was a spectacularly successful fund-raiser. As one of the Parsons trustees put it: "We were looking for a man who could pull us out of the hole—someone with promotional flair to put the college back on its feet."

In Millard G. Roberts they got what they were seeking—and a great deal more. He not only accepted the challenge to save the faltering college but seized the opportunity to put into practice his own theories on education, an unlikely combination of idealism and practicality.

Dr. Roberts believes that a college should "take a student from where he is and give him a chance to go as far as he can." He also maintains that a school shouldn't have to beg outside support.

Since the new president was determined to make the college self-supporting, his first task was to increase enrollment. He hired a staff of 18 recruiters to seek out prospects from all over the country and from all economic levels. He also determined that Parsons would admit one-third of its new students from among the "low achievers," the academic rejects who might have no other chance to try for a degree.

CUTS CURRICULUM

The dynamic young president also had some definite ideas about how faculty members should be utilized for maximum efficiency. When Dr. Roberts took over at Parsons, 768 courses were being offered to those 212 students. He decided that was far too many. "Since each student takes about 40 courses in 4 years," he reasoned, "the offering of a great many courses is wasteful, requires professors to be prepared in many areas and lowers their effectiveness." Despite faculty grumbling, the total number of courses was eventually reduced to 160.

Applying what he frankly terms "corporate techniques" to other areas, Dr. Roberts cut down on what he considered needless administrative functions in many departments. He also made it clear that he expected every professor and instructor to reduce research and other activities and concentrate on his primary function: teaching.

While he was making the Parsons faculty more efficient and streamlining the curriculum, Dr. Roberts introduced what he calls "team teaching." Under this system, a professor lectures three times a week, and his class meets twice a week in smaller discussion groups under associate teachers. In addition, tutors are provided by the college for those who need additional help in any subject.

In 1960, Parsons became the second college in the U.S. to operate on a full trimester system (the University of Pittsburgh was the first). "It's much more efficient," Dr. Roberts says, "to have our plant and facilities in operation on a 12-month basis."

The chief advantage of the trimester system is the opportunity it gives to laggard students. At Parsons, those whose average is below "C," or 2.0, are required to attend all three trimesters until they pull their marks up.

Dr. Roberts hotly denies the charge that the system benefits only poor students. He points out that many of the better students can, and do, graduate a full year early by going to school all year round. The system also benefits the student who has to work during vacations. He can take his semester off in winter or fall instead of in summer, when he would have more competition for jobs.

Today, 10 years after Dr. Roberts became president, the Parsons student body has grown to more than 3,300, hailing from nearly every state of the Union and 27 foreign countries. The campus is 3 times larger than the original one and is valued at $12 million. Faculty salaries average $13,700 per year—second only to Harvard.

What astonishes — and offends — many tradition-minded educators is the fact that at the end of the 1964 school year, Parsons had an operating surplus of $2,190,000, virtually every dime of it derived from student tuitions and fees!

A CONTROVERSIAL PRESIDENT

In his drive to make his ideas succeed, Dr. Roberts has bruised a lot of feelings. His critics call him "vain," "dictatorial," "completely cockeyed" and much worse. But no matter what they call him, they can't deny the soundness of his fiscal theory.

On the other hand, there is valid controversy over the quality of the education offered at Parsons. In the spring of 1963 a group of professors implied publicly that it was seriously deficient. The group also made undisclosed charges to the Parsons Board of Trustees. The Board rejected the charges, but later the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools placed Parsons on probation, without giving a reason for the action.

The widely publicized emphasis on seeking out academic pariahs has given Parsons a reputation as a "baby-sitter school" where parents can park their unwanted children for four years. Some of the students share the notion. As one of them put it: "A lot of the courses here are just slapdash—the teachers just skim the surface."

Dr. Roberts denies that Parsons coddles its students. "Of all low-achievers who enter, 76 per cent graduate," he declares. "Over-all, 87 per cent of our students earn a degree."

"I don't give a damn what anybody says," one faculty member declared. "I find this the most exciting and challenging educational experience of my career. Only here at Parsons have I found a deep concern for lower-performing students."

Most of the students seem to appreciate this attitude, even while being realistic about the merits of Parsons. One perky freshman admits she settled for Parsons as a last resort. "I don't think a Parsons diploma means as much as one from another college," she says. She agrees, though, that "it's a swell idea to give kids a second chance, especially those who've been sold down the river by poor high schools."

A transfer student said, "I didn't work at Miami [Ohio] University. I flunked out. Then I found out that I wanted an education, and Parsons gave me a chance. If a kid isn't college material, he'll soon find out, but I say give him a chance."

Dr. Roberts believes so firmly in the "Parsons idea" that he plans to expand the operation to a "chain" of similar colleges. "Like a chain of Robert Hall stores," sneer some of his critics.

Regardless of the animosity Dr. Roberts has stirred up in the world of higher education, the Parsons College idea seems to be here to stay. Its innovator says bluntly that a "profit-making" approach is the only salvation for most small private colleges. The jury is still out on the quality of the education Parsons gives its students, but the iconoclastic Dr. Roberts has undeniably blazed a trail that he dares others to follow—or find a better way.

SPRAY AWAY CHILDBIRTH PAIN

by ARNO JOHANSEN

Drs. Tage Malmström (l.) and Per Bergman pioneered use of spray-on anesthetic for childbirth.

GOTHENBURG, SWEDEN.

American medicine is basically conservative and competent. In many branches it is the best medicine in the world.

Except for a handful of physicians who have prescribed highly advertised but inadequately researched pharmaceuticals, American doctors are by nature and training a careful breed.

Before they employ a new drug or medical technique, they demand it be tried, tested, proven in thousands of cases.

There are, however, some doctors who fail to stay abreast of the latest techniques, who know little more than they learned in medical school 20 years ago, who have a tendency to downgrade or ignore any new development they don't know how to integrate into their practice.

For example, the late Dr. George Papanicolaou, who originated the Pap test, the examination of a vaginal smear for cancer cells, now widely used throughout the nation, was for years derided by some of his colleagues in New York. If Dr. Papanicolaou's test had been used by doctors when he first suggested it, thousands of American women, killed subsequently by cancer, might have had their lives saved. Medical history is replete with cases of similar pioneers who were ridiculed and scoffed at but whose contributions were subsequently adopted and hailed by the scientific community. Pasteur, Semmelweis, Freud are just a few who come quickly to mind.

American obstetricians, doctors who specialize in the care of pregnant women and child delivery, constitute on the whole a fairly progressive and enlightened group, and they undoubtedly will be interested in the following new development in their field:

Swedish and Danish obstetricians are using a dental-type analgesic, in an aerosol bottle, as a spray-on anesthetic for childbirth. It has become here one of the most popular, effective, safe, cheap and easily applied ways to suppress labor pains.

The compound used is lidocaine (trade name—Xylocain, manufactured by Astra Pharmaceutical Products in Copenhagen, Denmark, and Sodertalje, Sweden), one of the family of pain-deadeners frequently injected into the gums before dental work.

For childbirth, however, a fine mist is sprayed directly into the birth canal and onto the surrounding mucous membrane about 5 to 10 minutes before the baby's head is expected to appear.

After the birth, the doctor again sprays the open surface of episiotomies (surgical incisions to prevent tearing) and other delivery wounds to further diminish the pain.

In a series of 459 deliveries at the University Hospital in Copenhagen, 1 out of 4 women was able to bear her baby without gas or other supporting anesthesia—"and good effect was obtained here in 80 per cent of the cases," 2 obstetrician investigators reported last year in a Danish medical journal.

The spray-on local anesthetic has been used in an estimated 7,000 deliveries in Birth Department B at this hospital.

But the pioneers and chief supporters of the spray-on method are two Swedish obstetricians, professor Per Bergman and his first assistant, Dr. Tage Malmström, who report after 5,000 deliveries: "We've had only good experience with this kind of anesthesia."

NO BAD SIDE EFFECTS

Aside from a few women who complained of a slight smarting sensation on application, there have been no untoward side effects—no nausea, wooziness, headache or impairment to mother or child—in any of these deliveries.

"Naturally," Dr. Bergman explains, "pain relief by local anesthesia is not comparable with complete analgesia obtained by narcosis [gas or compounds that produce stupor or sleep], but so long as the sharp edge can be removed from pain, more and more patients want to experience the moment of birth. To 'be there' at delivery is considered by many women to be so significant that they would prefer lidocaine to final narcosis in the event of future deliveries."

American pediatricians generally prefer that women in childbirth be given as little anesthesia as possible. They don't mind local anesthetics too much, but many claim that a general anesthesia by injection or inhalation sometimes affects the baby, who emerges sleepy and drowsy and may develop a respiratory difficulty.

One bottle holds enough analgesic for 25-30 deliveries.

"What we prefer," says Dr. Edwin Patton of Beverly Hills, Calif., one of the nation's top pediatricians, "is a lusty, fighting, crying, screaming baby. Natural childbirth is best for the baby, but most women will not undertake a completely natural childbirth. A few of the more determined and exploratory may undertake that method to begin with, but when labor pains start, most ask for some relief."

Dr. Keith Russell of the Moore-White Clinic, an obstetrician of wide note and experience, says, "In my opinion more than 90 per cent of American women get some anesthetic in childbirth: a local, a spinal, an inhalation, a caudal injection.

"We haven't used Xylocain in a spray container for suppressing pain in labor delivery, because it's not available in this country in that form. If it has worked effectively in Scandinavia, I'm sure that eventually it will be introduced into this country. But we're not about to use anything until it's been thoroughly tested and approved by the FDA [Food & Drug Administration]."

Astra Pharmaceutical, which has a plant in Worcester, Mass., has not as yet submitted the aerosol Xylocain to the FDA in Washington. When asked why by a PARADE reporter, a company spokesman said: "We're not convinced the Scandinavian research is authoritative or the cases in their research well-controlled. The worst possible thing you could do would be to tell the public about this development."

"It's all right," he went on, "for the medical profession to hear about it, but if you write anything in a lay journal, it could prove very embarrassing to both us and the nation's obstetricians. Women would ask their doctors about it, and the doctors would ask us, and we'd have to say it wasn't available in this country. Just answering the letters would mean a lot of paper work."

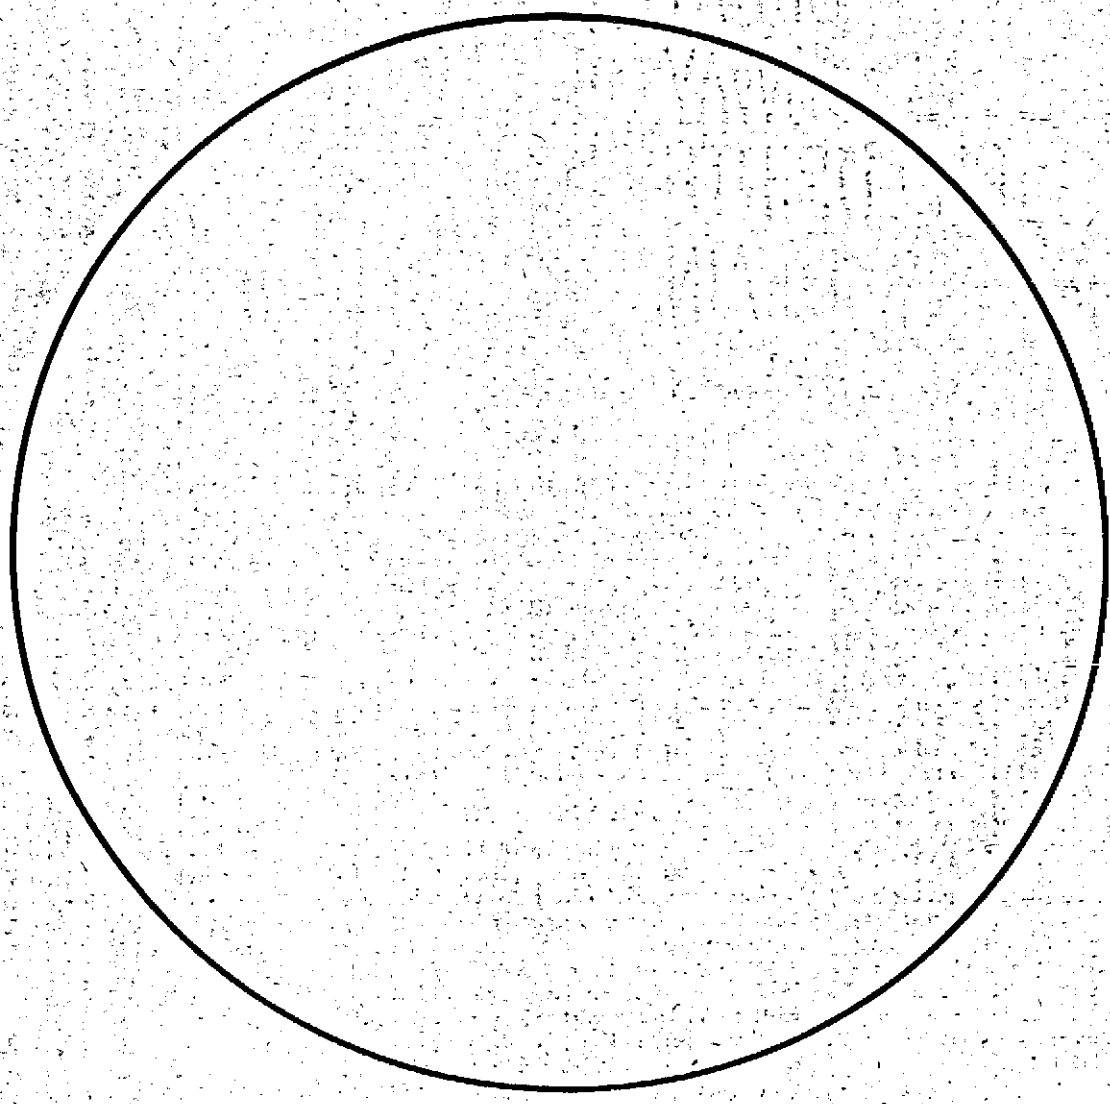

"But if it has been proved effective in Scandinavia," the PARADE reporter persisted, "and your home office is manufacturing more and more of the aerosol bottles, why shouldn't it be introduced into this country?"

"Maybe it should," agreed the spokesman, "but do you know what murder it is to get anything new through the FDA these days? We've got enough projects on our hands."

The belief here in Swedish obstetrical circles, however, is that the spray-on anesthesia for childbirth will one day be widely used throughout the world.

"Let's face it," one local doctor told me. "The Germans originated the sulfa drugs, the British were the first to produce penicillin; perhaps we Swedes will have the small honor of being the first to spray away delivery pains. In any event I can tell you that in this country, it is here to stay."

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

HOME COST. The average home-price in America will reach an all-time high before the year is out: $18,900 in 1965, as compared with $18,300 in 1964 and $17,900 in 1963. Major reasons for the constant rise: Land goes up in value; people are no longer satisfied with two-bedroom crackerboxes, now want well-constructed 3-bedroom jobs with lots of built-ins. Contractors say the trend is definitely toward more expensive homes with family rooms, finished basements, good carpeting, lots of extras.

NEW SEX REPORT. This June four scientists who worked under the late, famed Dr. Alfred Kinsey of the Institute for Sex Research, will publish through Harper & Row a new study entitled Sex Offenders. Purpose of the research is to determine the differences between those people who have been imprisoned for sex offenses and those who have not.

VERTICAL PLANE. Most annoying part of air transportation today is getting to and from airports. In some cities the job takes from one to two hours -- more if traffic is jammed. A passenger can frequently fly from New York to Chicago before his wife reaches home from New York's Kennedy Airport via car. Major need of airlines is not a plane which flies at 2,000 miles per hour but a plane capable of vertical in-city take-off and landing. Ling-Temco-Vought of Dallas has produced such a vertical plane for the military. It takes off from a dime, then tilts its wings and engines forward, flies at 430 mph in level flight. First airline to come up with such a group of planes will make a fortune.

POWER AND BATHTUBS. It is interesting to note how power affects different peoples. In the newly independent countries of Africa and Asia, men who come to power first order (1) limousines and (2) bathtubs. Most of the tubs are ordered from West Germany, where with typical Teutonic thoroughness the following color preferences have been recorded: The power elite in Ghana prefers yellow and ivory tubs. In Kenya, ivory and green. In Nigeria, blue. In Cambodia, pink is the reigning color, and in Malaya it's gray. In Germany itself ivory used to be the favorite color, but in the last five years pink and blue have emerged tub-triumphant.

MICKEY MANTLE AT BAT: YANKEES MANAGEMENT SAYS HE'S MAKING $115,000 A YEAR; SPORTSWRITERS SAY HE'S NOT.

BASEBALL PLAYERS' SALARIES. Honest and knowledgeable sportswriters advise fans not to believe the inflated salary figures released by baseball executives. These men like the fans to believe that they are more generous than they really are. The New York Yankees management claims Mickey Mantle is now getting $115,000 a year. Interested parties are asked not to believe it...not until Mantle announces the figure himself. The players are to be believed; the executives are not -- so claim the sportswriters, and they should know.

BLACK MARKET AUTHORITY. Dr. Franz Pick, a naturalized American born in Austria 66 years ago, is a financial wizard who claims to be the world authority on black market operations. In 1963 Pick said the best buy of the year was the purchase of surplus liberty ships, on which a profit of 80% could be made. Last year's most profitable investment, he claims, was in mercury. "If you bought a 75-pound flask in January," he explains, "you would have paid $235 for it. By the end of the year that same flask was worth $485, over a 100% profit." Dr. Pick refuses to tell people what to invest in this year but insists large profits can be made in several lines. In Hong Kong, a thriving center for black market operators, the word is out to buy gold.

HORSESHOERS WANTED. The cavalry is gone. The Army mule has passed on. The Department of Agriculture no longer reports the number of horses in this country -- an estimated 3,500,000 -- but the number increases each year, and the number of skilled horseshoers goes down. If you know of a young man, strong and sturdy, who likes horses, ask him to consider the occupation of blacksmith. There are two leading schools for horseshoers, and they report the demand for graduates much larger than the supply. One is the California State Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, the other is Oregon State at Corvallis. The course at Oregon takes 15 weeks, costs $350. A good shoer can net $600 a month or more, traveling in his trailer from farm to farm or stable to stable, averaging five horses a day. In Oregon alone the estimated need for men who can properly shoe horses is 500. In California there are 300,000 horses as a potential market. Today's blacksmith no longer owns a shop. He travels by trailer or pickup truck, going to the horse rather than having the horse brought to him.

"My Mutual of Omaha policy has paid my family cash to live on for 12 years. It will go on paying—for the rest of my life, if necessary."

Over $28,000.00 in cash paid by Mutual of Omaha to the Arnoldy family

"Without my policy, I'd have been on relief or some kind of charity,"

says TOM ARNOLDY of Shawnee, Kansas.

"I was disabled just seven months after I took out my policy. I don't know what we would have done all these years without those regular monthly checks from Mutual of Omaha."

Although Mr. Arnoldy is able to get around now with the help of crutches, his doctor has told him he may never be able to work again. With this prospect, the Arnoldy family knows full well the value of Mutual of Omaha paycheck protection that pays lifetime benefits either in or out of the hospital.

"I couldn't have made enough to support us," says Mrs. Arnoldy, "...not while taking care of the family, too. Our boys, Phil and Tom were only 11 and 14, then. But with Mutual of Omaha's help, we've come through. We live modestly, but decently. Our boys finished school, have good jobs, and families of their own. I'm so thankful my husband had the foresight to buy insurance that protects his paycheck."

Mr. and Mrs. Arnoldy are shown here with their sons and their sons' families—three generations who have benefited from one Mutual of Omaha policy.

Protect your family paycheck with up to $500.00 a month regular cash income.

You select the amount you'll need each month (from $50.00 to $500.00) to help take care of your regular family living expenses when you are laid up, as fully explained in your policy. Important: "Paycheck Protection" pays cash income for both illnesses and accidents that keep you from working—pays you for as long as you can't work...both in and out of the hospital.

Your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" are tax-free to spend as you wish—to buy groceries, to pay rent, the utilities—even to pay the premiums on your other insurance. They are yours over and above any payments you receive from hospital and medical insurance. These "paycheck" benefits are payable for disabilities that start before retirement or age 65—special benefits for disabilities that start after retirement or age 65.

Save 10%—57%! If your family is protected by short-term "sick leave" or group insurance where Dad works, you can have your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" start after those other benefits have been used up. By doing this, you save from 10% to 57%, depending on your age, occupation and the plan for which you qualify.

One is the California State Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo, the other is Oregon State at Corvallis. The course at Oregon takes 15 weeks, costs $350. A good shoer can net $600 a month or more, traveling in his trailer from farm to farm or stable to stable, averaging five horses a day. In Oregon alone the estimated need for men who can properly shoe horses is 500. In California there are 300,000 horses as a potential market. Today's blacksmith no longer owns a shop. He travels by trailer or pickup truck, going to the horse rather than having the horse brought to him.

"My Mutual of Omaha policy has paid my family cash to live on for 12 years. It will go on paying—for the rest of my life, if necessary."

Over $28,000.00 in cash paid by Mutual of Omaha to the Arnoldy family

"Without my policy, I'd have been on relief or some kind of charity,"

says TOM ARNOLDY of Shawnee, Kansas.

"I was disabled just seven months after I took out my policy. I don't know what we would have done all these years without those regular monthly checks from Mutual of Omaha."

Although Mr. Arnoldy is able to get around now with the help of crutches, his doctor has told him he may never be able to work again. With this prospect, the Arnoldy family knows full well the value of Mutual of Omaha paycheck protection that pays lifetime benefits either in or out of the hospital.

"I couldn't have made enough to support us," says Mrs. Arnoldy, "...not while taking care of the family, too. Our boys, Phil and Tom were only 11 and 14, then. But with Mutual of Omaha's help, we've come through. We live modestly, but decently. Our boys finished school, have good jobs, and families of their own. I'm so thankful my husband had the foresight to buy insurance that protects his paycheck."

Mr. and Mrs. Arnoldy are shown here with their sons and their sons' families—three generations who have benefited from one Mutual of Omaha policy.

Protect your family paycheck with up to $500.00 a month regular cash income.

You select the amount you'll need each month (from $50.00 to $500.00) to help take care of your regular family living expenses when you are laid up, as fully explained in your policy. Important: "Paycheck Protection" pays cash income for both illnesses and accidents that keep you from working—pays you for as long as you can't work...both in and out of the hospital.

Your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" are tax-free to spend as you wish—to buy groceries, to pay rent, the utilities—even to pay the premiums on your other insurance. They are yours over and above any payments you receive from hospital and medical insurance. These "paycheck" benefits are payable for disabilities that start before retirement or age 65—special benefits for disabilities that start after retirement or age 65.

Save 10%—57%! If your family is protected by short-term "sick leave" or group insurance where Dad works, you can have your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" start after those other benefits have been used up. By doing this, you save from 10% to 57%, depending on your age, occupation and the plan for which you qualify.

Guaranteed Renewable for Life! This policy is yours for the rest of your life regardless of age, health or number of benefits received. Even the premium remains the same unless all policies of this form issued to persons of your class in your state are changed.

One stop insurance shopping! Mutual of Omaha's affiliated company, United of Omaha, offers you a full range of fine family plans to meet your life insurance needs. You'll find a packaged program of health and life insurance in the great Omaha Companies tradition. Free facts are yours for the asking.
